CANADA-AUSTRALIA.

MR. BURRIS GAHAN DESCRIBES JOURNEY FROM FIRST TO LAST.

Magnificent Month of Continuous Traveling—Through Four Seasons of the Year in Thirty Days—A Vivid Contrast Between These Two Lands Born of the Same Imperial Mother.

The Canadian who starts from Toronto for Sydney has before him a magnificent month of continuous traveling. After the most pleasant and profitable week of the four will probably be the first one spent in crossing the great west of his own country. To pass through that land of beef and fat, and to see a supreme lesson in patriotism that should form part of the education of every Canadian. For the rest of the journey he sees nothing to remind him, save by contrast, of his national scenery. The western, the equatorial and the tropical islands, where the pine-apple, banana and coconut-palm flourish. At last he comes to Australia—a land that has the kangaroo instead of the beaver, and the Southern Cross instead of the North Star—a land that has the moon when Canada has the sun, and sweaters under a temperature of 100 degrees in the shade, when young Johnny Canuck is playing hockey. Indeed, I left Toronto in the depths of winter, picked spring violets in the gardens of Vancouver, spent an ideal summer's day at Honolulu, and arrived at Sydney to find everyone thankful that autumn had come at last. Thus, in a single month, the traveler passed through the four seasons of the year.

The first stop on the ocean voyage is Honolulu, seven days out from Vancouver who have traveled pretty well over the world agree in pronouncing this one of its most charming corners. The town stretches itself along the sunny beach and struggles with the mountain side beyond. Winding roads and white roofs, half-hidden among the trees, make it a splendid sight from the sea. And the interest does not vanish when the harbor is entered and the people are seen. Honolulu, indeed, is a fascinating medley of Yankee progressiveness, native backwardness and Oriental picturesque. The streets and shops are crowded with pig-tailed Chinamen in their characteristic garb; dirty, loafing niggers, with no clothes beyond the two essential garments, and hustling American business men, dressed in immaculate duck-crepe suits, and women in the market place, jostle the slight American girls, whose stylish frocks indicate that they are probably visitors from New York or Chicago. But of all the persons to be met in the market place, the most engaging are the dainty little Japanese ladies, arrayed in their native costume, and looking for all the world as if they had just stepped out of some pagoda or Oriental tea-house. But, unfortunately, the traveler is allowed only a few hours ashore, and as he watches the island fade in the distance, he has a faint feeling of regret, as if he had lived in Honolulu all his life.

From Honolulu to Suva, the capital of the Fiji Islands, is a sail of nearly ten days. The Pacific in the tropics is as calm as a Canadian back-lake in August. Indeed, I never saw Lake Ontario or Erie or Huron so calm as the ocean was during these ten days. Often the water looked as if it were covered with oil, for not even a ripple disturbed its surface. At times the heat was oppressive, and there was no breeze to bring relief. From 10 in the morning till 3 in the afternoon exertion was practically impossible. Life was confined to sitting in a deck-chair, reading, dozing, chatting, or lazily watching the flying fish that played around the boat. Four o'clock, however, brought relief, and evening had its own charm in the form of a gorgeous tropical sunset, and, perhaps, a cooling breath of air.

The colony of Fiji consists of 255 islands, of which nearly 100 are inhabited. Between 20 and 30 of these can be seen on the way to Suva. The harbor of Suva itself is entered through a narrow opening in the coral reef. It was evening when I saw it, and the quarantine officer refused to allow anyone to land, as plague was reported at Honoluli. It was necessary, therefore, to view the town from afar off. The natives, however, kindly came alongside for closer inspection, and a magnificent lot of fellows they appeared to be. They wore no clothes except a white cloth wrapped round their waist and extended half way down to their knees. This costume gives full opportunity for admiring their powerful shoulders, broad chests, straight backs, strong arms and muscular legs. But more conspicuous than his well-knit body is the mop of red hair that crowns each grinning face. Every Fijian, with any personal pride or social pretension has red hair. He gets it much as his civilized sisters do, by bleaching it with lime. I had always thought that the chemical blonde was peculiar to Europe, but here, in this tropical island, our latter-day civilization, but apparently, there is nothing new under the sun. The bleaching of the hair is probably as old as the tattooing of the skin. In the case of the Suva Islanders, however, the copper skin, white teeth, black eyes, and red hair constitute a human color scheme that surely must be unique.

From Suva it is a five days' sail past New Caledonia to the Australian coast, at the mouth of the Brisbane River. Brisbane itself, the State capital of Queensland, a city of more than 100,000 inhabitants, is situated about 25 miles from the sea. Passengers are allowed a few hours here, and mails leave the steamer to go by rail to Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide. The trip to Sydney by boat takes the greater part of two days, starting for 500 miles down the eastern coast of New South Wales. At last, a solid month after he left Toronto, the traveler enters the grandest harbor in the world, and lands in perhaps the finest city of the southern hemisphere. To sketch Sydney in a paragraph would be an impertinence—to attempt a description of the harbor would be nothing short of insolence. The one requires at the very least, a letter to itself; the other deserves a volume.

When I reached Sydney the city was in a mild state of alarm over a fresh outbreak of the bubonic plague. One theatre and several hotels and shops were closed on its account. The plague is still here, and two fresh cases were reported to-day, but the alarm has subsided a good deal. Many citizens, indeed, seem disposed to accept the plague as a permanent institution. The health authorities, however, are fighting it with great vigor and intelligence. Their measures are directed principally against rats, for they are deemed to be the chief source of infection. A dead rat is sure to cause quite a sensation where it is found. It is supposed that the disease is communicated to man by the bite of a flea, which has been poisoned previously by biting a plague-rat. There have been just 125 cases during the present outbreak, and the mortality has been slightly less than the usual one-third. A week or two ago the disease made its appearance at the Zoological Gardens, and several valuable animals died. If energetic measures are of any avail, however, the epidemic will be stamped out before long. The whole city has declared war against rats, and cleanliness has been made the battle-cry. Every citizen has been urged to set his house in order, and if he will not do it himself the Board of Health does it for him. All classes in Sydney have joined in the sanitary crusade, and formalin has become the fashionable perfume of the hour.—Burriss Gahan, in The Toronto Globe.

FINEST BRIDGE IN THE WORLD.

To Span the Strait of Canoe From Cape Breton to Nova Scotia.

The bridging of the Strait of Canoe between Cape Breton and the mainland of Nova Scotia is to be undertaken at once. The task is an immense one, involving great engineering difficulties and an outlay of about $5,000,000. J. A. L. Waddell of Kansas City has been engaged to oversee the work. He is a Canadian and a graduate of McGill, and has been knighted by the Emperor of Japan, where he was at one time professor of civil engineering in the University of Japan.

Mr. Waddell stated in a recent interview that the bridge would be a cantilever, with a span of 1,800 feet, the longest in the world, and have a height of 58 feet clear above high water. The bridge will span the strait between Port Hastings on the Cape Breton side, and Cape Porcupine on the Nova Scotian shore, a distance of 2,800 feet. Two immense piers will be sunk near either shore, in about 90 feet of water. The bridge is designed for double-tracking.

Mr. Waddell stated also that it would be the finest bridge in the world. A tunnel, he said, would be practically impossible. An agreement has been reached between Waddell and the incorporators, authorizing Mr. Waddell to proceed with the work. The construction of this bridge will remove all delays and inconveniences now experienced in crossing this strait.

It is said that the Canadian Pacific Railway is behind the project, which is preliminary to the establishment of a fast steamship line on the Atlantic.

An Amusing Error.
Readers of Barrie's story of newspaper life, "When a Man's Single," will remember the telegraph editor, who headed the dispatch beginning "The Zulus have taken Umbrage." The Zulus have taken umbrage, with a line announcing that the Zulus had captured a post, and made the opening sentence read: "The Zulus have taken Umbrage." The incident is recalled by a dispatch in The Ottawa Evening Journal, dated "Dauphin, Man., June 18," and announcing the results of the voting in the Kististino district in the territorial elections. The dispatch states: "As a result of the vote, Messrs. Nott Shad, a negro, have been elected for the constituency." It should be, of course, "Messrs. and not Shad." In this case the wide-awake telegraph editor in The Ottawa Journal added: "Shad is the first full-blooded negro to be elected to a legislative body in Canada." And he headed it up: "First Negro to Sit in a Canadian Assembly." "Not Shad Has Been Elected" in the Territories." On the contrary, not only has Nott not been elected, but there is no Nott.

The New Quebec Minister.
Hon. A. T. Robitaille, the new Provincial Secretary of Quebec, is the third son of Dr. Olivier Robitaille of Quebec and was born in Quebec in 1853. He was educated in Quebec Seminary and Laval University, being called to the bar in July, 1877. He is senior member of the law firm of Robitaille & Roy, his partner being Mr. Rudolph Roy, M. P. P. for Kamouraska. For four years Mr. Robitaille was a civic alderman and entered the lists for provincial honors in 1897, when Hon. Mr. Marchand was returned to power. He was elected for Quebec Centre, defeating Mr. Victor Chatevert, a very strong candidate by a majority of 347.

Sowing Buckwheat.

Buckwheat likes a dry or well drained soil. Sow the seed at almost any time when convenient from July 1 to July 15, and we have seen good crops where it was sown both earlier and later, but the above is a time when it is generally sure to do well, and there should be from twenty to thirty bushels of grain to the acre. In sowing buckwheat to plow under we should sow earlier, in June at least, and plow under while in bloom or just before any seed ripened, then follow by sowing winter grain.—American Cultivator.

Nervously Exhausted

Sleepless, poor digestion, easily tired, blue as indigo, that's how you feel. Do you want to feel strong, make plenty of blood, enjoy buoyancy, strength and vim. You can do so by using Ferrozone. How it sharpens the appetite and imparts a feeling of buoyancy, strength and vim! Improves the appetite, digestion, assimilation, sleep. How surely Ferrozone does this, you can ascertain by using it. Ferrozone is a blood builder, strengthener and brain invigorator. Sold by McCall & Co.

The Lancet points out that fresh pineapple juice contains a remarkable active digestive principle similar to pepsin. This principle has been termed "bromelin" and so powerful is its action upon proteins that it will digest as much as a thousand times its weight within a few hours.

Beauty is born in the blood. Beauty is more than "skin deep," it is blood deep. When the blood is tainted by disease the flesh will feel it and the skin will show it. Sallow or muddy complexion, pimples, blotches, and eruptions are only the surface signs of impure blood. Face washes, lotions, complexion powders, may palliate the evils but they cannot cure the disease. The only cure is to cleanse the blood of the poisonous matter which is the cause of the outbreak in the flesh and skin. Impure blood can be absolutely purified by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Its effect on flesh and skin is marked. Sores heal and disappear. The skin becomes smooth, and regains its natural color. The eyes brighten and sparkle, the whole body is radiant with the brightness and beauty of health. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant, and is absolutely free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics. The use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assists the action of the "Discovery," by cleansing the system of clogging matter.
