WINTER RECREATION.

In our last issue we drew attention to the need there existed for providing profitable recreation for the people during the long winter—and in that connection instance had already been done in Newcastle in that direction, and also advocated the re-opening of the Mechanics' Institute. The importance of providing the masses with suitable and innocent enjoyment, cannot be overlooked, acting as it does as an antidote to the means employed in the opposite direction to entice the unwary, and to lead men from the paths of sobriety. And as all tastes have to be consulted in catering to the wants and requirements of the public, there should of necessity be variety in order to achieve the success which is so much desired by those who are actuated by the true spirit of philanthropy. Among the many sources of enjoyment that of Music ought to take the foremost place. Every home circle is really the better and happier where its refining influence is one of the attractions of the family circle; and if this be true as regards the home, the same influence, only more widely diffused, may be made the medium of much good where the love of music is encouraged, and the talent for the art developed through the instrumentality of Philharmonic Societies, Glee Clubs, etc., where the young people of the towns can meet for mutual improvement in this particular. Why is it that Newcastle is so far behind in this matter?—

It is certainly not for lack of talent, for we may safely venture the assertion that there is not a town in this section of the Province more highly favored in this particular—possessing considerable musical talent which to a considerable extent is lying dormant for want of cultivation. Cannot something be done towards establishing a school of instruction, in which the little folk of our town may acquire the graces of a fine voice, and the more advanced in the art be afforded an opportunity to further improve themselves in a branch of study which offers so many advantages to them in the future.

We think the fitting time has arrived for a move in this direction. We are at present in possession of a person who is well fitted to train classes in vocal music, and who, we feel assured, will be found willing to undertake the task for a reasonable remuneration, as that is his vocation.

We refer to Mr. Follansbee, who has recently established some excellent classes in some portions of this County. Parents and guardians cannot do better than to aid in implanting in the hearts of those committed to their keeping a love for music, the ennobling influence of which, we generally recognize, and the benefits flowing from which will follow them through the journey of life—cheering them in many a dark hour, and helping them to better bear the disappointments and annoyances that fall to the lot of all. To change the element of drudgery into "The Pleasure of Music," has said—"If you can afford the time and money—I say if you can afford the time and money—have in your house a piano, or a piano organ. Just as soon as the child is large enough to comprehend the keys, teach him to play the piano. The child will be happy, and you will be happy. The Republican as well as Democrat, look upon him as holding high rank in his profession, and thoroug-ly conversant with the important mercantile interests of that great city.

We have before us a copy of his immortal part, which bears the signature of sixteen sixty and seventy of the leading houses in New York. We congratulate friend

Adams, and wish him abundant success in the important position he has been called upon to fill.

We give below a few extracts from the press relative to the Elections.

(Boston Herald.)

Whether the revolution will be permanent or not depends upon the force which the Democrats make of their victories. If the Governor whom they have elected shall administer the affairs of the State in accordance with the principles laid down in the two letters which he has written, and the representatives of his party in Congress shall come up to the same high standard, we see no reason why the party now restored to power shall fall again into the hands of the Democrats. We may say, however, that the party now in power, and the men whom it sends to Washington shall repeat the foibles and blunders of their predecessors, the Democrats will be turned out of office as promptly as they have been brought in. They have proved unequal to the task of governing the people. They have every inducement to make their present act a genuine departure. It will shortly appear whether they are equal to it.

The London Telegraph, in an editorial on the American elections, referring to the victory of the Democrats, says:

We take it for granted that disgust at the continued infidelity of the party which has so long ruled the country has been the chief cause of the success of the Democratic ticket. It would be strange if it were reserved for the Democrats to cleanse the stables of the country of the corruption which has so long ruled the country. The people want every well-ruled State to have an upright and permanent civil service. The Standard—The Standard says:

If the Republicans in the United States are seriously to heart the plain lesson of the Democratic victory, they will not in the long run have much reason to deprecate the magnitude of the discomfort which has befallen them. The result will certainly give an impetus to civil service reform, and will tend to the future of honest men of all shades of political opinion, and the remedy for the evils which have prevailed.

BATHURST, NOV. 11.

While repairs were recently being made upon the chimney of Stewart's mill, it fell with great force, and caused the death of several who were standing near. A new one is now in process of construction.

A few days since a young man was engaged in splitting wood, when the axe, indicating a severe wound on his foot, the patient, though disabled for a time is now in a way to recovery.

Thanksgiving day passed very quietly.

Service was held at the Methodist Church in the forenoon at which there was a fairly large attendance. The programme, which was of the usual kind, was well received. The programme, which was a good one, was exceedingly well carried out.

Mr. McAlister, who occupied the chair, announced that the proceeds would be appropriated towards liquidating the debt on the Manse.

The first piece on the programme was a full chorus, "Ring the bells continue to pour in from all quarters, but the bridegroom is as cheerful as possible under the circumstances.

A young man lately blew into the muzzle of his gun pointed at the trigger. Not enough of his remains have yet been recovered to authorize a respectable inquest.

An insurance agent has been seen perambulating our streets. It is to be regretted that the law prohibiting the public use of firearms is still on the statute-book.

A sea-saw lately erected on the schoolhouse grounds is a source of great amusement to the pupils. It is noticeable that the law prohibiting the public use of firearms is still on the statute-book.

A gentleman of the Village living in close proximity to the graveyard speaks favorably of the quietness and general behavior of his neighbors.

Algebraic Phrases.—If x equals an angry pedagogue, and y equals a school-boy, what will x+y be equal to?

Conversation between two young ladies recently overheard at the last Church service.—Q. Do you see the lady in the front dress in black?

Yes, I see her; a perfect figure! If I only knew her name I don't want any one to die in our family.

A word to "Onlooker." A correspondent under the name of "Onlooker" at the World's Weekly has written a series of long-suffering papers in a terrible onslaught upon your Bathurst contributor. He has written a series of articles—evidently being to the same family, and like Romulus and Remus have been suckled by the same wolf. What possible benefit can be derived from this? The Village Postmaster is well able to take care of the editor of the "Onlooker." horse been sharp shod the consequences might have been still more serious. When Mr. P. was taken into the matter we cannot say, but certainly no one would blame him should he take steps to have the young man removed from the premises of the farm.

One night last week a gang of rowdies were seen to be practising their trade in the vicinity of the Municipal Buildings. One gentleman who had to run the gauntlet was killed. The police were called in and the rowdies were dispersed.

A large window in the basement of the Methodist Church was recently were found to be of a very hard material. The window was
