

RETURN OF THE KINBURN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE

Nov. 3.—For the last four days it has been blowing a sirocco, which painfully affects one just returned from nearly a month's trip at sea. The air is hot, heavy, and impregnated with most offensive and irritating dust, which attacks nearly every sense at once. Late on Wednesday evening, the Triton, Odin, and Firebrand, the latter two with mortar and gunboats in tow, arrived after a rough passage, at Kazatch. The Triton went round to Bala Clava next morning, and in the course of Thursday, a number of French and English vessels, with troops and stores on board, arrived, one after the other, and anchored off Kamiesch and Kazatch. It blew so hard that it was considered inexpedient to land the troops. Yesterday the whole of the fleets arrived at their anchorage. Kinburn is quite secured against any forces the enemy can bring against it, covered completely as it is by the guns of the formidable flotilla we have left behind to protect it. The garrison is strong; it is well to keep the exact force secret, but the Russians must know as well as we can, how many men the fort will contain with convenience. The French troops will occupy the fort, but a small body of English will be left to guard the flag which waves along with the tricolor from its ramparts, and the task of its defence will be shared by a powerful English squadron with our allies. They have worked with extraordinary energy to repair the place. All the curtains are rebuilt, the ruins cleared away, the damaged guns removed, and five ships' guns put in their place; the fosse cleared out and deepened, the palisades repaired, the south-eastern gateway filled up, and its approaches covered by a strong ravelin; the crest of the parapets repaired solidly and well with fascines and earthwork, the Russian guns rendered efficient, the casemates cleared out and filled with stores or adapted as barracks, and the interior buildings in course of reconstruction and renovation. The batteries on the Spit are to be destroyed, and that process is easily effected by removing the massive beams which support the sand and few gabions used in their construction. The reconnaissance which started the week before last did very little, except burn all the stores and houses which could render service to the enemy for seven or eight miles towards Kherson. The rafts are safe off Kinburn, and they are no insignificant prize just at this moment, when such efforts are being made to put the Bog in a state of defence. Sir Edmund Lyons has presented one of the rafts to the French—an act of courtesy and consideration which our polite allies, no doubt, estimate at its full value. Their dimensions are as follows:—The first is 420 feet long by 63 feet wide, and is 6 feet deep. The second is nearly the same length as the first, is 54 feet broad, and grounded in 8 feet water. At a rough calculation, the two rafts contain 90,000 cubic feet of the finest timber, and the present made by the English fleet to the French, through our Commander-in-Chief, cannot be estimated at a lower value than £20,000; at least, if the timber was in England, it would be well worth the money.

find men attached to the ambulance, land transport, or else they are at Bala Clava or lime burners. In addition to all this, there have to be deducted servants, batmen, sick, orderlies, cooks, convalescents, acting sappers, so that instead of a regiment having 750 men fit for duty, it can only have 500. In short, about one-third of a regiment vanishes by different methods. The number of assistant engineers at 7s 6d a day, each employed on the main roads or highways, is really astonishing. If they were made 'superintendents' they would only receive 4s a day, and even then they would be well paid, for in nine cases out of ten, they knew no more of road-making than a cat. All they do is to tell off the parties with a certain quantity of shovels, pickaxes, hammers, or hand-barrows. Nothing can exceed the beauty of the weather.—Daily News.

DISCOVERY OF CURIOUS RUINS.
Near the Col de Bala Clava, not far off from head-quarters, some old foundations have been discovered, supposed by some to be of Grecian origin; by others, an old monastery; and again by others, an old cook-house. The lower basement contained some Genoese urns and an immense quantity of pottery. These ruins were discovered by some men of the 39th Regiment, while pulling up stones for the road. Since then a permanent working party of this regiment, under an officer, is told off each day, for the purpose of excavating.

STRICT REGULATIONS AT BALA CLAVA.
The police regulations at Bala Clava are becoming more strict every day, and properly so. Captains have been called on to give a guarantee for their passengers, and objecting to do so, the said passengers have gone back to the parts whence they sailed. The Sarnai steamer was in this predicament with more than 100 passengers, most of whom were Orientals. Several men have been detached from the English regiments for local police duty, under deputy provost marshals, and one of the latter has been specially appointed to examine passports and all such other documents, so that we may know who's who. All strangers are to have their names inserted on a register, and all found after a certain time without this authentication will be "banished." Great severity has recently been exercised in flogging at "Frenchman's Hill, and it is said, that men of the Army Works Corps and Land Transport Corps (they change these names so frequently, one gets a little confused) have in some number deserted. We hear, also, there has been a good deal of flogging recently on board H. M. S. Merris, Captain Johnson, in Kazatch Bay.

Mr. Cobden (says the Yorkshireman) has not the shadow of a chance of being again returned for the West riding.
Miss NIGHTINGALE.—Miss Nightingale's father says that he receives good accounts from his daughter, although the fatigue of setting in order the Crimean hospitals, and preparing them for the winter, is very great, and she has hardly recovered from a severe illness she had in the summer at Bala Clava. She has no thoughts of returning home at present, as she cannot bear to leave her work, and though this winter will not be like the last, there will, doubtless, be still a large number of sick.

Her Majesty's Steamer Abundance, which has been fitted as a steam bakery, for the purpose of supplying the British army in the Crimea with fresh bread, issues daily from on board 18,000 lbs. of well-baked, good and wholesome bread, for the consumption of the troops.
A KNOUT.—"A soldier of the 5th Regiment of the Line coming from Sebastopol," says the Journal de Villefranche, "lately passing through this town, showed as a trophy, a knout which he had seized on an officer, made prisoner by him in the Crimea. This instrument of correction has a handle about a foot and a half long with a heavy metal at the end. One end is covered over with a woven wire, like the handle of a cutting-whip, and at the other is a thick leather thong. This instrument of serfdom, which forms such a contrast with our liberal ideas, excited the curiosity of all who saw it."

STRANGE EVAPORATION OF THE ARMY.
Great exertions are being made to have the army huddled and the roads completed before the wet weather, and one may say winter, sets in; but the general opinion is, that the hutting is being lost sight of too much, and that too many men are employed each day on the roads, which latter are becoming far too numerous. Besides the main roads, there are division roads, regimental roads in each camp, and also roads leading from the Commissariat of every division to each regiment. If only 9,600 men are employed on the roads, one cannot understand where the remainder of the 30,000 men are. All the different camps are quite empty, and for an officer to get a fatigue man to assist in building his hut is impossible. I have known many corps who are actually obliged, in order to make up the requisite number, to send their band and drummers. But our system is so faulty, that if a regiment was 750 strong, 150 would be taken away for different duties not connected in any way with the fighting position of the army. On inquiry you will
