He Could Hardly Swing A Sledge Says Knickle

"Four bottles of Tanlac put me in such fine shape I can do a hard day's work and still feel fresh at quitting time," declared Ernest Knickle, well known young blacksmith residing at Pelham street, Lunenburg, N. S. "I suffered terribly from stomach trouble and was so badly run down and weak that it was almost more than I could do to swing my sledge. I would have such awful pains in the pit of my stomach after eating that it would almost double me up like a horseshoe, and my food felt like a lump of iron in my stomach. Gas bloated me up terribly and I would be dreadfully nauseated. I couldn't sleep well, lost my appetite entirely and got in mighty bad shape all round.

"A lady who had been sick in bed before she took Tanlac was telling our neighbors what a grand medicine it was, so I thought I would give it a trial. Well, it simply rid me of all my troubles, and you can bet that if I ever get back in the condition Tanlac is the first thing I'll go after."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists

BLUENOSE STILL THE CHAMPION

Gloucester, Mass., Oct 26—Canada today retains her hold on the international fishermen's trophy, emblematic of the sailing championship of the North Atlantic seaboard when her W. J. Roue designed, Lunenburg built schooner Bluenose, Captain Angus Walters, defeated the United States flyer Henry Ford, Captain Clayton Morrissy, for the second time in two consecutive days' racing. The trophy will be awarded tomorrow. The Canadians lead at the finish line by seven minutes fifty-one seconds won after five hours of strenuous racing, in a wind ranging from ten to twenty-eight knots, could have been considerably increased had not Captain Walters reduced his canvas to the proportions carried by the American, after her foremast had been carried away, shortly after the schooners had squared away on the ten mile thresh to windward from the third to the fourth marks.

Could Have Won by Twenty Minutes

After the race Captain "Clayte" estimated that Angus would have beaten him by twenty minutes in the weather of the day had he wished to take advantage of the American's misfortune. At the same time he expressed the belief that the Ford had sailed better under shortened sail and insisted that in his opinion he could defeat Angus, if limited to four lowers. Certainly the Ford carried all she could lug throughout the last half of the course. With her decks awash to her cabin house and above, she tore through the water like a hydroplane gained perceptibly on the Bluenose during the latter half of the thresh, and charged down the last five mile leg to the finish line at a thirteen knot clip.

Her performance was only surpassed by that of the fast climbing and fast reaching Bluenose, which reduced to the same canvas as that carried by the Ford, gained six minutes, fifty-three seconds on her rival over the last two legs.

Wanted to Win in Fair.
Field and no Favors.

Walters frankly admitted after the race that while he wished most of all to defeat the American in a fair field and without favors, this was not his sole reason in shortening sail, he had established a commanding lead at the time the challenger's top stick went under the circumstances it would have been folly for him, he said, to have risked losing his own gear. He added that he would rather be beaten by Clayton Morrissy than any skipper he knew and said he was ready to race him any time the expatriated Nova Scotian said the word.

RAFFLES AT BAZAARS

Raffles at Bazaars for Charitable and Religious Objects

General Victor Williams, Commissioner of Ontario Police, has issued the following interpretation of the law of Canada regarding raffles at bazaars for religious or charitable objects and instructions to the Police authorities.

As there is widespread misunderstanding regarding these matters it is well to note carefully what the law is.

General Williams says:—
"In view of requests that come from time to time to this department from charitable organizations for permission to hold raffles, it seems necessary to again call the attention of police officers and of the municipal authorities and the public generally, to the provisions of the law.

"Sections 236 of the Criminal Code prohibits lotteries with an exception in favor of raffles (which are a form of lottery) for religious or charitable purposes. The exception is in the following terms:

Raffles for prizes of small value at any bazaar held for any charitable or religious object, if permission to hold the same has been obtained from the city or other municipal council, or from the Mayor, Reeve or other chief officer of the city, town or other municipality wherein such bazaar is held, and the articles raffled for there at have first been offered for sale and none of them are of a value exceeding fifty dollars."

Onus on Municipality

"It will be observed that the permission referred to in the sub-section is not that of the Attorney-General or the police authorities. It is the permission of the municipal authorities, the theory apparently being that if there is a strong local sentiment against that sort of thing the permission will not be granted. At all events, the responsibility is on the Mayor or Reeve or Municipal Council. These authorities have an absolute discretion. They can grant permission or they can refuse it.

"It will be further observed that permission is confined to bazaars, to bazaars that are being held for religious or charitable object. If permission should be granted by a municipal authority for an object that is not within the description of these words the permission would be ineffective, and the general prohibition would apply.

"Then if permission has been properly obtained, pursuant to the provision of the statute, it will be observed that there are two other conditions:

"The first condition is that the articles before being raffled must first have been offered for sale. In the opinion of the law officers of the Attorney-General's Department the intention of Parliament, whatever the interpretation of the law technically may be, was that the raffle should not take place until the articles to be raffled have been offered for sale at the bazaar, and also until it becomes reasonably clear that the articles will not be sold in the ordinary course—that is to say a raffle should come at or toward the end of the event. To begin selling tickets for the raffle as soon as, or shortly after the bazaar opens, is

Easier to Prevent

It is human to neglect health, but it is very unwise. It is far easier to prevent than it is to correct weakness of body and strength.

is a fruitful source of true vitamine-nourishment to help keep the body strong to resist disease. Protect your powers of resistance, take Scott's Emulsion!

Must Not Be Sold in Advance
"It is to be presumed that persons who conduct bazaars for charitable or religious purposes will want to obey the spirit and letter of the law, and if their attention is called to the matter they will no doubt conform to the suggestion of an officer that no raffling should take place, even where permission has been given by the municipal authorities, until it is reasonably clear that the articles will not be sold at the bazaar in the ordinary course.

"I am informed that it is not an unusual practice to sell tickets for articles to be raffled at bazaars days or even weeks in advance of the event. This is obviously improper, and where anything of that kind is attempted the parties ought to be warned, and if they persist prosecutions should follow.

The second condition is that no articles must be of a value greater than $50.00

In view of the general want of understanding of the law on the subject, and the obvious need of keeping the exception to the whole some provision of the law against lotteries within proper limits, it is desired that police officers will take special precautions to see that the law as above defined is observed.

Officers to Watch Proceedings

"Upon learning of an intended bazaar, with an accompanying raffle, the officer's duty will be to ascertain whether permission has been granted by the local municipal authorities. If so, he will then inquire whether the object is charitable or religious. If in doubt on either of these points, he will confer with the County Crown Attorney. If satisfied on both these points he ought then to see the managers of the affair and explain the law to them. It is unduly to persons desiring to raise money for religious or charitable purposes should be haled to court for breaches of the law, and the officer will find in almost every case a desire to comply with the law. In the event however of the law being disregarded the officer's duty will be to watch proceedings at the bazaar carefully, make note of the facts, and then confer with the County Crown Attorney as to what proceedings ought to be taken.

While this letter is an instruction to the officers of the Ontario Provincial Police, it will be sent as information to the Chiefs of Police and High Constables throughout the Province.

This law being part of the Criminal Code applies to the whole of Canada.
