

That Corn Will Go for Good

It will be ended forever in 48 hours, if you use a Blue-jay plaster.

The pain ends instantly when you apply it. Then the B & B wax gently loosens the corn. In two days it comes out, root and all.

No soreness, no discomfort. Nothing else known does what Blue-jay does.

That's why millions use it. You will never let corns disturb you when you find this out.

Nor will you ever pare them. Paring takes off just the top of the corn. And a slip of the blade means infection - sometimes a dangerous one.

The right way - the easy way - is to end them completely with this famous Blue-jay plaster. Prove it today.

A In the picture is the soft B & B wax. It loosens the corn.
B protects the corn, stopping the pain at once.
C wraps around the toe. It is narrowed to be comfortable.
D is rubber adhesive to fasten the plaster on.

The Intellectuality of Finger Nails.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

A certain young woman who married a man of great brains and ability was being discussed by some of her acquaintances the other day.

"I don't see how he, with all his brains, could have married her!" commented one of these critics who are always wondering why anyone marries anyone else.

"Why? Isn't she particularly clever?" asked another woman.

"My dear," rejoined the critic, "She has no brains at all. Her father would have been glad to send her to the best college in the country, and she was so stupid that she couldn't even get through high school. And she has absolutely no intellectual interests!"

The woman criticised is the mother of two children whom she is bringing up with rare common sense; she is a good housewife; and she is a thoroughly pleasant household presence. One can tell by the way her husband looks at her that he finds infinite pleasure and peace in her and in the home she makes for him.

And yet her critic asserts that she has no brains!

If the critic is right we certainly need a new definition of brains.

To me, this successful wife and mother is every bit as much a "brainless" woman as the most successful private secretary or woman lawyer. Of course, it is a different part of her brain which is developed, but surely it is just as valuable a part. We might get along without private secretaries or lawyers, but I don't see how we'd manage without mothers, do you? To be sure, the book part of this woman's brain is undeveloped. But doubtless there are portions of the brain of the popularly called "brainless" woman which are not particularly well developed. Notice some of this species and see how the back of the head, just above the nape of the neck, is shaped. Two to one you will find it flat. Well that is where the bump of domesticity out to be, the part of the brain that makes a woman capable of making a pleasant home. I think the woman who has that bump well developed has just as much right to be called "brainless" as the woman who has a superabundance of brain tissue in some other part of the head.

The kind of brains this woman has you might almost call the intellectuality of the heart. Besides this, there is an intellectuality of the finger tips which is just as important to the world as any other kind of cleverness. One young girl in this town is the envy of all her friends because she can do anything with her hands from trimming a wonderful hat or making a toothsome cake to upholstering a chair or papering a room. She does not care much for books or study, and consequently insists that she is stupid. I call her the most clever girl I know.

A certain young man is considered a failure by many because he could not succeed as a business man. But he is very happy and very skillful as a maker of beautiful pottery, and I call him eminently successful.

The intellectuality of the heart and of the finger tips is just as much needed in this world as any kind of cleverness. Don't make the mistake of undervaluing them.

Housework Drudgery!

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She brushes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and as Mrs. Briggs and others testify:

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of women's weaknesses, heals inflammation and ulceration. It tranquillizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces restful sleep.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any druggist persuade you that his unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit.

Mrs. BRIGGS, of 529 N. Washington St., Delphos, Ohio, writes: "Having taken your 'Favorite Prescription' for a bad case of intestinal disease and constipation with woman's ills, for which I was almost unable to do anything, I think I am safe in saying that there are no remedies in the world like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Purifying Lotion Tablets.' I am now enjoying the best of health, and thank Dr. Pierce for his wonderful medicines which have done me a world of good."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate liver and bowels.

Fads and Fashions

The very huge headdresses lately in vogue are now going out and those of more sensible proportions being worn.

Sleeves set into the bodice of the dress, but with pleats or frilling that hide the meeting, are to be seen more and more.

One-piece dresses, with coats to match, are shown for children. These are made of rough linen or light-weight cloth.

Skirts with becoming yokes, shaped over the hips and forming a panel at the back, are among the newest models.

Some charming little trills are made of black spotted tulle, held together around the neck by a tiny posy of flowers.

Crystal buttons are, according to the latest fad, sewn on the thick colored silk to match the collar of the decorated vest.

In some cases the head is almost completely swathed in fine black tulle as a headdress, tiny curls peeping from beneath.

Washable foulard is a new material, preferred by many to linen. It is much cooler than heavy linen and lighter in weight.

It is even more essential than ever this season that the shoes and stockings should match the gown with which they are worn.

Capt. J. Smith

BY H. L. RANN.

Two hundred and seventy-nine years ago this month Capt. John Smith, English adventurer, died in London in the fifty-second year of his age. He has earned a proud place in history as the inventor of the Smith family, which, according to the census of 1910, comprises three-fourths of the population and brains of this country. He was the first of 4,700,844 John Smiths now appearing in the telephone directories, by actual count, and nobody who runs for office under the primary system should forget it. Captain Smith was a plain, rugged citizen with a tense, hard-boiled cast of countenance, and he did a great deal toward reconciling the Indians to parting with their real estate. His favorite mode of reconciliation was extending the right hand of fellowship and following it up with the contents of a muzzle-loading shot gun. The Indian has almost no sense of humor, and after he had lost about all of the land in New England that didn't have to be plowed with a rock crusher he decided to surround Capt. Smith and remove his brains from the rest of his person. Chief Powhatan, who had just made a hearty meal off Capt. Smith's knapsack and neck ruffe, ordered the prisoner to lie down in one piece and, placing a hardwood under his left ear, informed him that something unpleasant was about to transpire. Just as two inflated warriors raised their clubs, Pocahontas, a daughter of Powhatan who expected to come out that spring, rushed upon the scene in great perturbation and a short skirt and cried, "Woodman, spare that tree." Powhatan was deeply affected and gave Capt. Smith to Pocahontas as a birthday present. Pocahontas hinted around quite a little about a church wedding, but while esteeming her highly as a friend Capt. Smith did not care to lumber up the oncoming generations of Smiths with any Indian blood, so he retreated from Pocahontas with considerable rapidity and returned to England. Pocahontas afterward married an unemotional widower named Rolfe, thereby removing her last chance to become a charter member of the Smith family and the founder of the real American aristocracy.

SOPER & MOORE

"Puff" Signalling Proposed.

A Boston Writer's Idea, for Use by Aviator.

London, June 10.—James Means, writing in the magazine Nature, from Boston urges that methods of visual aerial signalling be not neglected, as in the event of war the enemy may deliberately disturb or prevent communication by wireless telegraphy. For aerial scouting and other purposes, Mr. Means suggests "puff" signalling as a simple and trustworthy method.

"By this method," he says, "coloring matter is intermittently injected into the exhaust tube of the flying machine motor from a pipe. This is emitted in large and small puffs resembling very black smoke, whose durations correspond to the dashes and dots of the Morse code."

May Resign at End of Year.

London, June 10.—The Manchester Guardian newspaper says it is rumored that His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, may not wish to retain the Governor-Generalship of Canada beyond the end of the present year.

No definite decision has yet been come to the newspaper adds, nor has the illness of H. R. H. the Duchess of Connaught anything to do with the step, which, it is understood, is due to an entirely private arrangement made several months ago.

If His Royal Highness retires he will be succeeded by Lord Dudley, who recently retired as Governor-General of Australia. Before offering him this appointment the British government had decided that on the occurrence of a vacancy in the governorships of India or Canada, Lord Dudley should be asked to accept it.

Sensational Experience

London, June 10.—Frederick Haverly, a settlement worker of Kentish-town, North London, tells a remarkable story in the Express of kidnapping and branding.

He says he was lured into an automobile by two men, who drugged him. When he awoke he was in a cellar, tied hand and foot. He was taken upstairs to a room, where a number of men in black hoods tried to make him retract certain statements.

They tortured him with a flexible brand of steel around his head and branded his forehead with the letter "H" for heretic.

He was afterwards liberated in a fainting condition and found himself on the highroad near Barnet.

Regatta Meeting

Great Enthusiasm - Mr. A. W. Elected President.

The initial Regatta Committee held last night was large and great enthusiasm was shown.

The following were present: Mayor Ellis, Messrs. Hiscock, Croft, Bates, Hayward, Wood, H. Donnelly, Andrew Higgins, Hamlin, Martin, Councillor Ryan, Taylor, Ellis, Foran, Dowden, Mrs. Carew.

After Mr. Hiscock had addressed the meeting, the Secretary read out of last meeting which confirmed and Mr. Croft made a statement that there was a small on hand with three sets of the Judges' boat which was last year.

To the deep regret of Mr. Hiscock read a letter from President, Hon. John Harvey, stating that he was tendering resignation, thanking the committee for their loyalty and help always extended and promising to take the interest in and extend all possible to the Committee in future years.

Mr. Hiscock paid an eloquent to the ability displayed by every during his tenure of office, courtesy and consideration, opinions of the members of committee.

Mr. W. J. Higgins in an eloquent speech delivered his similar strain and in acknowledgment of his splendid services to the committee proposed that Mr. Harvey be placed for all time on the Honorary members. This was by acclamation. The meeting adjourned and after the general were admitted Councillor O. T. J. Foran (News) and T. J. Noonan, the able Secretary, who has been 25 years on the committee, now tendered his resignation as Mr. Higgins observed the would not look like our Deputy Mr. Noonan absent from the ship, and that he for one would do it if such occurred. Mr. Noonan decided to hold the office another year at least and his
