The Morning Post and Chronicle editorially urge the British Government to reconsider its decision not to participate in the Panama Pacific Exposition. Contentment.

I used to sort o' pine and banker to be a well fed village banker, with money in my pawls; I used to stand where men were banking and listen to the fings clanking, and think how sweet it was. T h e banker marked my wish and told me that I was full of prunes. "Behold me," he said, in sombre tones, "a man by care distressed, confounded, though at all times I am surrounded by heaps of golden bones. I'm old before my time with worry; and every business flare and flurry puts gray hairs on my head; and sometimes when the day is ended, and to my palace I have wended, I wish that I were dead. He satisfied," the banker muttered: "you have your home, your bread is buttered, and peace before you lies; side-step the business hurry-burry, and do your Christmas shopping early, and sweat ten million flies." And every man whose job I covet admits at once he doesn't love it; it rather makes him tired; some other jobs have made him jealous; he looks with envy on the fellows who snaps are much desired. Perhaps some chap is sore as blazes because I sit here stringing phrases together into rhyme; he thinks, the discontented blighter, if he could push my old typewriter, he'd have a bully time. But Peace, which holds our admiration, belongs to nary task or station. It isn't bought or sold; and Peace, the only thing that matters, will sometimes seek the man in latters, and shun the man of gold.

Your Duty.

Nothing to do with the Custom House, good friends. Its only reference just now is to yourself. Let us suppose that you are a man of family with sufficient of this world's goods to keep them in comfort. Very well. You did not reach this satisfactory state of affairs without care and labour—few men do. Suppose you are awakened some night with shouts of alarm ringing in your ears. Too late then to talk of prudence; too late then to say, "If I had only, etc. etc." That "if" means too much to many forgetful people. It is not always the duty of a self-respecting citizen to protect his home and thus provide for those within it. Is it any more than his duty to those depending on him to protect them as far as possible. Can you call your property your own when it is not insured? The answer to this argument is to carry insurance with Percie Johnson's agency, the most popular office in Newfoundland and the least expensive.—aug 5/18

C. N. Armstrong, Montreal, Conservative candidate for Colne Valley, declares he would not object to Ireland having the same kind of Home Rule as Canada has, there would have to be such a system applicable to Scotland and Wales as the House of Commons had too much on hand already to attend to trifling local matters. He added, "there is too much blind party following at Westminster and he wants to represent those who are opposed as well as those voting for him."

VANCOUVER, August 5.
Four thousand salmon fishermen have gone on strike on the Fraser River, because on Saturday the canneries announced that the price of fish would be materially reduced. S. A. Picnic.

The Citadel Corps held its annual Sunday School picnic yesterday at Lester's Field. There was a very large attendance and the different refreshment booths were liberally patronized. Both the junior and senior bands were present, and their playing added greatly to the pleasure of the assembled hundreds. During the afternoon an open air service was conducted by Adjutant Hargrove, and perhaps one of the strangest sights, and without doubt one of the most beautiful, was when a man pushing his way through the crowd knelt at the drum in the centre of the ring formed by the bandsmen. At 9 o'clock the "all out" signal was given and tired and happy the great crowd quietly dispersed, thus bringing to a close another of those events which go towards brightening the lives of both young and old.
