Britain's Ensign.

Our Trinity correspondent in his last weekly contribution, published in Saturday's issue of the Telegram, discusses a very important matter, and with his usual earnestness when on the subject of national affairs makes a good case for the greater education of the boys and girls of our schools in the symbolism of flags, particularly the flag of Britain. The Union Jack is familiar to all, but how many know of its origin and design, or could answer any question off hand on either point. The young school teacher who instructed her class that the make up of the Union Jack contained three crosses, red, white and blue, erred rather more on the side of zeal, and should not be taken too severely to task for her (under the circumstances) pardonable inaccuracy. Such statements, however, go to prove that there is need for the more careful study of the flag of Empire and its heraldic symbolism. Then, too, as our correspondent notes, more care should be exercised in the ordering of miniature national flags, whether Jacks, White, Blue or Red Ensigns, the design of the Union, being in the cases of stamped cotton flags, especially, nearly always wrong. If such flags are being purchased in Japan, Germany, or any other foreign country, buyers should make sure that the principal emblem is not of bastard design. Too much care cannot be exercised in the selection of the correctly made flag of Britain, and it practically constitutes an offence—if not an insult to the dignity and greatness of the Empire to be waving and flying flags which are not officially and heraldically accurate in design.

As a matter of fact the national banner of Britain should be called the Union Flag, though ordinarily it is known as the Union Jack. The latter is a diminutive of the former, and the term, in strictness, should be confined to small union flags, bordered white, flown from the jackstaff fixed to the bows of naval and merchant ships. The original flag or banner of England was the red cross of St. George on a white field, the central design of the present flag. With the union of Scotland the white saltire of St. Andrew on a blue field was added, and on the union of the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in 1801 the cross of St. Patrick, a red saltire on a white field, was, by royal proclamation, ordered to be incorporated in the design, and the heralds began their device of the flag as we know it to-day, containing the triple crosses of St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick. It will be noted that in the Union Flag that the red cross of St. Patrick is not in the centre of the white cross of St. Andrew. This is explained in "Hulme's Flags of the World" in this manner: "The scarlet cross of St. George is equally fringed on either side by the white border or fimbriation that represents the original white field, and the addition of the white cross of St. Andrew on its field of blue fitted in very happily. When, however, another X like cross had to be provided for the admission of Ireland to the Union, a difficulty arose in the placing of the red saltire over the white one, as the former being of equal width would, if superimposed, entirely obliterate that of St. Andrew. A compromise was arrived at, however, which shows in the flag in that awkward looking break in the continuity of direction of the arms of the red cross of Ireland, by its portions being thrown out of the centre of the white oblique bands, so that in each portion the crosses of Scotland and Ireland are clearly distinguished from each other." But here is the particular point to be noted and the principal one contended for by W.J.L. When the Union flag is flown it should always be with the broad white stripe nearest to the head of the flagstaff. (See design of flag at head of this column.) The colors can be filled in with crayons as an object lesson. It would be quite possible as our readers will see, on a little study of the matter, to turn the flag with the red stripe upmost: but this is incorrect, and trivial as the matter may appear, there is a right and wrong to it, and the point therefore should not be overlooked.

Alumni Association St. Bon's College.

A meeting of the old boys of St. Bonaventure's was held at the college yesterday to complete preparations for the coming celebration on July 14th. Mr. W. R. Howley, the President, occupied the chair. The pupils will meet at 8 o'clock on the 14th at the college where those who have not already procured tickets may get them. After signing the roll the members of the Association will attend Mass in the College Chapel which will be celebrated by Rev. Mons. Donnelly, P.P., Conception. His Grace will impart Benediction, should the state of his health permit him to be present. The breakfast will follow, after which the oration will be delivered by Rev. Father O'Flynn, B.A.

Susu From North.

S.S. Susu, which arrived at 5 p.m. Saturday from the Fogo mail service, reports fishery prospects good. The ship brought a small freight and the following passengers: S. J. Blackler, J. Wells, Rev. J. Baggs, A. Miller, R. Starks, Mrs. A. Abbott, Mrs. W. Abbott, Miss E. Marshall, Miss J. Edgar, Miss L. Morris, Miss A. Wilks, Mrs. B. Vincent, Miss J. Parsons. The Susu sails again at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Capt. Geo. Penney, late of Carbonear and well known in St. John's, who has retired from active marine duties and now resides in New York, is visiting friends in town and on the peninsula.
Mr. Mack Garland, son of Mr. W. J. Garland, J.P., Island Cove, Bay de Verde, has returned home, having benefited much from the course of optical treatment at the hands of a city specialist.
Mr. J. W. N. Johnstone, local agent Canadian Government Merchant Marine who has been on an extended trip to Western Canada returns by the Digby due this evening.
Mr. E. C. Brown of King's Cove, was a passenger by S.S. Prospero on Saturday on his usual semi-annual business visit to the city.

Bad Roads.

REPAIRS NEEDED ON "COW PATH."
Motorists who have recently driven around Conception Bay complain of the atrocious condition of the road between Upper Gullies and Clark's Beach. In nearly every case the bridges are badly in need of repair and many are even dangerous. The roads are nothing but ruts and stones on the "cow path," that very appropriately named section of the road between Seal Cove and Upper Gullies, the road bed consists of nothing but loose stones. If money is to be spent on road work, there is sufficient to be done to this road to keep men occupied all the summer.

Splendid Sermons at Cochrane Street.

At Cochrane Street Methodist Central Church yesterday, the Rev. L. G. Hudson, B.A., who is taking the preaching appointments of the Rev. C. H. Johnson, B.D., who is now enjoying a well earned vacation, occupied the pulpit at the morning service, preaching a well thought out and up-to-date discourse from the fifth chapter of St. Matthew and 89th verse. At the evening service a splendid congregation assembled to hear the grand old man of Methodism, the beloved General Superintendent, the Rev. Dr. Chown, of Toronto. The service was in charge of Rev. L. G. Hudson, the opening prayer being made by the Rev. Dr. Curtis. Dr. Chown, before taking up his sermon, stated that he remembered very well the day when he laid the corner stone of the church in the height of a terrible rainstorm, and said that he was delighted to see on behalf of Methodism, such a beautiful edifice erected for the worship of God. The sermon was based on the following words, taken from the 77th psalm, "And I said this is my infirmity, but I will remember the year of the right hand of the most high." The sermon was considered a masterpiece, delivered with great force and energy and will not soon be forgotten by the great throng of worshippers present. The singing by the congregation was perhaps, the best heard since the opening of the church, the grand old hymns with inspiring tunes were heartily sung, the grand organ being heard to splendid advantage under the skilful manipulation of Mr. Arthur Mews, C.M.G.

The boats will make good time on Wednesday, July 12th, after crews have had their tea and taken in side shows, etc., by being over to N. B. S. Garden Party at Woodley's.—July 10th.

Carbonear Unemployed.

MEN SENT TO GRAND FALLS.

A mass meeting of the unemployed residents of Victoria Village, near Carbonear, was held in the latter town last week. According to Hon. Dr. Campbell, Minister of Agriculture and Mines, the meeting was a quiet one, and the men discussed the possibilities of obtaining work. Rumours have been spread, however, stating that a demand for immediate work was made and that the attitude of the men was so threatening that the Government was compelled to take immediate action. Dr. Campbell said that Mr. Gillingham, agent of the Anglo Newfoundland Developing Company visited the district and gave work to 75 men at Grand Falls.

If you are down to pond looking at crews practising on Wednesday, July 12th, just drop over to Woodley's Farm for your tea at N. B. S. Garden Party and stay down all evening.—July 10th.

The Weather.

BIG DROP IN THERMOMETER.
With that glorious inconsistency for which it is famed, the weather which yesterday morning was reminiscent of the Tropics, changed last evening to something approaching the Polar regions. The morning and early afternoon were gloriously warm and the thermometer stood at 76 degrees in the shade. As the evening came on, a chill wind and fog set in and the thermometer actually dropped to 42 degrees, a fall of 34 degrees in a few hours.

The War Memorial.

PADRE NANGLE WILL HAVE DESIGNS PREPARED—KING WILL UNVEIL MEMORIAL.

Lieut. Col. T. Nangle, C.P., who leaves for England on the "Digby," has been authorized by the Executive of the War Memorial Committee to have designs prepared for the National Memorial. Major W. H. Green, the architect who rebuilt many of the buildings in St. John's after the fire, will co-operate with Padre Nangle in this work. Artists will be asked to submit designs in which there must be embodied a leading light, a cross, and figures symbolical of the Royal Navy, Army, Merchant Marine, and the Nursing Services. These figures are to be done in bronze. Padre Nangle expects that the designs will be ready to be submitted to the War Memorial Executive by Christmas, and that the Memorial itself will be in readiness to be unveiled on July 1st next. His Majesty the King will unveil the monument electrically through the courtesy of the Commercial Cable Company. Plaster casts of the various designs will be placed on exhibition in St. John's some time in December.

CENETERY MONUMENTS.

Lieut. Col. Nangle said he hoped that two monuments would be erected and unveiled on the battlefields this summer, in memory of the Newfoundlanders who fought on them. One of these monuments will be erected at Kierberg Ridge, and will be unveiled by King Albert of Belgium. The other will be placed on the field of Guedecourt. It is hoped that Marshal Foch will consent to unveil it. The second part of the work of the War Graves Commission will soon begin. This consists of the removal of the old wooden crosses and the erection of permanent stone monuments which will be modelled according to the wishes of the relatives of the dead. The cost of erecting these monuments is being borne by the Imperial War Graves Commission and each dominion pays its per capita share.

GRAVES FOUND.

Padre Nangle told the Telegram that a message had been received from Berlin to the effect that a cemetery containing the graves of 23 Newfoundlanders who had died in captivity, had been found. They had been buried by the Lower Alaskan Regiment. The War Graves Commission had been looking for this cemetery for some time, but its location was some five miles from that near which the search had been made.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union had a very successful Flower Sale on Saturday. The net proceeds, $243.00, were given to the Girls' Industrial Home.—July 10th.

Loyal Orange Association.

ANNUAL CHURCH PARADE.
The members of Royal Oak and Leeming Lodges of the Loyal Orange Association held their Annual Church Parade yesterday afternoon, attending Divine Service at St. Thomas's Church. There was an exceptionally large attendance, some 400 members being present including the P.G.M., A. W. Piccott and P.P.G.M. Cave of the Grand Lodge. The parade was headed by the C.L.B. Band, the route to church being from Victoria Hall, via Military Road. Rev. H. C. Earp, Rector of St. Thomas's delivered a masterly address, appropriate to the occasion. After the ceremony the society returned to church and returned to the hall via Duckworth Street. A vote of thanks to the Rector of St. Thomas's for his discourse, proposed by Grand Master Piccott and seconded by Deputy Grand Master Gordon Bradley, was passed unanimously. On Wednesday night there will be a banquet and other celebrations in Victoria Hall at which a large attendance is expected. The speakers have not been arranged but will be called from the gathering.

The Republican army has evidently transferred its headquarters from Malin to Limerick, as Sunday night's official statement was issued from the latter place. Describing the general situation, the statement claims that the whole of the West, South and Midlands stand firm for a Republic, but admits the loss of Kilkenny Castle, Thurles, Marlborough, Nenagh and Shannon Bridge, which are held by Free Staters. It also says the Republicans have evacuated Sligo, and fighting is in progress in the vicinity.
