

Fresh Fish Shipments Direct From Canada

SCHEME OF MAJOR GREEN IS NOW
COME INTO PRACTICAL FOCUS AND PLAN IS OUTLINED.

From time to time the last few months passing references have been made to the scheme of Major Hugh A. Green for the organization of a great trade in fresh fish based on Nova Scotia and having its main marketing outlet in England, with tentacles reaching to the Continent. During the last month what were previously but proposals and negotiations have come to some extent into practical focus, and the originator of the scheme is now able to speak with some certainty of the lines to be followed.

A Fish Luncheon. Towards the close of last month a meeting, combined with a fish luncheon, was held at the Savoy Hotel, London. Major Green presided, and among the gathering were Sir Thomas Lipton and several foreign representatives. One side of the reception room was given to the display of Canadian fish caught on the North Atlantic fishing banks. The fish, although twenty-three days old, was still in prime condition, and, apparently, quite as good as any live quality fish caught in the North Sea. The items on the luncheon menu were fish caught on the North Atlantic Banks, all of which were excellent.

After the luncheon, Major Hugh Green, in a speech regarding the prospects of the scheme, said that it was intended to form a company, which would commence operations in this country about the end of September. The fish would be brought over here by special insulated steamers and landed at Newport (Mon.). It was hoped that, as a start, two steamers would be sent over weekly with a cargo of 500 to 1,000 tons per boat, and when the scheme was in full working order a delivery would be made every day.

Supply is inexhaustible. It is estimated that the North Atlantic fishing banks have enough fish to feed the next generation, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The fish will be landed at Newport about twelve days after it has been taken out of the water, and the selling prices should be fifty per cent. under the present prices now ruling in this country.

An idea of the wealth of these fish banks is given in recent statistics. A steam trawler working on the North Atlantic fishing banks catches as much fish in a day as a fleet of ten steam trawlers does when operating in the North Sea.

One great point to remember about this scheme is that the fish is not frozen or chilled. It is fresh fish packed in ice, and will be carried to Newport in special insulated ships. The possibilities of the scheme are enormous, and should, Major Green thinks, provide a gateway for fishmongers to obtain cheap fish, and will surely be a boon to many fish friers.

Trial Consignment to Billingsgate. As a sequel to arrangements entered into by Major Green during his recent visit to the Dominion, a trial consignment of fresh fish packed in ice reached Billingsgate from Canada early this month. The fish, which comprised fresh haddock and catfish was entrusted to Messrs. Peter Forge for sale, and created a very favorable impression, the condition being all that could be desired.

Should subsequent arrivals reach this country in the same excellent order, there will be a big future for this scheme. The progress of the venture will be watched with interest. The full success of the scheme will largely depend on whether or no supplies can be relied upon to reach the London market regularly.

When all is said and done, the journey across the Atlantic does not occupy any longer than that from some of the remotest parts of Norway, whence consignments come to Billingsgate, while the Canadian waters are quite as accessible as the so-called "White Sea" grounds regularly fished by the Hull and Grimsby trawlers.—Imperial Food Journal

Pleasing Playlet

"TAKE MY ADVICE."

Last night's performance of the 3 act comedy drama "Take My Advice," at St. Joseph's Parish Hall, was played before a large and delighted audience. A pretty love story runs through the play. Jud Fenton, "a town character who has never been accused of working," is impersonated by Mr. Francis Donnelly, in a manner that keeps the audience in a good humor all through. Mr. R. P. Redmond plays the part of Jimmie Sampson, "whose business was waking up towns," and he carried this art right through the show very acceptably. Mr. A. M. Cleary filled the role of Bob Manton, Editor of the "Eureka News," and filled the post with much dignity. Mrs. Nelson Dodd "A social power in Eureka and President of the Uplift Society," was impersonated by Miss Jean Dicks, who is rapidly becoming a favorite in this work; her acting was much admired. As Peggy Acton, Miss Kathleen Hayes, acquitted herself in a manner that met with the hearty approval of the audience and added another laurel to her reputation. Capt. J. J. O'Grady's reputation on the stage is well known and he played the part of John Wargin as would be expected of him. Miss Gertrude Ryan is one of the city's favorites on the stage, and her name is always a guarantee of a high class performance. As Verger Mannon, she was up to her usual high standard. The role of Marcia Wargin, daughter of John Wargin, was filled by Miss Estelle Shea and she acquitted herself in a very capable manner, giving much grace to the part.

Songs were rendered between the acts by Miss Shea, and Messrs. F.

Neville and R. P. Redmond; while Mr. J. Willard contributed a pleasing violin selection. The Mount Cashel Band also rendered some excellent music between the acts. The show will be repeated to-night.

First Shipment of Rails

Messrs. Furness Withy Company have been advised that the S.S. Lord Londonderry left Barrow-in-Furness, on Sunday afternoon, with a cargo of rails for the Newfoundland Government Railway. The Lord Londonderry is of 5756 gross and 3520 net tons and was built in 1902. She is 427 feet long, 53 feet beam, 21.2 feet deep, and is owned by the Head Line of Belfast. Furness Withy Company are the local agents.

This shipment amounts to 5,000 tons and will be followed by similar quantities which will be landed at Clarendville and Heart's Content.

The Bubbling Brook went splashing through. The Sunny Meadow to the pond. Then o'er the Old Mill Wheel it dashed To find the ocean far beyond.

"Granddaddy Bullfrog loved to listen to the music of the running water. Every now and then he would puff out his cheeks and make a loud croak. Then away would scurry all the little tadpoles and fishes to hide among the rushes."

"What a wonderful tongue you have," exclaimed the little rabbit, who was sitting near Granddaddy Bullfrog, when we finished yesterday's story, you remember, Little Reader.

"A pretty good tongue with which to catch flies," answered the old gentleman frog, with a solemn wink. "You see," he went on to explain, "it is fastened in front of my mouth, leaving it free behind. I throw out the free end, which is covered with a sticky liquid. No fly can get away from me, for I pop it into my mouth just as quickly as I dart out my tongue."

"I'll watch you," laughed the bunny boy. "Catch a big fly, please."

"Hope a giant fly comes by," laughed the funny old gentleman frog. "I'm still hungry."

Dear me, it was some time before a fly drew near, so the obliging old frog went on to tell more to his little rabbit friend.

"You didn't know that I have teeth?" asked Granddaddy Bullfrog, all of a sudden, just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat. Goodness gracious, he almost startled the bunny boy by his quick question.

"No, I never, never did," answered the truthful little rabbit. "Where are they, I can't see them."

"Guess not," answered Granddaddy Bullfrog, with a laugh. "They are very tiny, and only on the upper jaw and on my palate. Dr. Quack, the famous duck doctor, saw them once. He's the only person I know who has," and with a chuckle, the funny old frog dived into the water.

"Wonder where he has gone," thought the bunny boy. "Maybe he has just taken a dip to wet his skin," and with a hop, skip and jump the little rabbit came close to the Weeping Willow Tree that stood at the water's edge. Up on a limb swung the empty stocking-like nest of pretty Mrs. Oriole. Her last summer's nest, you know, for this little bird had not yet arrived from the South.

Just then, quick as a winkery wink, there came a loud splash in the water. There on the other bank stood the Farmer's boy. He had thrown a stone at the little rabbit, but, luckily, it had fallen into the pond.

Without waiting to take another look, away went the bunny boy, clip-perty, clip-perty, clip-perty, clip-perty, lipperty, lipperty, lip to the Shady Forest. He wasn't going to stand there and be a target for stones. No sirree, I don't blame him if he has already hopped into the next story, do you, my Little Reader?

"The Lure" Acclaimed the Season's Best

ARLIE MARKS PLAYERS GIVE MASTERFUL PERFORMANCE AT CASINO.

"The Lure" is the title of last night's play by the Arlie Marks Players, and to say that it satisfied the tastes of its audience is simply putting it mildly. The large audience at the various climaxes applauded thunderously, whilst at other times the suspense was so great you could almost hear a pin drop. Many claim that this play is the best seen so far as it brought out the dramatic ability of each performer besides being accurately handled. The plot is a deep one and is treated with dexterity and is not an objectionable episode. The reviewer does not intend to give away the plot here as it will not be fair to those attending the remaining performances, but advise is that no person in search of good dramatic entertainment should miss "The Lure."

Miss Arlie Marks was really splendid in the role of Molly Sayers, the country girl wanted in the underworld. Her acting is natural and her enunciation perfect. Miss Daisy Le Roy plays a strong characterization of Bonnie Bessie, the dope victim. Paul Brady as the Secret Service agent is all at home in this popular role. Ray Wasmund plays Jack Sayers, a cadet from the underworld, with perfect ease and his acting is all that could be desired. Miss Agnes Stuts as Mrs. Cassidy is both humorous and realistic in her characterization. Miss Louise Adell as Kate Lamonte also gives a good performance. Walter DeLuna gives a faithful interpretation of Silas Cassidy, a hard bodied farmer. Lindsay E. Perrin played the popular role of Bob Allison in a splendid manner. The remainder of the cast all give good account of their respective parts. The entire bill is well interpreted and should be seen by all lovers of the spoken drama.

The vaudeville is a brilliant treat of novelty, song and dance. The Great Andrews in his escape trick held the audience in suspense. Having been suspended in the air with his head hanging downwards, he demonstrated how he could get out of a straight-jacket in quick time. This stunt is indeed a sensation. The Scotch Lads and Lassies appeared in a Musical Review altogether different from any of their previous numbers. This number was beautifully done and was vigorously applauded. Scotty Allison made a decided hit in her song to which she was given a good ovation.

Winsor Tower and Light

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Mr. Editor.—The thousands of our Fishermen and Mariners, who from time to time visit the port of St. John's, and the thousands of others of our Countrymen who gather their livelihood from the depths of the Ocean, will learn with much pleasure of the erection of a guiding light on Chain Rock at the entrance to the Capital City.

The Tower from which this light will cast its radiant rays out over the waves of St. John's Bay, and along the placid waters of the Harbor, is now in course of erection, and will, in a few weeks be completed, and it will ever remain a lasting monument to our worthy and popular Minister of Marine & Fisheries—Captain W. C. Winsor.

Many years ago the necessity for such a light was spoken of by our Fishermen, but none of our Governments had the welfare of the Fishermen and Mariners at heart to undertake such a project for their benefit, until the mantle of Marine and Fisheries fell upon the shoulders of one of themselves, and one who thoroughly knows the necessity for such a light, and the consolation it will bring to poor sea-tossed Mariners.

I understand, the Monro Government readily and graciously accepted Captain Winsor's request, for the erection of this light, and I think Mr. Editor, you and many readers will agree with me that it would be only fair and right that a little act of courtesy to the gallant Captain that this light should be named the "Winsor Light."

In making this request Mr. Editor, I am sure I am voicing the wishes and sentiments of the Fishermen and Seamen of Newfoundland, who will feel pleased to know that the Country offers this little tribute to Captain Winsor's worth.

Thanking you in anticipation for the publishing of this letter.

Yours truly,
VIA LUCIS.

Searching for the Missing Link

PEKING, April 11.—(By Canadian Press).—With a caravan of 150 camels leading the way into Mongolia, the third Asiatic expedition of Roy Chapman Andrews to find "the missing link" has set out from here.

The scientists and technicians will leave about the end of April in eight motor cars. They expect to catch up with the camel caravan beyond Kalgan, in the Gobi desert and from that point westward the expedition will wander for five months.

The original object of the Asiatic expedition has already been attained. That is, sufficient evidence has been found in Mongolia to prove the theory of President Osborne, of the American Natural History Society advanced twenty-five years ago, that Asia was the centre to manaplan life and distribution to other parts of the world. The present expedition will have largely to do with the study of rock formations of later periods and with the discovery, if possible, of clues or evidence of human development and origin. Whereas many authorities believe that man first appeared where in Asia no one has yet seen that man, like the mammoths, has been in the Central Asia part of which Mongolia is an important part.

Mr. Andrews hopes at the conclusion of the third expedition to be able to announce the birthplace of the missing link or—as the expedition leader calls it—Adam's cradle.
