The weather a year ago today-Dec. 20—was comparatively mild, and what was rather remarkable was the slight change in the 24 hours. The lowest change in the 24 hours. The lowest point reached during the day was $1 degrees above zero, and the highest 31.5 degrees above, a difference of only one-half a degree. The temperature today was still milder, the reading at 8 o'clock this morning being 40 degrees above zero.

Lower the first contribution was the $200 from the Turville estate. These two sums had been invested in loan society debentures. Another gift of $1.000 which will shortly fall due will probably be invested in the same way. Aldermen Pass Resolution Calling states they cannot vote for members of the state parliament. In England, women, married and single, have parish, district and county suffrage. It was a remarkable vote that took place in the British House of Com-mons on March 17, of this year. By 182 to 68 votes Sir Charles McClaren's One of the last acts of the dying motion, declaring that the disability council of 1904 was the passing of a of women in respect to parliamentary franchise ought to be removed, was carried. Sir Charles pointed to the example of Australia and New Zealand, as one worthy to be followed. While this accomplished nothing, be-cause the House of Lords has yet to stormed, it shows a delightful change in sentiment since the days when the mention, in the House, of women as voters, merely provoked ripple of amusement. Irish Women Vote.

"Irish women, married and single, vote for all officers except members of Parliament. In Ontario, take the Province over, not ten in every 100 women of the adult population can express an opinion on even the members of the municipal council that governs the place in which they live, and makes the bylaws they must obey. We do not believe that this is right.

'Should our contention seem to you fair and reasonable, we ask that you pass a resolution calling upon the Provincial Government to confer upon women the municipal ballot." Mr. C. B. Keenleyside followed Mrs. McDermid. He said that as far back as 1869, the women of England had been given the franchise in municipal matters. Twelve years later the municipal ballot was conferred upon the women of Scotland, and in 1898 the women of Ireland were authorized to vote in municipal matters. And in all these places the women had exercised the ballot in a most admirable manner. Wyoming, 25 years after the women had been given the ballot, has sent forth a resolution passed by the State state for their personal acts, and who are vitally interested in public affairs, we believe they should have the right to protect themselves and their children and to mould public acts through the only channel the law of our land recognizes—the ballot bey. all countries to extend the franchise to women.

Rev. C. T. Scott also spoke in favor in favor of conferring the ballot on of the resolution, and brought forth women, and included the principle in some strong arguments.
