FINAL 36 HOLES

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, Sept. 18 .- That the Canadian ladies' open golf championship will come back to the Dominion after trips to the United States and Great Britain for the last five years was made certain this afternoon, when Mrs. W. G. Fraser of the Royal Ottawa club, defeated the lone American survivor Mrs. Edward Baker, jun., of Boston, b and 4 in the upper bracket semi-final of the twentieth annual tournament. The other match between the oft-times Toronto rivals, Miss Ada MacKenzie of Mississauga, and Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen of the Toronto golf club, also resulted in a 5 and 4 victory, Miss MacKenzie being the winner. The definite location of the crown for the coming year will be decided tomorrow when Mrs. Fraser and Miss MacKenzle meet in the thirty-six-hole final. Par and the cards of the four players are: back to the Dominion after trips to Joe Simpson, Edmonton Defence Player, to Join Tex Rickard's Sextet.

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, Sept. 18.-Purchase of Joe Simpson, star defense player of the Edmonton professional hockey team by the New York club of the National Hockey League, was confirmed here today by T. P. Gorman, manager of Tex Rickard's new N. H. L. entry. He also intimated that Curtchy Morrison and Roy Hickey, of the Edmonton team also figured in the deal. Simpson is recognized as one of the flashiest players in professional hockey. Mr. Gorman added that any further information would have to come from the office of the New York Hockey club in Madison Square Garden. Commenting on the deal, the Citizen this evening says: "Many Citizen this evening says: scoffed last spring at the ability of the New York club to overcome the waiver clauses to get Simpson out of the Western Canada League but apparently they found a way to accomplish it."

According to a special despatch to the Citizen from Calgary, the deal Accordis to a special despatch to the Citizen from Calgary, the deal against Clement.

The addition of seats to the Pittsburg field for the world series will bring the total capacity up to something like 50,000, according to officials of the Pittsburg club. If that estimate is realized, there is little doubt that the world series of 1925 will be another million-dollar affair.

Louis Guisto is through with baseball, it is said. He goes out a martyr, though there is not a drum beat for him that we have heard. Guisto did more than forty Ruths when the time came that a country needed something.

Guisto learned to play ball in California, and one day he left California to play ball in the east with the reputation of being one of the best "native sons" who had graduated from coast baseball.

A later day he went to war.

He was gassed, outrageously gassed by the most dastardly method of warfare to which a so-called civilized nation ever resorted.

He came home and when he thought he had recovered he tried to play ball again for Cleveland. But the hurt was too deep, too lasting for athletic work. He thought that a return to California might help him and he went back to his native state to play.

But he was burned out. His fight had been valiant and his courage beyond price. He batted a two-bagger ope afternoon in Sacramento and when he had reached second base he fell down. His team mates picked him up and carried him to the bench, but he has not played ball since.

He gave all he had, first to his game and then to his country, and then tried again for his game. A player gets two columns of flapdoodle daily because he was fined $5,000 for violating the rules of his life.

This is the bunch, and then the local boys who upheld Western's hopes so well last year. Ken McFarlane is all set for another try at the field events: Cam Wilson is back in the running again for the sprint competitions; Ken Hunter will be there for his specialized race, the half mile; Jerry Jordan is aiming to repeat in the quarter mile, and Basil Flood has the mile grind well imprinted on his mind again.

The team has been on the oval at the Western campus all this week, smoothing out the kinks brought about by long inactivity, but the first real day of training starts sext Monday, when Coach Dr. Smith aims to put the boys through their first real tests of the season.

The main aim of Western this year is the intercollegiate championship, but, added to that, they have several other important meets on their list. One of these is a three-cornered meet with McMaster and O. A. C., and will be known as a sort of western intercollegiate affair. The first event of the season is the school meet, which falls on Oct. 9, and this will act as a trying out process for the athletes who have out process for the athletes who he aspirations to become members Western's first team.
