THE GRAND JURY.

A Good Presentment to Chief Justice Wil-

The grand jury of the county of York presented themselves to Chief Justice Wilson yesterday at neon in the courtihouse and Mr G M Rose, the foreman, read the jury's presentment. The jury congratulated the court on the lightness of the calendar. They had visited the jail and found it in a state reflecting credit on the officials. They , gretted to notice the number of inmater not confined on any criminal offence. They sugges, ed the advisability of a law to emdirect to th. general hospital, where they would receive the benefits of skilled medical aid and good narsing instead of sending them to jail. At the central prison they found the cenvicts hearty, healthy and well employed. The healthy and well employed. The Mercer reformatory, they considered, was an institution which filled a want long felt in the country. It was under the management of ladies well qualified to conduct it efficiently, and the hope was expressed that the unfortunate women who were committed to it would be improved by their incarceration. In one wing was found a department in which were some fifty little Mr. Erastus Jackson of Newmarket, the ladies against Washburne as criminal proceedings against Washburne are outlawed. girl waifs, whose heartless mothers had pavements, sewers, etc.

A communication from Messrs Robinson & Kent was referred back.

Several discussions arose, mainly out of the engineer's report, bearing on improvements in the city sidewalks and pavements.

The great question of cedar-block pavement versus stone was taken up and warmly discussed by the board. It was proposed that a deputation of three members of the board should visit Detroit and other American cities for the purpose of inspecting their can cities for the purpose of inspecting their pavement and sewage systems. This was laid over for future consideration.

A meeting was held yesterday evening in the executive committee chamber, city hall, of the memorial volume, finance and music committees. No business of importance men and representatives to the executive committee. CHRONIQUES.

Mr. Crooks, we understand, has decide to retire from public life. It is not an easy matter to select his successor. The creation of a minister of education was tentative or at the most experimental, and there is a considerable opinion that favors taking the ousiness out of the political arena, and restoring the office of superintendent of education and the council of public instruction Mr. Crooks has been an unlucky ministe though his administration has had many good features in it. The probability is that with Mr. Wood's retirement and now that of Mr. Crook's, there will be not only two new ministers but a considerable re-distribution of the portfolios all round.

The World announced the local elections Sunday, some journals think we have been "sold," to quote their words. Our prognostication, however, is about right, with rather than in March. Three clear weeks after the house rises is all the government or the people for that matter, want to subnit their case to the electorate.

But of far greater interest than the local elections is the financing of the Pacific syndicate. Have they succeeded in raising the money necessary to carry on their immense undertakings? We do not believe that as yet they have. And pending a definite announcement of success to-day, we venture the prediction of failure, and that they will practically have to give control of the government and ask a guarantee of their onds or stock. Thus guaranteed their paper ought to sell at a small cut below par. There have been so many announce ments made of the thing being completed that people are getting credalous. However, something important is promised in s day or two; and we shall probably have a number of the members of the syndicate in MONTREAL, Jan 23-While Lafontaine, the medical student, who was arrested last week for body-snatching, was being tried this afternoon a lively scene ensued in court. The students of Victoria escorted Lafontaine to court and placed him in the dock amid rousing cheers. They were soon followed by McGill and Laval students, each carrying a human thigh bone. The constable entered and informed them that an enquete was to be carried on, not a public court. A couple of policemen took forcible means to clear the court. The students recented and batons and bones were used freely. The police drew their revolvers and cleared the court. The conflict was renewed outside. The students got the better of it. Two arrests were made.

Fortunately the building was away from any other building, else the destruction might have been more extensive. The theory as to the cause of the fire is as follows: There was an opening in the depot platform through which a water-pipe used to pass. The pipe being long since of removed, the opening has been utilized for the reception of papers and sweepings from the office, until, as it is believed. There was a large quantity of rubbish beneath the platform, which caught fire from a spark frem a passing locomotive.
