Morris Hertz, a stableman, who lived at No. 404 East 72nd street, died at his home on Saturday of glanders. He contracted the disease while working in the stables of the 3d avenue Railroad Company at 65th street and 3d avenue.

Six weeks ago Hertz was obliged to give up-work, as he was suffering from pains in his joints. Abscesses also had formed on his body. He thought his illness was caused by an attack of rheumatism and treated himself for that complaint. In three weeks' time he was so ill that he was obliged to remain in bed. On Thursday he said he felt as though he was going to die. His family called in Dr. Edward Koesztler, of No. 777 Lexington avenue. From what Hertz said the physician thought the man was suffering from rheumatism, and prescribed for him accordingly.

Next day word came to Dr. Koesztler that Hertz had become worse. Calling again, he examined the man with extreme care, and discovered that he was suffering from glanders. The doctor at once informed the Board of Health, calling attention to the fact that glanders was a highly-contagious disease, and advising the immediate removal of the man to a hospital, where be could be quarantined.

Before the authorities could act Hertz was dead. On Sunday his body was placed in a steel casket and taken to the Williard Parker Hospital. On Monday Hertz was buried in the Bayside Cemetery at Woodhaven, L. I.

From Hertz wife and delivered to the Despondent.

From Hertz's wife and children it was learned last night that he had been employed as a stableman by the street-car company about two years. For three months before he was taken ill he had charge of the sick horses in the day time.

Some Friends Cheered Her lime.

At the car stables last night Mr. Kearns, the night stable boss, said the veterinary surgeon, Dr. Hough, had not reported any case of glanders among the horses. Dr. Koesztler said that some horses must have been ill with glanders and that Hertz must have had a cut or a scratch on his hand, through which the poison entered his blood. Had he been called in time, he thought he could have saved the man's life. As soon as he discovered that Hertz had glanders and knew how long Hertz had been ill, he realized that the man's death was certain. Glanders, he said, was a very destructive disease of horses, characterized by a constant discharge from the nose and an enlargement and induration of the glands beneath and within the lower jaw. It may be transmitted to dogs, goats, sheep and human beings.

The cases of human beings who have died from this disease are rare.

There are other tastes necessary, such as the measurement of the lines, for some of the type used was imitated pretty closely by Claxton's successors, It is c.ear, however, that during his career claxton only used six kinds of type. The first, distinctly foreign in its character, was used by him at Bruges in the printing of "The Recuyell of the Histories of Troye," and in the first edition of "The Game and Playe of the Chesse." This style was never used in England. The second style, such as in "The Moral Proverbs" and "Tulle of Olde Age." printed in 1477 and 1481 respectively, was beautiful and artistic. It follows a design of manuscript which obtained the name of Gros Batarde, common in use in the fifteenth century. Several books were written in this manner under the order of Edward IV., and are now to be seen in the British Museum.

Looking at the dates when Caxton's books were issued and the type be used, it is evident he did not make new type till the old was worn out. A prententious style came next, in 1483 very bold in its character. It is problematical where there is a book in this type; the only examples we have of it at present are in headlines.—Chambers' Journal.

At a critical period kind friends advised the use of Paine's celery compound, that treat preparation discovered by Professor Phelps of Dartmouth Medical College. Mrs. Legault tells us that shortly after she commenced the use of Paine's celery compound it worked wonderfully and miraculously. This is indeed the use of Paine's celery compound the life-giving remedy. No then medicinal agent has a ever done such a work in the worked wonderfully and miraculonsly. This is indeed the use of Paine's celery compound and death. In the following letter Mrs. Legault fully explains her sufferings and tells of her complete cure:

"I cannot help telling all sufferers what a continued its months longer in suffering. My case was a bad one. Headache, insomnia, nervous prostration and loss of memory made up my troubles, and I feared they would lead to insanity. Parliament of Religions.

The Parliament of Religions will be apt to have this effect if no other. It will teach some people who attend it who have thought they knew a good deal about religion and religions that they are woefully ignorant on the subject after all. Mary Abbott writes in The Chicago Evening Post: "The world's congresses will have done some good if they teach some people the difference between a Hindoo and a Buddhist. It seems to me that, while we world's congresses will have done some good if they teach some people the difference between a Hindoo and a Buddhist. It seems to me that, while we are making an ado over the exponents of Oriental religions now visiting Chicago, we might at least have the common courtesy to inform ourselves a little about them. If H. Dharmapala. the Buddhist, had asked a Baptist minister, after listening to his preaching for

There is nothing that gives more pleasure and happiness to the average man and woman than delivery from agony and suffering. We all expect to meet with a certain amount of pain, and expect to be called upon to share in some of life's trials while in this vale of tears; but continued months and years of excructating agony we are not prepared for.

Mrs. A. Legault of 775 St. Andre-street, Montreal, has had her sad and terrible experience in the way of bodily sufferings and mental anguish. Her troubles—headache, steplessness, nervous prostration and loss of memory—were fast making her a physical wreck, and leading on to the dark gulf of insanity.

They come direct from New York city, where they have been playing events, to go to hear the Buddhist preach, asked him after listening to his "sermorn" if "all Hindoos lead pure lives," alluding to the remarks he had just made about his own religion. And there is a great deal more radical difference between a Hindoo and a Buddhist than there is between a Baptist and a Universalist, because religion in the East affects manner of living, food, customs, reading and clothes, besides mode of thought and form of worship.

Perfuming the Skin.

There was quite a rage some years ago in the east for perfuming the skin, Some physicians discovered that the hypodernic injection of certain perfumes to be exhaled from the whole body and even from the skin, caused the perfume to be exhaled from the whole body and even from the breath. All the ladies want to be perfumed. The operation had to be repeated about once a week in order to secure the desired results. But, unfortunately, two or three of the perfumed ones took bad cases of blood poisoning and one or the desired results.
