At 1:30 o'clock the bride and groom, with the good wishes of their friends, were taken to their future home in Sask. The bride wore a travelling suit of dark green and hat to match. Their many wishes them all prosperity and happiness in their new home.

THE soldiers stationed at Sombra gave Capt. and Mrs. Connolly a very agreeable surprise Wednesday morning of last week, it being the 9th anniversary of their wedding, by giving the captain a handsome stick and Mrs. Connolly an initialed umbrella. A very fitting address was read by Sgt. R. W. Rigby, in which the couple were wished many hearty returns of the day and it was expressed that the captain would have the leading of the best drilled and smartest detachment of the 149th Battalion.

CAPT. DANCV speaking at Sarnia last Sunday said: "The time is not far distant when the young men out of khaki will be ashamed to appear on the street. Not only have the ranks of the 149th to be completed, but it is likely that one or even two more battalions will have to be raised in this country. If Lambton cannot complete the 149th Battalion, she will be a disgrace to the other counties. The mothers of many young men are to blame for the trouble in many cases, as they object to their sons enlisting."

DRY cell batteries are becoming a matter of worry to the owners of gasoline engines and telephone companies. Owing to the great war in Europe some of the material used in the manufacture of the same is becoming scarce, and if the war continues for another year, it will be nearly impossible to procure this, and a substitute is not found, dry batteries will be hard to obtain. The price of the same is now nearly double to what it was before the war started. People who use them, should use extra means of prolonging the life of the cells as much as possible, during the present strenuous period at least.
