A somewhat startling and rather curious judgment was recently delivered by a sessions judge in one of the Bengal districts. Four persons were brought before him on a charge of murder, and were duly convicted; but in passing sentence the judge apparently found himself in a difficulty. "There is no doubt," said he, "that all four are guilty of murder, and are therefore liable to be hanged; but I do not think it is necessary for four lives to be taken for one, but that one case of capital punishment will be enough for example !" Although, in addition to this, he said further on that "all four seem to have been equally active," yet he concluded by sentencing the apparently oldest and strongest of the prisoners to death, and the other three to imprisonment for life. It is needless to say that on an appeal to the High Court the sentence was not confirmed. Yet such is the reading of the law by some of the Indian judges. -Albany Law Journal.
