

GENERAL MAURICE ARRIVES IN CITY

Refuses to Comment on the Charges Made Against Fifth Army.

UPHOLDS ARMISTICE

Says Foch Would Have Had to Call a Halt
Anyhow.

General Sir Frederick B. Maurice, formerly director of military operations of the British army, arrived in Toronto from Pittsburgh just before noon yesterday, and was met at the Union Station by Brigadier-General Gunn, D.S.O.; Brigadier-General W. L. Shannon, G.O.C. M.D. No. 1; Sir Henry Pellatt, Mayor of the City; John B. MacLean. He was driven to the York Club, where he lunched and afterward met a number of newspaper men at headquarters on College street. He delivered a short address at the banquet in the armories last evening.

The general discussed many phases of the war and the issues which were raised when the armistice was signed and what the aspect of the European situation is at the present time. Dressed in civilian clothes he has a soldierly bearing but not the aggressiveness of a military officer. Rather he has the face of a scholar and a civilian. His hair is almost white.

He refused to make any comment on the charges which he made against the government last year after the retreat of the fifth army, adding that the country had sufficient on its hands dealing with the European situation. He, however, maintained that he did not desire to retract anything which he said then.

General Maurice remarked that he had been in Toronto 40 years ago when his father was in charge of the garrison at Halifax, but he had not yet found any spot in the city which he could remember.

Several reasons were advanced by the distinguished visitor why he did not believe the war would be resumed in Europe between Germany and the allies. The allies have absolute control of the air, having all the German planes, and they also have possession of two-thirds of the heavy artillery in all the world. "There may be surprises which you may call Bolshevism, but as for fighting no armistice was made when the armistice was signed and the Germans were not defeated on the field of battle he replied that the allied armies had pushed forward as far as they could get without having to call a halt for a time. The Germans had destroyed all the railways and highways and the delay which would have been occasioned would have permitted the allied armies to have scattered forces together again.

Had the armistice not been signed, Foch was ready to commence a new battle on Nov. 14 in Alsace, he said General Maurice. The problem to be decided was whether the results which would be obtained would be worth the destruction which would take place in the south of France and the further havoc which would be created in Belgium, and then there would be considered whether the Germans would give up if the armistice was signed. It was a little soon, however, said General Maurice, to judge whether there would have been better to fight it out to the end. "If we had gone into Germany we would have maintained a much larger standing army," he said.

Like to See Peace.
Questioned as to whether he thought peace should have been signed sooner, he laughingly remarked that we would all like to see peace, but added that the reports about delay in Paris were very good reason to hope that peace would be signed before the first of May. The great problem before the conference was to arrange European affairs so that there would be no more similar cases to that of Alsace-Lorraine prior to the war. He instanced the port of Danzig. The purpose of the allies was at first to make it a part of Poland, but the point to be considered was it was advisable to place a German population under foreign rule?

The idea of a league of nations he thought to be a good one, but he did not see how the troubles of the old world could be settled in a few months. It could not make war impossible but it would make it possible for nations to get together much easier than formerly to discuss the issues at stake. It would not, he thought have any bearing on the armaments of each nation other than to establish a scale. The British navy would in no way be interfered with.

"Where is Blucher?"
Referring to the statement "Where is Blucher?" attributed to him last year General Maurice stated that it was all caused thru a telegraphic error. Marshal Foch had then been appointed generalissimo of the allies, and had been decided that the British

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried papain, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief. But before giving up and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little bit of magnesia—not the ordinary carbonate of magnesia, but the pure bisulphate of magnesia, which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets twice a day after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous and harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little bit of magnesia immediately after a meal you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow, and, moreover, the continued use of the bisulphate of magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

WILL CALL EIGHT HOURS DAY'S WORK

House of Hoberlin Inaugurate System Much Appreciated by Employees.

A strong indication of the trend of the times is exemplified in the adoption of an 8-hour day, five days in the week, all the year round, by the House of Hoberlin, 151 Yonge street. The new system, which affects between 400 and 500 employees, was adopted at a meeting of all the managing heads of the departments, held yesterday to discuss the question. At this meeting all the men spoke in appreciation of the plan advanced, and all united in saying that they would endeavor, by close attention, to see that the costs of applying the system be reduced from the maximum.

This change comes into effect on the first Saturday in June, and the Hoberlin Company claims the distinction of being the first in Canada to adopt a movement of this kind. The step has been heartily commended by the heads of the local labor movement. The firm was also the first to adopt the 8-hour day with a half-day on Saturday, in the year 1906, and they have on a local labor union of that date approving their action at that time.

When interviewed, Mr. A. M. Hoberlin stated that he felt that the firm was merely blazing a way that must finally be adopted by all industrial leaders in Canada. "As a matter of fact," continued Mr. Hoberlin, "it will cost the firm something to introduce this system, but the amount of cost will no doubt be reduced by the co-operative effort of our associate workers."

"We recognize the necessity to take some action to show the firm's sense of responsibility towards the employees. I know that there is a great deal of interest in applying this plan, but in the final analysis, when the system is generally accepted, it will not bear hard on any organization. The main question for industrial leaders is that of justice and equity in applying their principles."

Mr. Hoberlin then pointed out that in the year 1906 the firm was working 59 hours a week, and often compelled to work part of Sunday; since that time the working conditions of the employees have steadily been improved.

He also made mention of the fact that the firm, in bettering the condition of their employees, realized and recognized the sign of the times in their whole or partial application of the plan; the Hoberlin company has adopted the whole plan for the same reason, he said.

"We think that we have vision enough to adopt shorter hours and feel that the staff will gain in efficiency," said Mr. Robinson, explaining that the new ruling applies to the entire working staff, with the exception of the retail, which department comes under separate supervision.

He also made mention of the fact that the firm, in bettering the condition of their employees, realized and recognized the sign of the times in their whole or partial application of the plan; the Hoberlin company has adopted the whole plan for the same reason, he said.
