CORNELL VARSITY EIGHT WON and increased the crimsons' stroke to 36. The Harvard eight responded manfully, tho the Ithacans led by 2 1-2 lengths at the mile and a half mirk.

25.—In a magnificent thruout, the Cornell Varsity eight-oared crew defeated the Harvard Varsity eight ing to Boston next year, because it seemed impossible to obtain a course free from pleasure craft. Mr. Courtney said that he was satisfied with the exhibition by two carefully trained and, showing that his men had made, and he characterized the work of Harvard as creased their lead to one length.

At this point both crews began to feel the rought water and the bothersome swell from the spectators' crafts.

Cornell thruout exhibited Coach Courtney's slow, steady stroke, which with the eight-oarsmen working in perfect unison, induced the Cornell shell to fairly bound thru the water.

At the three-quarter mile the Ithacans were one and a quarter lengths ahead. They had done this with a stroke of 30, while Harvard was rowing 34. Gradually the gain was ining 34. Gradually the gain was increased, and at the mile flag Cornell led by a length and a half. After this merchant tailor charges $40.00, because Courtney's men began to spurt. The stroke was pushed up to 34 and so it was held to the finish.

Coxswain Bledgin of Harvard took his cue from his Cornell competitors

Competitions in the charges $40.00, because the makes so few in a season, and his tailor cannot get the practice which makes him expert. Hundreds of these suits are made every season by the Semi-ready tailors.

Two Second Choices and a Long Shot Won on Friday.

Fort Hunter and Royal Window vere the only distinct favorites to win te with Rubaiyat, that finished out side the money. Prospero was the long shot of the day, closing at 7 to 1. The other winners, Enghurst and Kilts, were second choices.

were second choices.

Of the beaten favorites, Moonraker was second, Dunsverrick third, and Crip Bert Osra and Rubaiyat outside the money. Spring opened at 2 to 1, and regardless of the play the bookies boosted the price to 3 to 1, closing the same as Moonraker. Royal Window was favorite over Peter Sterling, the form of the race, and Swain refused to make a run till too late, just as some wise people expected.

Demon and Amber, two rank outsiders, were in the money in the sixth race, as good as 100 to 1 being posted against each on some of the slates. Fort Hunter opened at 1 to 2 for the Liverpool Cup, and it was a good price, as he won pulled up. Cicely went to him on the back stretch and then blew
