

SNAPSHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

The Chicago Record-Herald is running a special column open to correspondents wishing to provide for Count Boni de Castellane, whose meal ticket recently flew away.

Here are some of the offers received:

Boni de Castellane: I will match Battling Nelson to meet you with kid gloves or rapiers. Ninety-five per cent to me, 5 per cent to Nelson and 2 per cent to you. These are regular terms. Can't cut the rate till you've made a rep.—Billy Nolan.

Count: I want you for assistant manager of the Giants. Your work will be to say "Sacre bleu" when the first ball is pitched, and "Diable" when the second ball is thrown. The umpire will then put you off the grounds, and we will do the rest.—Muggsy McGraw.

Boni: All other offers are kids. We want you for the big football game Thursday. Start on receipt of this message. You will play center about two minutes and then they'll carry you out. The county hospital is just across the road, and we'll stop on the way down town and leave the money for you. Be a sport.—Promoters Thanksgiving Game.

Boni de Castellane: They tell me you're a scrapper. If it's on the square cable me on receipt of this message, and don't waste any energy fighting at home. I've got a nice thing for you.—Corrigan.

Charlie Comiskey is evidently an impatient man in baseball affairs. He believes in branching out, and his first colonial attempt will be directed at Mexico. He proposes to go down there next spring, and while warming up his champions, incidentally annex Mexico to his string of victories.

One cannot help speculating on where Comiskey expects to land. After Mexico—what?

Is it possible that he will play his champions the year round? Will he win the pennant in the little U. S. and then hike the team to some warm, sunny clime, pull down another championship and move on? Mayhap. Mexico may be the entering wedge. There is no limit to ambition.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

An exciting game of basketball will doubtless result tomorrow night when the Stratford five come to this city for a struggle with the local Y. M. C. A. aggregation. Both teams are very speedy and should put up a splendid exhibition.

There are any number of rumors pertaining to the local hockey situation, but up to date nothing definite has been decided upon. The latest is that London is going to have an independent team. Hush! Not a whisper!

The Rough Riders II. of Ottawa are out with a will that they are penniless, and unable, therefore, to meet the Tiger Cubs at Kingston for the intermediate poke-bonnet. The London team paid their way to Dundas at the wind-up of their schedule, and did it cheerfully, even in the face of almost certain defeat—five members of the regular team being unable to go along. Of course, it makes a difference, though—there is a little at stake now.

All of the talk about holding Harry Lewis on the charge of murder in connection with the unfortunate death of Mike Ward is looked upon by many as out of place. Why not hold the management—the really guilty ones—who criminally neglected to place sufficient padding on the floor of the ring, or the referee who allowed the bout to continue after Ward was practically helpless and unable to defend himself? The law in regard to boxing contests provides that there shall be sufficient matting on the floor to protect the contestants from serious injury. When a few of these two-by-four alleged fight promoters are surrounded by iron bars for their negligence, there will be fewer fatalities in glove encounters.

The bookmakers at Benning's are not permitted to do business in the old style—sitting on stools and displaying fixed prices on the slates. They must keep constantly on the move, and make notes of bets in small notebooks. It were far better for the average racegoer if they were kept on a gallop.

The 20-round glove contest at Los Angeles tomorrow between Burns and O'Brien should be a rather exciting affair. Looking at the bout in an unprejudiced way, one must admit that the chances are very much in favor of a victory for the wily Philadelphian. O'Brien is one of the cleverest boxers in the business today. His method of hit-and-get-away is one that has disconcerted and taken the heart out of the best men that have stepped into the squared arena in many years. In a nutshell, the problematic result of the scrap resolves itself into one question: Will Burns be able to sneak a sleep-producer over to Jack's chin before the final going rings? If the affair lasts the limit, O'Brien will win, but if—Oh, let's wait until tomorrow. We'll all know for certain then. SOUTHPAW.

How Tom Cooper Attained Fame and Wealth in Day

Detroit, Nov. 27.—A charming personality has been said to be one of man's best assets. It not only proves a safeguard through life but retains its influence after death. This was exemplified last week at the funeral of Tom Cooper, the former Detroit bicycle champion of the world, when the host of friends who had followed his star of fortune from the rising turned out in numbers to pay last respects.

Cooper was always unassuming, even in the moments of his greatest achievements. His head was never turned by fortune, and he always remembered his parents when he came to the division of the spoils of his accomplishments. John Colquhoun, who looked after Tom in the champion's bicycle career, furnishes some characteristic reminiscences of the late champion.

"I'll never forget the first time Cooper beat Bald," said he. Eddie Bald was at that time the whole thing in the bicycle world. He was riding the Raymond White Flyer at the time, and his company did extensive touring, with a balloon ascension after each victory.

"Cooper was a low-salaried drug clerk at the time, fair and ruddy faced. He had no racing wheel of his own—couldn't afford it—and his father used to try to discourage him from the bicycling game.

"Tom," he would say, "your salary, if it is small, is sure. You mustn't have too many irons in the fire."

"That's all right, but when I get to the top it will have the drug business beaten," would be the answer.

"Cooper hooked up with Bald for the first time. There was a tremendous crowd out for the races, and as the riders came out of their dressing rooms that Bald balloon was gently tugging at the moorings, as it was being inflated. The riders drew lots for positions, and Bald got the rail. Cooper was fortunate enough to get second place.

"As they were lining up for the pistol Cooper could scarcely keep his admiring eyes off the great Bald. Finally Bald took offense at the individual ovation and asked the 'kid' what he meant.

"I was just thinking," Cooper replied, "how fortunate I would be if I could finish second to you, Mr. Bald."

"Get 't off out of my way," was all the satisfaction Cooper got, "or you'll not finish at all."

"That stirred Tom to the roots of his hair. The pistol cracked at last and they were off. How Cooper dug in! It was a sight to see. He told me afterwards that he simply rode. He saw a rider ahead for a time, then he gradually pulled up, passed and tore on. When it was all over he turned to ask some one where he had finished, but a score lifted him to their shoulders while the assembly thundered cheers. Bald, now scowling past, while the attendants fought wildly to keep the balloon on earth. There was no ascension that day, and Cooper had beaten Bald.

"A nervous looking man was one of the first to offer congratulations. 'It was a great race, my boy,' said he to Cooper. 'How would you like to sign for the rest of the season at $50 a week?'

"For $50 a week?" cried Cooper. "Come sign me for life."

"But there were others who had something to say. An agent for another wheel promptly raised the ante to $75 before Cooper could think signing, and before he knew where he was at, what appeared to him as fabulous offers were being fired at him.

When the smoke cleared away he was under contract for $200 a week and training expenses, got free tires and $2,000 for introducing a certain brand, $1,000 for using a certain saddle, $500 for riding with a special chain, and goodness knows what else. It was riches in an afternoon. Before, though, he had won several minor races, he couldn't get a factory to donate him a racer. And the only comment he made that night was: 'It will be a tough job to beat that man Bald every time to hold my job.'

CHAMPIONS COULD NOT SHOOT WELL

T. N. B. C. Basketball Team
Walloped by Shamrocks—
Midgets Also Lost.

Two rattling games of basketball were pulled off on the Y. M. C. A. floor last night. The Shamrocks trimmed the T. N. B. C. team by 79 to 41, and the Medicals trimmed the Midgets 46 to 35. Last year's champions were in the game all the time, but their shooting was away off color and was in marked contrast to the really excellent shooting of the Shamrocks.

Poor shooting was responsible also for the Midgets' defeat by the Medicals. The little fellows played rings around the students in the field, but the latter made the points, and that is what wins games.

In both games the referee gave several of the men a rest on the side lines for being overzealous, but the best of feeling prevailed at all times.

A large crowd was present, including quite a number of ladies. The regular Tuesday night games are becoming very popular.

Three of the men who will line up against Stratford tomorrow night were on the Shamrocks' team—Harvey, Strauch and Mel Brock.

The lineups:

FIRST GAME.
Shamrocks—Forwards, De Shaw and W. Brock; center, Strauch; defense, Harvey and Mel Brock.
T. N. B. C.—Forwards, Skinner and Crawford; center, Dale; defense, McBride and Wickett.

SECOND GAME.
Medicals—Forwards, Crawford and Ross; center, Moore; defense, Poisson and Watson.
Midgets—Forwards, Woods and McDonald; center, Duffield; defense, McDonald and Duncan.

Referee—Mr. Brent.
Scorer—Mr. Hertel.
Timekeeper—Mr. Dixon.

THE TURF.

LONG SHOTS WON.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Only two favorites won at the Benning track today. Society Bud, a 60 to 1 shot, captured the first race. Red Knight, at 1 to 3 in the third race, finished third, G. L. M. winning at 30 to 1. The fastest race was furnished an exciting finish between Cederstrom and Banker. The pair came under the wire side by side with Cederstrom ahead. Jockey Miller, who rode Banker, claimed a foul against Cederstrom, ridden by Four-Nelson, and Cederstrom was disqualified, making Ormande's Right the even money favorite, third. Cederstrom was backed from 10 to 1 to 5 to 1. Two track records were broken, Cashion lowered the six furlongs record by 2 3-5 seconds, and Banker clipped two-fifths of a second off the mile and a quarter record, which has stood since 1896.

YESTERDAY'S WINNERS.
At Benning's—Society Bud 60 to 1, Caboshon 3 to 5, G. L. M. 30 to 1, Lady Karma 7 to 5, Luretta 12 to 1, Banker 4 to 1.

At New Orleans—Dry Dollar 20 to 1, Cannonball 6 to 1, Missouri Lad 6 to 1, Juggler even, Alencon 9 to 2, Bitter Hard 4 to 1.

OLD GLORY SALE.
New York, Nov. 27.—Good prices were paid today at the Old Glory horse sale at Madison Square Garden. The $1,000 mark first was reached in the afternoon, when horses belonging to William Simpson, of the Empire City Farms, were offered. Surety Bond, a filly, was purchased by W. L. Snow, of Hornell, for $1,025.

FOOTBALL.

O. R. F. U. ANNUAL MEETING.
Toronto, Nov. 27.—The annual meeting of the Ontario Rugby Football Union will be held at the King Edward, Toronto, on Saturday, Dec. 8.

A number of amendments have already been placed in the hands of Secretary J. B. Hay, and these will be published on Saturday next. The day upon which the nominations close, a club having amendments to the constitution or playing rules to offer should have them in the secretary's hands before that date.

ALLEGED RIOTER ACQUITTED.
Hamilton, Nov. 27.—Arthur King, of the Tammany Tigers, Toronto, who was arrested here on Saturday night on a charge of rioting, was acquitted by the magistrate this morning.

AFRICANS TAKE ANOTHER.
London, Nov. 27.—The touring South African Rugby team defeated Trinity at Dublin today by a score of 23 to 3.

YALE'S BIG RECEIPTS.
New Haven, Conn., Nov. 27.—The Yale football management today began figuring up their receipts for the season. The Harvard-Yale game netted the two colleges $84,000, each college getting $42,000. From the Yale-Princeton game the universities divided equally about $27,000. Yale's $15,500 from the Yale-Princeton game with about $5,000 from the Yale-Brown game added, to about $10,000 from its smaller games makes a total of about $65,000 for the season.

BASKETBALL.

TOMORROW NIGHT'S GAME.
When Stratford and London meet on the Y. M. C. A. floor in basketball tomorrow night, two distinct and different styles of play will be seen. The London team are using tall men, who will be strong at intercepting and fielding the ball, while Stratford have a small, light team, which is, however, lightning fast at running, passing and shooting. In Stratford last week, London won by a small margin, but will endeavor to increase considerably their lead in the return game here tomorrow.

GANS SAYS FIGHT WILL BE HIS LAST

Battling Nelson Only One He Will Agree to Meet After Go With Herman.

New York, Nov. 27.—"Yes, I am going to fight Kid Herman at Tonopah, on Jan. 1, and that will be my last fight," said Joe Gans, the champion light-weight boxer. "There will be only one possibility of my going into the ring again. That is if Battling Nelson really wants to fight me and will make terms to suit me."

"I mean by this not such terms as will give me every advantage, as was given him at Goldfield, but anything that is fair, square and equitable. Yes, I would be more than glad to fight him again. After that, it is good-bye to the ring for Joe Gans."

"My reason for retiring is that I have now enough money to keep me all the rest of my days. When you consider that I have been fighting for more than half my life and do not have to keep it up, you cannot blame me for going out of the game."

"After next week's show I shall return to San Francisco and will follow up my efforts to enjoy the pictures. I will not return here about Dec. 1 and four days later will be in Tonopah and start to train for Kid Herman."

CZAR AIDS LITTLE BOY

Takes Charge of Lad Whose Father Was Drowned by Royal Yacht.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 27.—When the Czar's yacht, Standart, cast anchor off Peterhof on her return from her Finnish tour, one of the first passengers to be taken to Peterhof Palace was the 9-year-old son of a Finnish pilot named Kolainen. While the Standart was steaming away from Pykionna Island, where the Czar had spent a day shooting, Kolainen was drowned, owing to the torpedo-boat which he was steering, plunging rapidly into the swell of the big yacht.

The Czar had the Standart stopped, inquired about the pilot's family, and finding that he was a widower with a young son, offered to look after the boy's education. Young Kolainen was taken on board the Standart, and is now at Peterhof.

Every day shooting parties were organized on the group of Finnish Islands known as the Scherl. The Czar is an excellent shot. The official account of his holiday states that he killed fourteen blackcock with twelve

"The islands in some cases had no landing place, and sailors from the cruisers and torpedo-boats accompanying the Standart were sent on in advance to build pontoon landing stages. One of these landing stages was washed away by the waves within a few minutes of the Czar's expected arrival, but the Emperor and Empress insisted on the whole party scrambling ashore over the steep rocks.

Every master pilot was presented with a gold watch, and each of his assistants got either a silver watch or a signed photograph of the Czar and a present of $15. When on board the Standart the chief pilot and his wife dined with the Emperor and Empress. Two days before returning to Peterhof a race for four steam pinnaces with the squadron was held, the Czar presenting a gold plate as prize. Conditions were laid down in order to test the skill of the crews in finding their way about unknown waters. On the first day a pilot led the boats through about twenty miles of tortuous straits and fjords among innumerable small islands. On the second day the pinnaces were required both to find their way and to make good time. The Standart's pinnace won the prize, all the rival boats mistaking the route.

M'GILL WILL MEET HAMILTON TIGERS

Intercollegiate Champs Unanimously in Favor of Playing Blufftown Brigade.

Montreal, Nov. 27.—At a meeting of the McGill Rugby Football Club last night it was unanimously decided to play the Hamilton Tigers for the Dominion championship. The only condition that McGill imposes is that the game shall be played in Montreal.

It has been announced by the board of reference of the I. C. R. F. U. that McGill is inter-collegiate champion this year, and therefore, eligible to play Hamilton for the championship. McGill has decided to play on its own campus instead of on the M. A. A. grounds, as was suggested. It seems that the idea of paying rent does not appeal to them. Tom Clancy, of Ottawa, has been nominated by McGill to referee the game.

The McGill players will be handicapped, as they have been playing the old scrimmage game, while the Tigers were thoroughly taught the C. R. F. U. game by their match with Montreal. The McGill lineup will probably be as follows: Ballantyne, full back; McLauchlan, halfback; Zimmerman, halves; Johnson, quarter; Still, Quinn, Steedman, scrumhalf; Benedict, Ross, Pare, Stephens, Hale and Winslow, wings; Reid, Raphael, Patrick, Cox, spares.

A Dane named Knudson is credited with discovering means of producing liquid air at the cost of no more than one-sixth the usual price, and it is said that his process, which is mechanical rather than chemical, will ultimately put liquid air on the market at not more than about 2 cents a gallon. The same invention makes it possible to sell oxygen at a cent a cubic foot, which promises to bring it into rather wide industrial use.

According to the Washington Post, quoting a cashier, bank officials do not prefer fresh, new bills to old ones. "Everybody doesn't care for new greenbacks," said a cashier. "It is a common idea that bank cashiers do not care to give up crisp paper money. As a matter of fact, nine cashiers out of every ten try to get rid of new money as quickly as possible after receiving it. There is grave danger to the average paying teller in handling unused money. New bank notes stick together. Frequently the ink is not thoroughly dry."
