LONDON TO BECOME WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY CENTRE FOR ONTARIO

Messages from Eastern Points
Will Be Relayed to Windsor.

The approach of Christmas instilled much cheer into the hearts of several to fontario for wireless telegraph, with the formation of the newly organized "Y" Radio Club. Secretary David Hutchinson has received several letters from wireless club in Ontario askins that London have wireless telegraphy apparatus in operation as soon as possible. Not only have club requests been forwarded to Mr. Hutchinson, but Individuals of outside cities and towns have offered their help to get the wireless telegraphy in the vireless club ferred their help to get the wireless telegraph that the street way.

greatly affects amateur wireless operators, as it keeps them from experimenting in an effort to obtain a higher-powered sender.

The result is that they install a small-powered sender that only has a working radius of about ten miles. Hamilton and Windsor are the two cities that are mostly interested in the London club because of the fact that these two cities exchange messages quite often and with the small sender it makes it very difficult to hear the message. Hamilton enthusiasts claim that when London gets apparatus working they can send to the operator here and he will in turn relay messages to Windsor.

The "Y" Radio Club contemplates putting on several entertainments this putting on several entertainments this coming year for wireless enthusiasts. Instruction classes of this club are Instruction classes of this club are held each Monday and Wednesday evenings and those who are interest-ed in wireless are invited to attend.

started. Furniture was broken, there were songs and loud swearing, which disturbed the neighborhood, the guests fought with one another, and then the next moment they kissed.

This was all brought out in the evidence given by Police Sergt. William McCullough, when James Cotter, 377 Grey street, Frank Nayille, 762 Richmond street, John Boyle, 151 William street, Joseph Ryan, 507 Dundas street, Charles Cole, 76 Front street, Michael Flannaghan, 5 John street, and John Clark were arraigned in police court today as the result of the raid made by Sergt. McCullough and Constable Chester Langford on Cake's residence.

They all pleaded guilty of being disorderly except Joseph Ryan and Frank Naville. The two, however, were found guilty, and with the others were as-Naville. The two, however, were found guilty, and with the others were assessed $10 and costs.

No charge was laid against Thomas Cake, as he was asleep when the raid was made and the police hated to distant the base of the cost of th

A returned soldier, who has recently started a small grocery business, has sent an order for groceries to the widow, saying: "I have not much myself, but have a bed, food and a warm fire." The breadwinner of the little home in the south end, who died following injuries received at work, served every day of the war as a fireman in the British navy. His remains were interred in a local cemetery today.

factory workers of all kinds. These men are not seeking charity and are willing to accept any employment which will enable them to tide themselves and their families over the present period of readjustment. Realizing that manufacturers will need an abundant supply of help in the new year, the local bureau is making every effort to retain these men in London, and any co-operation that can be secured towards this end in the present emergency will undoubtedly work out to the mutual benefit of employers and employees."
