

BULLOCK IS FOR 5 CENT RATE ON GRAIN CARGOES

with the exception of grain, the rates should remain the same as last year. He said it was very hard to calculate the harbor business on account of the dual ownership, but the increase in traffic expected on account of the reduction in rates, he declared, had not materialized. In the grain shipments over city wharves there had been a falling off of 62,888 tons, or about 12 steamer loads, from the previous year. The shipments of general cargo had been about the same.

The money lost to the city on account of the reduction amounted to $24,961 up to August 1, and would be about $28,000, estimated, when the year was finished. He said the harbor should have at least $200,000 each year to carry on with. Of this amount $100,000 was eaten up in fuel charges, such as interest and sinking fund and insurance, and $83,000 was needed for overhead, including salaries and wages, leaving only $17,000 for work, including the cost of materials. The average surplus for the five year period, 1919 to 1923, was $120,000 a year, and this represented less than 1 per cent. on the capital cost of $4,500,000.

The city was not alone in loss of revenue last year, he said, as the Government pier had earned $10,000 less than they did in the previous year. This year the appropriation for the harbor had been cut to $175,000 and this meant that the pier was being starved to death. The increase in the rate on grain would bring in an additional $11,000 and this was badly needed.

WAIT, SAYS MAYOR

Mayor Potts said he thought no resolution should be introduced until the port committee had considered the matter and he personally was not in favor of making any changes this year. There should not be any objection to a loss of $26,000 in the harbor if by this there was provided an expenditure of between $200,000 and $400,000 for the workmen and merchants.

Commissioner Prink said it was evident that the commission had spent a great deal of time on this matter but he thought before action was taken there should be an opportunity for objection to the proposed increase to make themselves heard. The Mayor said he had in mind the calling of the port committee to meet on Thursday of this week.

It was decided to defer action until after a meeting of the port committee. James Murray, 122 Pond street, wrote that surface water and sewage was flowing over his property. He has jobs in the rear and he would like to have action taken to remedy this condition. He had called the matter to the attention of the Board of Health but no action had been taken. This was referred to the Commissioner of Water and Sewerage.

As only four members of the council were present the request of the Civic Power Commission for a bond issue of $5,000 for extension was laid over. Commissioner Prink said when this matter came up he would like to have some information as to where these extensions were to be made.

The resignation of G. H. Green as a member of the Board of School Trustees was accepted. He is to be the new trustee officer. Street lighting bills amounting to $9,928.22 were ordered paid.

QUESTION ABOUT FAIR

Mayor Potts said he had received complaints in regard to the fair to be held in West Saint John. There had not been any license issued for this fair and there would not be any issued. Commissioner Prink said he had been asked for the use of Queen Square West for this fair, but had refused it and then a vacant lot had been secured. Commissioner Harding said that as no license had been issued the police would see that the fair was closed.

Commissioner Bullock was given authority to have some dredging done at the outer end of South Market slip, at a cost not to exceed $100. On motion of Commissioner Bullock a lot at the corner of Collins and Porter streets, Fairville, was sold to J. P. Shetty for $250 and a lot in Church avenue, Fairville, was sold to James Somerville, for $200. The commissioner said this made about 85 lots sold.

Central's Quick Wit Foils Robbery In Jersey City Shop

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Presence of mind and knowledge of her job on the part of a Jersey City telephone operator, coupled with prompt action on the part of the police prevented the looting of the Middle Shop, Jersey City, and nearly resulted in the arrest of three men who attempted to rob the place.

Miss Rose Hulbig was at her post at the Bergen exchange switchboard, where hundreds of glass disks on the board in front of her were dark. Suddenly a light flashed in number 3334. The lady that was the number of the Middle Shop and she knew also that at that hour no one had any legitimate business in the shop. The light shone only for an instant. It had probably been caused by one of the robbers tripping over a telephone wire and knocking the receiver from its hook. He evidently replaced the receiver and the light died out. But Miss Hulbig knew something was amiss. She called the number and there was no reply. Then she told Miss Catherine McCarthy, the chief operator, Miss McCarthy telephoned to police headquarters. Quick action followed.

Frank Gross, telephone operator at police headquarters, flashed out an alarm to the fourth, fifth and seventh precincts, and reserves were sent to the store. At the same time Acting Captain Walter Giesch and Detectives Norton, Graber, De Marco and Nagel hurried over in a department automobile.

They arrived in time to see three men running from the store. One lost his cap. The thieves left behind them a Ford automobile, and the owner is being traced.

It was discovered that the marauders had forced a rear door and had been able to gather about $1,000 worth of goods before they were frightened away.

PROTECTION MONEY ALLEGATION MADE

Beer Shop Keeper and Former Liquor Inspector in Court With Counsel.

A feature of the police court proceedings this morning was a statement by Heber S. Keith, attorney for Archie Wilmut, in a matter not yet before the court on formal charge, but which was made in open court with counsel on the other side present. It involves an allegation of obtaining some $800 from Wilmut by Robert Henderson, a former liquor inspector in 1923. Wilmut kept a beer shop.

According to the outline given by Mr. Keith to the magistrate, Henderson, who had been a liquor inspector through Maine, New Brunswick and referred to in the statement, entered Wilmut's shop and, representing himself as still on the force, arranged to give the beer protection. If Wilmut would pay 5 cents a bottle to him on every bottle sold. From April 20 to July 26 of that year Wilmut was alleged to have paid $803 to Henderson. This would mean on that basis that 10,000 bottles of beer must have been sold.

Mr. Keith also said that it was represented to his client that the money was carried in envelopes to a prominent liquor official. The latter's name was not mentioned in the court this morning.

Mr. Glover said that Henderson would plead not guilty to such a charge and that he and his client were ready to go on with the case at once. However, owing to the illness of a witness and the absence of another one, the matter was not commenced this morning; but the court and lawyers agreed on next Tuesday at 10.30 as the time for taking it up.

Guides To Tourists In Other Places

Miss Emma Colwell, Douglas avenue, who has just returned after a motor trip through Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, was much impressed during her trip by the good condition of the roads she found in these states. One thing which struck her particularly was the way the drivers of the cars kept to their own side of the road while traveling.

The provision which has been made for the tourist in giving information about routes and in marking the roads was much appreciated by the party. Every route was numbered in the guide book and the roads were numbered to correspond. She found that all of the villages and towns had signs up telling the tourist just where he was.

Miss Colwell was much impressed by the grandeur of the White Mountains, with Mt. Washington standing sentinel over them all.
