SPEAKING OF NEW SPRING FUR-NITURE.
In these days of thrift, no home should be without a good book case, one that is built in a practical way, can be added to section by section, your library grows will be the proper protection to your books, and an additional ornament where ever used.

The "Globe Wrenick" book case has found a very welcome place in many of the best homes. If you have not already used one, you will be interested in the display now on view in the furniture store windows of the Manchester, Robertson, Allison, stores. Just a glance will convince you of their beauty and practicality.

IN ARGENTINA THEY
CLING TO THE TANGO
Buenos Aires, March 17.—(Correspondence Associated Press).—The tango has retained its affection for its national dance, the tango, despite the introduction of American "jazz" music and syncopated melodies in the programmes of Argentine balls and dances. This was shown during balls held in a recent carnival when tango tunes outnumbered the fox-trot and one-step in a proportion of three to one. Several American waltzes, however, are very popular. The Argentinians call the syncretized music "Yanqui" tunes.

Some native musicians have grown rich composing tangos. One of the most popular here is called "Fancy-Agua" (Bread and Water). The title of another is translated as "Flower of the Mud".

Parents And Children

(Uncle Dudley in Boston Globe)

There is a secret tragedy enacted in thousands of homes which costs infinite heartache to parents and children. Not much is said about it, in fact, almost nothing; partly because both parties are too sensitive, and often because the whole matter is too imperfectly understood.

In Pittsburg is a woman who has just graduated from the Night High School with highest honors. Her eldest son is in high school and she has three other sons in grammar school. If my children go to college, I'll go to college, too," she declares. "I mean to keep up with them intellectually."

This plucky woman has undertaken something which is supremely important.
For there comes a time in most families when a kind of secret terror seizes the parents. Education seems to be putting barriers between their children and themselves. The very education for which the parents have striven and sacrificed to give their children in order that they might have advantages which were denied to themselves now threatens to estrange them. Snobbish though some of the ideas are that the children pick up at school and college, false and unsound as many of their intellectual standards may be, as the children may sometimes be in asserting the superiority of the situation, the situation is mostly one for which nobody is really to blame. We parents, who have an education in order that they may shape their lives to higher standards.
The children's part is to respond to these higher standards.

They do. And then come the embarrassments; they begin to speak English, to suggest that certain pieces of furniture are not in the best of taste; that their elders' table manners would bear mending. Then it begins to go deeper; they bring home the news that certain books and authors have been accustomed to regard as the law and the prophets are considered far from infallible; and that certain ideas which have been supposed fixed as the everlasting truths are being sharply challenged. Under such influences children are growing their lives according to aims and ideals which look to us as questionable, or unwise, or dangerous, or fantastic, or over-right wrong. Yet to our dismay these ideals are to the youngsters things to live by and, if need be, to die for.

Why go into details? In one form or another every family has been through this mill.

Thus what begins as a danger of the children outgrowing their parents intellectually can and often does end in a conflict between parents and children which is the very variable of the central conflict of the ages; the conflict between the old and the new; between the elder generation and the younger; between the caution and experience of age and the courage and enterprise of youth.

Of course, this conflict can be as various as the families in which it occurs.
There are the parents who are unable to live up and try desperately to prevent it.
There are parents who never learn to share their children's life. There are parents who are cruel out of their inexperience of suffering and arrogant out of their ignorance of life.

For all these evils and heartaches there is a remedy. It is in the hands of the parents. The ones who are the ones who must apply it. It is for the parents to educate themselves along with their children. Difficult? Yes. Impossible? No.
Mostly, it is the trick of keeping young.
And that is the trick of keeping interested; of always having a sympathetic ear for whatever the young folks are interested in; of being a good listener; of not grow on every bush, and it makes a hit with the youngsters; of making a point of knowing a little something about the matter, too; of reading the books they read; of understanding their new and startling ideas they bring home; of never being an "outsider" to their interests; and not being ashamed to study the things they study or to learn from them wherever possible.

The young have as much to teach the old as the old the young. The trick of staying young is to stay teachable.

Why don't our story writers and screen dramatists drop the over-worked love theme for once and tackle this?
Here is a scenario for them out of life:
A mother resolved not to be outgrown by her children. She helped them with their lessons. She studied their school books. She dipped into their college textbooks and quizzed them sharply to pick up what she could at second-hand (and in so doing pleased them by her interest). Unable to follow them into college sciences and foreign languages, she began to read current politics and history, delved into literature, books of travel and biography, until she knew quite as much in her field as they did in theirs. They realized it and had to respect her. Year after year she went on, always against odds of ill-health, hard work and limited opportunities, widening her interests, depending her sympathies, broadening her knowledge, till she wound up by giving her educated children a stiff run for their money—they had to go some to keep up with Mother. She is now past seventy and going strong, the admiration and delight of her children and of everybody who comes into contact with her. Young folks flock to her like bees to blossoms, hungry for the honey of her mind and spirit.

If we is a true love story—love of children and love of learning—with a

ST. MATTHEW'S Y. P. S.

The Y. P. S. of St. Matthew's church united with the mission circle of Silver Falls church in giving a fine concert in the Silver Falls school room, last night, under the leadership of Charles Stevens.
Rev. J. D. Gough, the pastor, was the chairman and a large audience heartily enjoyed the entertainment which realized a large sum for the Silver Falls mission. The programme given was as follows: Chorus, mission circle; duet, Messrs. Gough and Orr; trio, Misses Hicks; club singing. St. Matthew's Boys' recitation, Miss Helen Gough; solo, Miss Harkin; recitation, Miss Margaret Jordan; solo, Mr. Holder; playette, St. Matthew's Y. P. S.; solo, Miss Bailey; duet, Misses Lamb and Arthur and violin solo, Allan Bustin.

"happy ending." It can be the story of any parent with the pluck to stay in the race.

And better than the fun of beating one's children at the game of learning is their delight at finding themselves beaten by their parents.

ANNUAL INSPECTION
WEIGHTS AND MEASURES
The Weights and Measures Act as Amended by Chap. 73, 'An Act to Amend the Weights and Measures Act, 1919, now requires all weights and measures to be inspected and stamped at least once a year instead of once every two years, as formerly.

The high prices now prevailing on all commodities has rendered the accuracy of all weighing and measuring machines of the utmost importance.

To give excess weight means a great loss to the merchant—to give short weight is an offence under the law, subject to prosecution and fine. The best and only protection against both is correct scales.

Co-operate with the inspector then and lend him your assistance. He is paid a straight salary and does not benefit by one cent from the fees he collects, which are all covered by government revenue stamps affixed to your scales, and deposited to the credit of the receiver general.

As the expenses of this service exceeded collections last year by $83,888.09 the fees have been increased to help pay for the increased cost of travelling, horse hire, freight and cartage, etc.

A merchant bought a new scale to keep his books. The inspector called but was told not to bother the scale was new and had been inspected at the factory.
Next year the inspector called and found the scale 1 lb. slow on 100 lbs. against the merchant. Not much. The merchant had only shipped 40,000 bags—a loss of 20 tons of goods to save a dollar in inspection fee.

Insurance against such loss—welcome the inspector.

NATIONAL HARMONY.
Hamilton Spectator: Colonel C. R. Mc-Callough put it well when he declared that the French-Canadian element would contribute the spirituality and the polish to the development of a well rounded out nation, while the Anglo-Saxon would largely provide the practical side.
It is possible to be too prosaic, and it is possible to be too romantic; the ideal temperament is a happy blending of the two. The French-Canadians have much to learn from us, and we have much to learn from them. Each side has its own peculiar outlook on life—perhaps we are a little too indifferent to the things which count with them, and perhaps they are a little too indifferent to the things which count with us, and we have much to learn from them. Each side has its own peculiar outlook on life—perhaps we are a little too indifferent to the haps they are a little too indifferent to

FUTURE OF VETERAN
Re-organization of Board of Directors of Soldiers' Paper.

Ottawa, April 10.—A complete reorganization of the board of directors of the Veterans' Limited, official publication of the G. W. V. A. of Canada was the outcome of the annual general meeting of the shareholders.

R. B. Maxwell of Winnipeg, elected president of the association at the dominion convention in Montreal, is now chairman of the board, succeeding Colonel W. P. Furney of Halifax.

The following are the other officials who will comprise the new board: S.
Stalford, Toronto; L. Plante, Montreal;
Colonel H. F. McLeod, Fredericton; Rev.
C. E. Jenkins, Westford; Leo Wardle, Winnipeg; A. C. Hill, Estevan, Sask.; J. Day, Edmonton; C. E. Edgett, Vernon, B. C.; and C. G. MacNeill, Ottawa, who continues as secretary-treasurer.

The Veterans will be published hereafter in Toronto. The new board of directors will undertake a programme for its gradual expansion. It is the object of the association to make it a magazine of general national interest. Its editorial policy, however, will be controlled entirely by the G. W. V. A.

WILL ALL LOAD AT
NORFOLK FOR FRANCE.
It is expected that the last of the fleet of French-owned steamers, that were in port during the winter months and are now being made ready for sea, will leave here about the first of June. The fleet comprises twelve ships, built on the St. Lawrence, for the French government, and brought down from Quebec towards the close of navigation last year. During the winter they were laid up in the North West Arm and at various wharves along the waterfront.
It is expected that all the ships will be in France by the middle of August.

flesh is rich yellow when cooked, appearing as a treacle sauce, but of sugar had been added to it. It is doing well as far north as the Ohio station and as far south as the good commercial apple growing extends at present.

One Year for Bigamy.
Regina, Sask., April 10.—John Dixie Kierandner, former assistant provincial
