(Montreal Gazette)
The war will delay the departure from England of the car ferry and ice-breaking steamer, built by Cammell, Laird and Co. Birmingham, for the Transcontinental Railway Co. This craft, which is intended for service on the St. Lawrence between Quebec and Lewis ran successful trials a month ago. An ice-cutting propeller of nickel steel is fitted at the forward end of the ship, which is 826 feet long by 65 foot beam. Passenger and freight trains will be carried at all seasons of the year. Arranged above the main deck is a tidal deck on which the trains are carried and which has three lengths of track, each about 270 feet long. This deck is designed to carry, fully loaded, a locomotive and train of a total weight of 1,400 tons. Lifting trials were carried out with entirely satisfactory results. Gearing is provided to raise or lower this deck at the rate of one foot per minute to any level up to 20 feet, so as to allow of trains being shipped or unshipped at any stage of the tide. Above the tidal deck a promenade has been arranged all round the vessel for the convenience of passengers.
