WIDER USE FOR THE SCHOOL BUILDINGS

Need of it Shown at Playgrounds Meeting

MANY COULD BE HELPED

Hundreds Are Neglected—Douglas Avenue May Have Playgrounds—Mr. Bradford Offers to Send Instructor Here For Two Months—The Officers

The postponed annual meeting of the Playgrounds Association was held last evening, with the vice-president, Walter C. Allison, in the chair. He read a letter from the president, Miss Mabel Peters, expressing her sympathy with the work and regret at her absence. Messages of regret at their absence and expressing hearty sympathy with the work were received from Mrs. T. S. Simms, W. B. Tennant, R. H. Bruce and other members.

The chairman announced donations from Mrs. A. A. Stockton and John Johnson & Son. He also expressed pleasure at having learned that the new programme of the Board of Trade advocated moral and financial support for the playground movement. Regarding the failure of the school board to reply to the association's plea for the use of a school building in the evenings, he said he felt that the board did not fully realize its responsibility in this matter, and referred to what was being done in Amherst and in nearly fifty American cities in social centre work of an educational character in school buildings. He expressed the hope that action would be taken if it were possible to get John Bradford to come to St. John for a couple of years. With regard to the grant of $1,000 asked from the city, he said it was hoped to be able to equip and open one new neighborhood playground this year. As to the $2,000 asked for the Rockwood field, he hoped it would be granted, and that the association would be represented in the work of spending it, under expert supervision.

M. E. Agar and George E. Day spoke in regard to the school board, pointing out that it had referred the request of the association to a committee, which had not yet reported. They thought that pending a reply the board was doing excellent work, should not be too sharply criticized.

George L. Barbour said that perhaps the board was not so much to be criticized for what it did as for conveying the impression that it was too conservative, and needed to be pushed. It did not place sufficient emphasis upon the value of its work and of the value of the educational advantages offered by the city to its young people.

Mr. Agar spoke at some length of the very valuable work done by the board, and the heavy financial obligations it must meet. If the citizens wanted more they must be willing to pay more.

A. M. Bolding said the fact remained that the valuable school plant of the city was in use less than one-third of the time, and there were hundreds of youth who needed the benefit of evening classes, and if the people were at fault then the people should be appraised to.

Mr. Barbour said that he recognized the excellent work done by the board, and only meant that they should do more. He pointed out that the board should take the lead in such matters. He referred to the Y. M. C. A. educational classes, and the work they are doing this winter, with one class of about twenty in mechanical drawing.

Mr. H. Bullock expressed sympathy with a wider use of school buildings for educational purposes.

Mr. Agar discussed the question of city grants, and suggested that a committee ask for a hearing before the city council, which, especially in regard to the Rockwood grounds wanted expert knowledge, and to being being expressed that the instructor have the feeling that any expenditure made would produce the desired results. Personally he would favor control of any expenditure there by the association.

George E. Day pointed out that a good neighborhood playground could be located on the lot beside the Bentley school. If it were established he was assured of some contributions from Douglas avenue residents.

A letter from John Bradford was read, stating in reply to an enquiry, that an instructor could come down from Amherst for two months after March 15, to give a short course for playground teachers. The matter was referred to the executive, the should be secured and that it would also be a good thing for community work in St. John if Mr. Bradford's services could be secured upon his leaving Amherst.

The officers were re-elected as follows: President, Miss Mabel Peters; vice-president, Walter C. Allison; treasurer, Dr. Margaret Parks; secretary, A. M. Bolding; auditors, E. B. Jones and Miss Grace Leavitt. These with the permanent members of the executive will select the additional members of the executive.

The association expressed its approval of the annual report printed in booklet form.

The Londonbury Synod of the Irish Methodist church has adopted a resolution protesting against golf playing on Sundays on the links opened near the city, and urging the Christian people of 'Derry to discontinue in every way this disregard of the Lord's Day.
