THE FLM INCIDENT.

Washington was taking formal command of the Continental army at Cambridge. He crooked his arm, placed his elbow against the historic elm and rested his head on his hand. Then he witnessed the ill assorted gathering of patriots. In the midst of his remarks his elbow suddenly slipped from the tree and Washington completely lost his equilibrium.

"Why didn't you inform me," said the great general, with dignity, "that this tree was a slippery elm?" Women's Home Companion.

A TALE OF HORROR FROM WILDS OF NORTHERN QUE.

Three Men Dead — Two of Them Were Driven to Cannibalism.

QUEBEC, June 15.—That three lives have been lost in the far Quebec north and that two of the men were portions of the third while one of the two remaining partially devoured his companion and later died in agony himself is the awful tale that, judging by facts received by the authorities, would seem to be only too true.

The partial remains of two of the men have been found and the Provincial Detective Department has officially announced that it has given up further efforts to find the third man, believing that he perished months ago.

In the month of September last, Mr. Joseph Gussert and his companion, a Mr. Bernard, of Paris, France, arrived in Montreal, and after spending some days there came to Quebec and announced their intention of going on a hunting trip northwest of Lake St. John. Their outfit was purchased with a great deal of care and they engaged the services of Auguste Lemieux, a well-known hunting guide of Mistassini, Lake St. John. The three started from Quebec in the best of health, and being sturdy, well-built men, with lots of provisions for a six or seven weeks' trip, looked forward to an enjoyable outing, the two Parisians being due in Paris late in December.

In January, 1903, another party left Quebec with the intention of trapping in the Height of Land District. The party was composed of Mr. Joseph Kurtness, of Quebec, his son and two guides. On the way back they met an Indian named Come-Etienne. The Indian told them he had seen a camped ground of white people that he had located there not very long ago. He gave a description of the spot and showed them a trail by which they could reach the scene.

CAME UPON OLD CAMP.

The next day the party came upon what had been a camp at the head of the third portage near Lake Chatoque. They cleared away the snow and found evidence that two men had prepared a meal there. Quite near the remains of the fire there was found a hand with a bag containing some clothing and at the opening of the bag was a note, still legible, which said:

"We are without provisions, join us as quickly as possible. December 23, noon."

"Signed: Bernard—P. S.—If you can get powder and cartridges and the heavier skin, they are on the to-bogwan."

In the bag were also found articles marked "Gussett," and "A. L. Lemieux."

The search party spent ten days in the north of the men, but eventually had to come down for lack of provisions. This was on February 23, two months after the Bernard note was written.

On April 3 the McKenna Trading Company sent a party of fifteen men to take provisions up to Lake Chatoque, the Chatoque Gold and Asbestos Mining Company, and a few days later Mr. Joseph Kurtness started on the same trail on a fur trading expedition, but had to stop at Chamouchan, on account of ill-health. Three of the McKenna men met Mr. Kurtness and the story of the former meeting with the Indians was repeated.

On June 15, 1903, the McKenna men, Alfred Perron, of St. Felecion, Que., found under one of the shanties of the McKenna Company a No. 12 automatic gun or Belgian make and also a canvas bag with some 20 to 30 empty shells (brass), No. 12. The gun was stuck in the snow half under the shanty. There was no sign of any letter and Mr. Perron, with those who accompanied him, came to the conclusion that Mr. Bernard and Mr. Gussett with their guide had perished from cold and hunger. This seemed all the more reasonable because they had not been seen below St. Felecion.

It was decided, however, to keep up the search, and the men went in all directions, as far from the camp as possible.

A SHOCKING DISCOVERY.

On the 15th of May, Mr. Kurtness and one of the McKenna men went to the lake to see if the ice was moving, and saw in the water what looked like a dead dog. After much trouble the object was secured and brought to shore. It was found to be a portion of the body of a man. A rude coffin was made and the remains placed in it, but it presented such a strange sight that it about thought best by Mr. Kurtness and others to examine the entrails, which were found wrapped in the trousers of the victim and fastened to the body. This examination showed beyond any doubt that the man did die of starvation and that he was in a healthy condition when he died.

Emile Robertson, Eustache Robertson, Gabriel Kurtness, Peter Kurtness, of Pointe Bleue and Alfred Perron, of St. Felecion, Quebec.

After the body had been buried by these men they made a further search and found written on a door the following:

"La Riviere—à-nous—pas ni — is huit jours."

There was a plain effort to shape the message from the wood with an old axe that lay near by, as though the two men had eventually decided that in case the body of their mutilated guide should be found and they should be saved it would be well to announce to the world that they had not partaken of food for eight days.

The finding of the body, with the description, was reported to the Attorney-General's Department on the return of the party, the remains meanwhile being buried. Two men acting under instructions from Chief McCaskill were sent out to see if there were any traces of the two men, instructions being given to arrest them for murder should they be found.

These men sent out by Mr. McCaskill have since returned with a report that they had failed to find the slightest trace after travelling a short distance south-west of Lake Warwasipi. Meanwhile men were stationed at every point where it would be possible for the two men to come out.

ANOTHER BODY FOUND.

Word now comes from a point north of Ville Marie, that the remains of a man, who was evidently a forester, have been found in an old shed there. It is in a horribly mutilated condition and gives evidence that the man had been treated in the same manner as that of the unfortunate guide, Auguste Lemieux. Whether it be the body of Gussett or of Bernard is still a mystery.

Meanwhile the authorities have given up further effort to find the third man, as it is believed that he has long since perished from hunger or cold, and perhaps he became a madman before he joined his two companions in death.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT STEAMERS' LAUNCHING.

BUFFALO, N.Y., June 16.—One man was killed, one fatally injured and another badly hurt at the launching of a small river steamer, from Squaw Island, into the Niagara river, this afternoon. The men stood amidst the water when the boat was started in a safe position. When the boat struck the water the three men were hurled head foremost into the lake.

VALUABLE LIQUID THIS.

English Fireman Said to Have Discovered Old Roman Secret.

LONDON, June 16.—Inspector Simpson, of the Blackburn Fire Brigade, claims to have discovered the long principle of which, after many months' search, has been pronounced by leading engineers to be the old Roman secret, which has been lost five hundred years. When painted with this preparation the paper proof becomes dry. Presumably the secret was lost when it can be damaged immediately. Ironwork covered with this preparation, cannot rust. It completely prevents the wearing of the inner skins of iron ships and the oxidation of marine gravities, barnacles, etc., on the bottom of vessels.

BUY DUTCH BOATS FOR COAST LINE

Victoria Firm to Put on Service to Mexico.

One of the Newly-acquired Steamers is at Vladivostok and the Other in the Mediterranean.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 16.—A new steamship line connecting Vancouver, Victoria, Puget Sound and Los Angeles with Salina Cruz and other Mexican ports will be established next Spring by Jensen and Osterlund. The firm has secured two Dutch steamers, the Prima Hendrik and the Prima Sophia, of the Amsterdam-Java mail line, for the new service. The former vessel has been renamed the Erna and the other the Ella. The Erna is now at Vladivostok, where she took general cargo from Hamburg and will come to Puget Sound direct from there. The Ella is a sister steamer and has the record of carrying the quickest mail between Amsterdam and Surabaya.

In January Capt. Jensen and others interested in the Mexican Pacific Trading Company, which owns a large area at Acapulco, will leave by the Ella to lay out a sailing programme. Each of the two steamers will have accommodations for ninety saloon passengers. The Erna is a three masted steel steamer of 3,825 tons, built in 1890 at Greenock. The Ella is a sister steamer and has the record of carrying the quickest mail between Amsterdam and Surabaya.
