SELF DEPRECIATION.

The time comes in the stress and strain of life's hard experience when one realizes the limits of his ability. He has discovered his points of weakness and is conscious of them in himself. But it is not well to confess them to others for the sake of sympathy or to those who love us. Their estimate is thereby lowered even though they are attached. They lose faith when one confesses his own sense of weakness, and one also loses faith in himself and suffers a distinct loss of moral fibre from weakness of will. Christian humbleness of mind is not identical with weakness and does not require one to expose himself to the pity of his friends. The true course is not to dwell in thought upon one's own faults or failings and not to harp upon them, but to live and think bravely, to attempt the duties at hand with firm and faithful effort and to leave the judgment, the results and the reward with God. It is a preservative against week and foolish self-depreciation before men to be conscious of doing one's best in the sight of God, asking only His approval. Let no one depreciate himself to himself or to others. It is a sign of weakness.—Watchman.

THE GRACE OF SILENCE.

This grace of silence under trial is one of the most rare and difficult graces, but it is one of the most pleasing to God and most conducive to strength and beauty of Christian character. None of us loves to suffer and we all shudder at the sight of the probe of the amputating knife. But when the infinite love it engaged in cutting out a selfish lust or cutting off a diseased limb, our duty is to submit. "Keep still, my friend," says the surgeon to the patient in the hospital, for restlessness may produce false cuts and aggravate the process." If the brave fellow is wise, he will say: "Doctor, go as deep as you choose; only to be sure to fetch out the bullet." Ah! the battlefield often requires less courage than the hospital! The onset of service, with drums beating and bugles sounding, does not so test the mettle of our graces as to be thrown down wounded, or to be commanded to lie still and suffer. To shout a battle cry at the month of the cannon is easier than to put our hands on our mouths and be silent because "God did it." If he is silent as to explanations of trying providences, let us be silent in our filial submission. God knows what is best for us; that is enough.

An independent French-Catholic church at Manchaug, Mass., has become Protestant, and its pastor, Rev. A. E. Ribourg, and his forty-two parishioners have been formerly received into the Baptist denomination. The forty-two members were formerly communicants of the Roman Catholic parish, but they withdrew from the parent church which has 1,100 persons two or three years ago, as the result of difficulties with the pastor, Rev. J. A. Champeau, whose successor, Rev. A. G. Brusseau, is now in charge. The dissenters built an independent church at a cost of $3,000 and made Rev. Father Ribourg pastor. Rev. Mr. Ribourg belonged to the Roman Catholic church in France, but became a follower of the old Catholic movement on the continent of Europe.
