

NO WATER FOR THE I. C. R., SAYS MAYOR STUART OF TRURO.

Will Not Approve of the Resolution for Water to Be Supplied the Railway Pending a Settlement.

Truro, Aug. 9.—(Special)—A hot meeting of the town council was held tonight over the water supplied the Intercolonial Railway by Truro. The whole history of the agitation of the town for a higher rate of pay from the railway department and the final climax of turning off the supply from the railway because the price set by the town would not be paid, has already been reported in The Telegraph. During the absence of Mayor Stuart recently, two meetings of the council were held with Presiding Councillor Beck in the chair. At the latter, the following resolution was passed, causing the water to be turned off after nearly a year: "Resolved, That in view of a satisfactory settlement promised by the railway department within a reasonable time, of the difficulties existing between the town of Truro and the railway department regarding the water supply, that the water be turned on as of once, it being understood between the parties that this is done without prejudice to or interference with any legal rights the town may have in connection with the matter and without prejudice to any claim or claims the town may have against the department. This is done pending settlement within a reasonable time."

NEGRO BURNED AT THE STAKE IN GEORGIA LAST SATURDAY.

His Victim's Husband Applied the Torch, and the Negro Cooked to Death Without a Groan.

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 11.—Eighteen miles south of Savannah, near the Seaboard Air Line Railroad, the charred trunk of the body of Joe Washington, the negro ravisher of Mrs. J. J. Clark, is all that remains to tell the story of the tragedy of last night. Washington was captured at Liberty City yesterday afternoon and was brought to Way Station, near which place his crime was committed. He was carried in before Mrs. Clark, who identified him positively as the negro who had assaulted her. The negro's positive identification sealed his fate. A mob of 400 men clamored for his life, but the leaders, numbering less than a dozen, carried into execution their plan of vengeance. The rest of the mob was kept at a distance. Washington walked to his death without a tremor and met it without a prayer or a appeal for mercy. He admitted his guilt of crimes incident to the principal, but to the end he stubbornly refused to acknowledge that he had assaulted Mrs. Clark. A crowd was driven into the earth. To this Washington was bound in a sitting position. His legs extended straight in front of him on either side of the bar. A chain held him fast around the waist and another around his neck. Washington's victim had been asked by the leaders of the mob to apply the torch to the pyre, but this she declined. Her husband was selected in her stead. Washington looked straight into the eyes of Clark as the latter stooped down to apply the match. The wood was rich, fat pine, and was saturated with kerosene oil. The flames leaped hungrily towards Washington's body, but the man showed no signs in his face of agony; he must have suffered, and met death without a groan. The leaders of the mob watched till Washington's head fell back upon his shoulders and he died. Then, without a shout having been fired, without noise and without undue excitement, they dispersed. Negroes, citizens of the section of Bryan county in which the tragedy took place, were almost a unit in approving it, and very many of them were members of the mob.

Now German Catholic societies are talking up the idea. The claim is made that not only are many Catholic young men drawn away by the existing Young Men's Christian Association, because they found nothing of the sort in their own church, but an admirable plan for developing and holding Catholic young men is unused. German Catholic societies meet in September and will take up the movement. His associates failed to get any booty and left their victim lying unconscious on the sidewalk. GRAND OLD MAN OF ITALY PASSED AWAY SUNDAY.

Sigor Crispi, ex-Premier of the Nation, Who Had an Eventful Career.

Naples, Aug. 11.—Sigor Crispi died at 7.45 this evening. He was surrounded by the members of his family and several intimate friends. The news was immediately telegraphed to King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helene. The evening papers assert that the body will be conveyed by steamer to Palermo where the municipality will arrange for a great public funeral. It is rumored that Sigor Crispi's father authorized a prominent Italian politician to examine his papers and to publish his memoirs. Rome, Aug. 12.—In consequence of the low condition of Sigor Crispi yesterday (Sunday) morning, the injections of stimulants administered to him were discontinued. He was stopped, the physician recognizing that both were quite useless. He was virtually dead for hours before the physicians certified that he was extinct. Some indignation was expressed when the public learned that the details of the funeral had been arranged before death came. It is rumored that the affairs of the deceased are in the greatest confusion, and that Sigor Crispi will have to depend solely on the proceeds of the sale of the memoirs. The body will lie in state for three days in the drawing room at the Villa Lina, in Naples. A great state funeral will be held in Naples before the body is removed to Palermo. Francesco Crispi was born at Ribera, in Sicily, October 4, 1819; studied law at Palermo, and became member of the bar at Naples, where he took part in the conspiracies which led to the overthrow of the kingdom of the Sicilies in 1848. He was one of the chief promoters of the insurrection of Palermo, became deputy and general secretary of war, and for ten years was the heart and soul of the resistance offered by the Sicilian people. After the victories gained by the Swiss regiments Sigor Crispi fled to France. In 1859 and 1860 he organized the new Sicilian revolution, landed at Palermo with Garibaldi and his volunteers, and after fighting as a simple soldier, became a minister, in which capacity he paved the way for the annexation of the two Sicilies to the kingdom of Italy. In 1861 he was returned by the city of Palermo to the first Italian parliament, in which he took a prominent and influential position, becoming in a short time the acknowledged leader of the constitutional opposition. It was the understanding between Sigor Crispi and the old Piedmontese "third party" which led to the formation of the new Italian ministry. He was chosen as a deputy at the elections of November, 1870, by several electoral colleges, and "opted" for that of Bari. On the 22nd of March he was elected president of the chamber of deputies by 232 votes against 115. Later he became premier of Italy, but owing to the disastrous result of the Abyssinian war and his connection with the bank scandals in Italy he was compelled to retire. He still remained, however, an active figure in Italian politics, but was never called to power. His domestic life is filled with romance. He was married three times. His first wife was the daughter of a noble family, but she died young. His second wife was a girl of low station in life and they lived together for a number of years when she was found quite unwell in her new position, when it was discovered that her marriage was irregular and that the couple were not legally married. He gave his second wife a good divorce and married a young lady of excellent social standing. She had great influence over him and it is attributed his connection with the bank scandals, but she never called to power. His third wife was a girl of low station in life and they lived together for a number of years when she was found quite unwell in her new position, when it was discovered that her marriage was irregular and that the couple were not legally married. ROYALTY ASSEMBLING FOR OBSEQUIES OF THE LATE DOWAGER EMPRESS.

Streets of Cronberg Full of Troops, and the Scene of Great Bustle—A Dramatic Picture.

Cronberg, Aug. 10.—The church bells have been tolling throughout the day. The empress, the Crown Prince and other princes drove over from Homberg this morning and were present at the reading of prayers by the Bishop of Ripon at the side of the coffin of the Dowager Empress. A requiem service was held in the old Catholic church. Bishop Eskeland eloquently discoursed on the virtues of the deceased. All the Italian workmen at Cronberg have been sent to Frankfurt to have been ordered not to leave their residences. The military and police regulations are of the most drastic nature and the facilities of newspaper correspondents are much curtailed. Tall masts with Prussian flags draped with crepe have been erected in the streets of the village which is full of troops and presents a scene of great bustle. Officers and mounted orderlies and other messengers are hurrying to and fro completing arrangements. It is understood that Prince and Princess Frederick Charles of Hesse, will inherit Frederickshof. The princess (Margaret) is the youngest daughter of the deceased Dowager Empress. Punctually at 9:30 o'clock tonight came the far off sound of muffled drums and the will-the-wisp like twinkling of torches through distant trees. As the glare of the uplifted torches drew nearer down the winding road, it revealed a long black massive line on the shoulders of a dozen soldiers. Then another flare revealed the well known figure of the emperor pacing with sombre tread just behind the coffin. The wiest sign, appeared for a moment and then dissolved under the flying torches, while on each side for a mile along the road were the glittering bayonets and helmets of the Eightieth Regiment of the line of which the dead Dowager Empress was colonel-in-chief. In the dimly lighted church the coffin was borne silently down the aisle and deposited beneath the gurnel beneath a crucifix. Dr. Remarke, the court chaplain, spoke a few solemn words. Following the address, the emperor deposited a magnificent wreath upon the coffin. His majesty stood a moment motionless, then dropped upon his knees. The whole congregation followed and five minutes was devoted to silent prayer. It was an intensely dramatic scene, the more so because of its great simplicity. The emperor rose and silently left the church. The party was then driven back to Friedrichshof, leaving the coffin to rest throughout the night between the silent guardians beneath the dim light. Cronberg, Aug. 11.—People flocked into Cronberg from an early hour today to see the august personages who would attend the requiem service over the remains of Dowager Empress Frederick. Throughout the night and again today the officers of the regiments of which the deceased was honorary colonel, had stood guard over the coffin. From 11 a. m. there was an unbroken stream of carriages arriving from Homberg, Frankfurt and other points, bringing those invited to the solemn ceremony. Benckheim Hussars took its stand opposite the church. Every window, balcony and house top was filled with people, awaiting the arrival of the imperial personages. At 4 o'clock the roll of muffled drums announced the arrival of Emperor William and King Edward, who has driven to Cronberg from Homberg. The emperor, wearing the black uniform of the Empress' Own Posen Hussars, led by Crown Alexander into the church, while King Edward, in the blue uniform of the King Edward Prussian Dragoons, conducted Empress Augusta Victoria, Princess Victoria, with Crown Prince Frederick William and a numerous suite followed. Their majesties occupied a pew to the left of the chancel, the one in which the deceased used to sit; while grouped around the chancel stood the other imperial and royal personages mentioned, together with Prince Adolph of Prussia, Prince and Princess Schlegel, the hereditary Prince of Saxe-Meiningen, the Crown Prince and Princess of Greece, with their children, and the Prince of Reuss, together with the suites of all. Baron Von Reischach stood at the right and Count Von Siedenroff, who was the grand chamberlain of the deceased, at the left of the coffin. As the organ played the funeral march, Dr. Dryander advanced to the head of the coffin. The choir from Berlin Cathedral sang I Know That My Redeemer Liveth, and Dr. Dryander read a specially written prayer, after which Emperor William's four eldest sons stepped forward with drawn swords and stood close to the coffin. Dr. Dryander then delivered an oration extolling the virtues of the Dowager Empress.
