

princes and peers then present do their homage publicly and solemnly unto the king.

The archbishop first kneels down before his majesty's knees, and the rest of the bishops kneel in their places; and they do their homage together, the shortening of the ceremony, the archbishop saying:—

I, Frederick Archbishop of Canterbury (and so every one of the rest, I, N. Bishop of N. repeating the rest suitably after the archbishop) will be faithful and true, and faith and truth will bear unto you our sovereign lord and your heirs kings of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. And I will do, and truly acknowledge as the service of the lands I claim to hold of you, as in right of the church. So help me God.

Then the archbishop kisseth the king's left cheek.

Then the Prince of Wales, taking off his coronet, kneels down before his majesty's knees, the rest of the princes of the blood royal kneeling in their places, taking off their coronets and pronouncing the words of homage after him, the Prince of Wales saying:—

I, N. prince or duke, etc., of N., do become your liege man of life and limb and of earthly worship, and I will be faithful and true to you, my sovereign lord, and I will be true unto you, to live and die, against all manner of folk. So help me God.

Then the prince of the blood royal arising severally kneels down before his majesty's head and kiss his majesty's left cheek. After which the other peers of the realm, who are then in their seats, kneel down, and do the same as the prince of the blood royal, the dukes first by themselves, and so the marquesses, the earls, the viscounts, and the barons, severally in their places, the first and the others of his order who are near his majesty, also kneeling in their places, and all of his order saying after him, the Prince of Wales saying:—

I, N. duke or earl, etc., of N., do become your liege man of life and limb, and of earthly worship and faith and truth, I will be true unto you, to live and die, against all manner of folk. So help me God.

The peers having done their homage, the first of each order, putting off his coronet, singly kneels down before his majesty, touching the crown on his majesty's head, as promising by that ceremony for himself and his order to be ever ready to support it with all their power, and then kisseth the king's cheek.

While the princes and peers are thus doing their homage, the king, if he thinks good, delivers his sceptre with the cross and the sceptre or rod with the dove, to some one near to the blood royal, or to the lords that carried them in the procession, or to any other whom he pleaseth to assign, to hold them by him.

And the bishops that support the king in the procession may also see him by the crown, as there shall be occasion.

At the same time the choir singeth this Anthem.

Kings shall see and arise, princes also shall worship; because of the Lord that is faithful, even the Holy One of Israel who hath chosen thee: That thou mayest say to the prisoners, Go forth; they that are in darkness, Show yourself. For he that hath mercy on them shall lead them, even by the springs of water shall he guide them. And I will make all my highways shall be exalted. Behold, these shall come from far; and, lo, these from the north and from the west; and these from the land of Sinim.

When the homage is ended, the drums, beat, and the trumpets sound, and all the people shout, crying out:—

God save King Edward.
God save King Edward.
May the king live for ever.

The solemnity of the king's coronation being thus ended, the king, with the king in his throne and goes to his chair.

Section XVII.
The Queen's Coronation by the Archbishop of York.

The queen ariseth and goeth to the steps of the altar, supported by two bishops, and then kneeleth down, whilst the Archbishop of York saith the following prayer:—

Almighty God, the fountain of all goodness: Give ear, we beseech thee, to our prayers, and multiply the blessings upon thy servants, whom in thy name, with all humble devotion, we consecrate our queen; defend her evermore from danger, ghostly and bodily; make her a great example of virtue and piety, and a blessing to this kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord, who liveth and reigneth with thee, O Father, in the unity of the Holy Spirit, world without end. Amen.

The queen's coronation being thus ended, the queen ariseth, and cometh to the place of her anointment: Which is to be at a falstool set for that purpose before the altar, between the steps and the altar.

The king and queen then put on their crowns and taking the sceptres in their hands again, repair to the steps of the altar, bearing her sceptre in her right hand, and the king's sceptre in her left hand, and the king and queen then put on their crowns and taking the sceptres in their hands again, repair to the steps of the altar, bearing her sceptre in her right hand, and the king's sceptre in her left hand, and the king and queen then put on their crowns and taking the sceptres in their hands again, repair to the steps of the altar, bearing her sceptre in her right hand, and the king's sceptre in her left hand.

Section XIX.
The Revers.

The whole coronation office being thus performed, the king attended and accompanied by the four sword-bearers carried before him, descends from his throne crowned, and carrying his sceptre and rod in his hands, goes into the eastward of the theatre and passes on through the door on the south side of the altar into St. Edward's chapel; and as they pass by the altar, the rest of the regalia, which are to be delivered by the Dean of Westminster to the lords that carry them in the procession, and so they proceed in state into the choir, bearing her sceptre in her right hand, and the king's sceptre in her left hand, and the king and queen then put on their crowns and taking the sceptres in their hands again, repair to the steps of the altar, bearing her sceptre in her right hand, and the king's sceptre in her left hand.

Then the Archbishop of York putteth the sceptre into the queen's right hand, and the sword rod with the dove into her left hand; and saith this prayer:—

O Lord, the giver of all perfection: Give to this thy servant Alexandra our queen, that by the powerful and mild influence of her piety and virtue, she may adorn the high dignity which she hath obtained, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The queen being thus anointed and crowned, and having received all her ornaments, ariseth and goeth from the altar, supported by two bishops, and then kneeleth down, whilst the Archbishop of York saith the following prayer:—

Almighty God, the fountain of all goodness: Give ear, we beseech thee, to our prayers, and multiply the blessings upon thy servants, whom in thy name, with all humble devotion, we consecrate our queen; defend her evermore from danger, ghostly and bodily; make her a great example of virtue and piety, and a blessing to this kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord, who liveth and reigneth with thee, O Father, in the unity of the Holy Spirit, world without end. Amen.

The queen's coronation being thus ended, the queen ariseth, and cometh to the place of her anointment: Which is to be at a falstool set for that purpose before the altar, between the steps and the altar.

monia, ariseth and goeth from the altar, supported by two bishops, and so up to the throne. And as she passes to the king on his throne, she boweth herself reverently to his majesty, and then is conducted to her own throne, and with-out any further ceremony, taketh her place in it.

Section XVIII.
Then the oratory begins, the archbishop reading these sentences:—

Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

Charge them who are rich in this world, that they be ready to give, and glad to distribute; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may attain eternal life. Then the organ plays and the choir sing:—

Let my prayer come up into thy presence as incense and let the lifting up of my hands be as an evening sacrifice.

In the meanwhile the king and queen deliver their sceptres to the noblemen who had previously borne them, and descend from their thrones, supported and attended as before, and go to the steps of the altar where, taking off their crowns, which they deliver to the lord great chamberlain and other appointed officers to hold, they kneel down.

And first the king offers bread and wine for the Communion, which being brought out of St. Edward's chapel, and delivered into his hands (the bread upon the paten by the bishop that read the epistle, and the wine in the chalice by the bishop that read the gospel) are by the archbishop received from the king, and reverently placed upon the altar, and decently covered with a fair linen cloth, the archbishop first saying this prayer:—

Bless, O Lord, we beseech thee, these thy gifts, and sanctify them unto this holy use, that by them we may be made partakers of the body and blood of thine only begotten son, Jesus Christ, and fed unto everlasting life of soul and body: And that thy servant King Edward may be enabled to the discharge of his weighty office, whereas, by thy great goodness thou hast called and appointed him. Grant this, O Lord, for Jesus Christ's sake, our only mediator and advocate. All thy power, and then kisseth the king's cheek.

Then the king kneeling, as before, makes his oblation, offering a pall or altar-cloth delivered by the officer of the great wardrobe to the lord great chamberlain and by him, kneeling, to his majesty, and an ingot or wedge of gold of a pound weight, which the treasurer of the household delivers to the lord great chamberlain, and he to his majesty; and the archbishop coming in him, receiveth and placeth them upon the altar.

The queen also at the same time maketh her oblation of a pall or altar-cloth, and a mark weight of gold, in like manner as the king.

Then the king and queen return to their chairs, and kneel down at their falstools, and the archbishop saith:—

Let us pray for the whole state of Christ's church militant here in earth. Almighty and everliving God, etc.

then receive in his left hand the orb from the archbishop. Then their majesties will proceed through the choir to the west door of the church, in the same way as they came, wearing their crowns; the king bearing in his right hand the sceptre with the cross, and in his left the orb; the queen bearing in her right hand her sceptre with the cross, and in her left the ivory rod with the dove; all peers wearing their coronets.

Your lungs quickly heal and your cough disappears. It's whooping-cough it's simply perfect.

PRETENDER AT CORONATION.
Heir of Stuart Line Will Be Present in Son of "Mary IV."

Among the royalties in London on the day of King Edward's coronation will be no more interesting personage than the heir of the Stuart pretensions of Bavaria, the Prince Rupprecht, who is the son of the heir apparent to the throne of Bavaria, being grandson of Prince Louis, the aged prince regent. Prince Rupprecht represented Bavaria at the jubilee of Queen Victoria, and will also be sent to the coronation. The particularly interesting thing about the baby prince is that he is the heir to the Stuart pretensions to the English crown. Prince Rupprecht's mother is Princess Maria Theresa of Austria-Moravia-Este, lineal descendant of Maria Henrietta, daughter of Charles I. This lady, by the few remaining legends in England is entitled "Queen Mary IV of England and III of Scotland."

His little grandson, the newborn prince, inherits by strictly legal claim, which the accession of the Hanoverians, William and Mary, at the deposition of James II makes merely a shadow.

There is no probability, however, that the king's champion, Dymock of Scrivelsby, will be called upon to fight any of the Bavarian pretensions. Prince Rupprecht distinctly discharges any reference to his "rights" in regard to the throne, and is a warm friend of their present majesties.

The baby prince, if he lives, will be baptised at his father and his grandfather, and his great-great-uncle, the present monarch.

The baby's mother was the Duchess Marie Gabrielle, daughter of Duke Carl Theodor of Bavaria, the royal cousin who built an eye hospital and has performed more than 4,000 operations for cataract.—New York Journal.

U. N. B. SPORTS.
E. J. Ryan of St. John Carries Off Championship—He Breaks Records.

Fredericton, N. B., May 25 (Special)—The university students have reason to congratulate themselves upon the great success which attended their annual athletic competition here yesterday afternoon. Despite threatening weather, the attendance was large and the track in good condition. In a total of 15 events there were six records smashed and two others tied.

E. J. Ryan, a young St. John student, did remarkably well, carrying off the championship belt and lowering four records. McKenna, of Campbellton, though out of condition, also did good work. The only cause of regret among the university men was that the sports were not intercollegiate in character. The summary:—

Stadium races—McKenzie, 1; Ryan, 2; McManus, 3; 9 feet 11 inches. Hundred yard dash—Ryan, 1; McKenzie, 2; Jordan, 3; time, 10.9 seconds. Hurdle race—McKenzie, 1; Baskin, 2; Howie, 3; distance, 107 feet, 6 inches. Former record, 105 feet 6.12 inches.

Two hundred and twenty yards dash—Ryan, 1; Gilliat, 2; Jordan, 3; time, 25 seconds; time record.

Pole vault—Weyman, 1; Raymond, 2; Jordan, 3; distance, 11.2 meters. Quarter mile run—Ryan, 1; Jordan, 2; Gilliat, 3; time, 56 seconds; former record, 58 seconds.

Victoria Day Races at St. Stephen.
St. Stephen, May 24 (Special)—About 700 persons attended, the horse races at the park this afternoon. Not writing about the horseracing, but the racing was for the season, the directors wisely concluded to have half mile heats in each class. This enabled them to procure a good number of entries and all starting except one horse. Both races were warmly contested, especially the 224 class, the leaders fighting every foot of the course.

The judges were: J. E. Osborne, Chairman; P. E. L.; J. E. Moore. Hugh Love, timekeeper. The first heat of the harness race was called with horses in the following positions: Nellie Glen, Dufferin, Wheelwright, Amelias, and C. C. the latter of the 224 class all the entries lined up in the following order: Cherry, Arden, Lady Lumps, Orphan Girl, Barbados, Orphan Girl, and Orphan Girl, who had the best of the start, and Orphan Girl, with Lumps close behind. Arden ran a short distance and was placed third at the finish. Orphan Girl was the winner, with Lumps next.

The second heat in the harness race was also won by Annie, Wheelwright losing a tire of a sulky at the first quarter.

The second heat in the 224 class proved close between the winner, Orphan Girl and Lumps. Orphan Girl won by a neck. The third heat in the 224 class resulted in Dufferin winning, he passing Annie and Wheelwright near the finish.

The third heat in the 224 class resulted in Orphan Girl coming to the front at the first quarter, collaring Orphan Girl and finishing ahead and making the best time of the race. In the event of a tie, the driver of Barbados evidently was feeling the mettle of his opponents, as he then won the following heats and race, although in the fifth Orphan Girl took the place of Orphan Girl and came in close to the winner. Cherry Arden having cut her foot in the third heat was "down."

The time in heats of the 224 class, half mile, was 1.13, 1.13, 1.11, 1.12, 1.14. The harness race was won by 1.16, 1.16, 1.18, 1.20. In the latter race the prizes were harness, lap robe and whip.

Races at Moosepass.
Dr. T. Fred Johnston, having leased the Moosepass park and track, has had the place thoroughly repaired, the fence and grand stand have been put in the best condition, and the work of getting the track into shape for the coming season is well advanced. Already the horsemen who have fast ones are using the track to good advantage and lovers of good racing will undoubtedly see some fast events this season. Doctor Johnston has arranged for a meet at the park on Coronation day. There will be three events. A purse of $250 is offered for a free-for-all trot and pace; a purse of $300 for a 2.25 class trot and pace, and there will also be a named race. The meet will open with Doggie Johnston June 14. It has been quite a while since St. John has had a good meet, and horsemen are anxiously awaiting a chance.

OUR COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE.
FREDERICTON.
Fredericton, May 25—Information received today from John Kilburn's drive is to the effect that while operations are hampered by lack of water, yet some progress is made every day. Kilburn is sticking to the drive and has plenty of men and there is yet hope that the lumber may be brought out. The other operators on the upper St. John are in about the same situation.

The case against John McCoy, under the C. T. A., was continued at the police court this morning. This afternoon Colonel Marshall, head of the police, and received his decision until Tuesday morning next. Blackey, the alleged driver, was not present in court this morning.

Fredericton, May 25 (Special)—John Kilburn, who has been superintending his steam driving operations on the upper St. John, returned home last evening. He confirms the report already published in the Telegraph that his drive of ten miles up the river today is old lumber, which is liable to depreciate in value. It remains in the water another season. Noble, Choudry, Dickie and Delanger are hung up at Priestly Rapids, but a slight rise of water will likely carry them and also Kilburn into the corporation limits. Mr. Kilburn was obliged to stop work on the 22nd but he has left a number of men in charge of the drive.

It is now quite certain that Blackey, the Scott Act detective, has left for Paris. Mr. Belcher has in turn bought the Shad Perkins property on the Flat. Mr. Tweedie, who had the latter property retained, has moved into Mrs. Tracy's house. R. W. Balloch, who has sold his farm and residence to Percy Fitzgerald, expects to move in a week or 10 days into the residence owned by Shepherd Pratt, opposite the Exchange hotel. Mrs. Gell, it is reported, has leased her mill and residence to Mr. Sherwood, and intends removing for a short time from the place. Taken all in all, this little town is a marked sign of prosperity, as it has increased the number of families permanently located in town, and insures quite an improvement to some of the properties.

Farming a backward owing to the frost and cold wind of the last three weeks, but the crops will be pretty generally in by the end of the present week. The Woodstock Dramatic Club gave a play in Sherwood's Opera House on Tuesday evening, May 20, and realized more than $70 to help in the establishment of a hospital in Woodstock. Too much praise cannot be given those who took part. They took their parts well and gave a charming evening. Rev. J. N. Thorne acted as chairman of the concert, and William Beaman as auctioneer. A large crowd was present and a very enjoyable evening was spent by all. The baskets realized the nice sum of about $46 towards finishing the hall.

Miss Lulu M., daughter of A. G. Parkin, who has been seriously ill for the past two years, with long trances, is wonderfully improving, under the careful treatment of Doctor McDonald and Doctor Burnett of Sussex. This has many friends are pleased to know.

A concert and pie social in the interest of the Presbyterian church is in order for June.

Harvey Station, York county, May 26—Harvey Station, a young man from Charlottetown, who has been staying here for the winter, had a narrow escape from drowning in the lake Saturday afternoon. He was fishing near the western shore when the water became very rough, and the boat capsized and was in a perilous position. He was a good swimmer, he succeeded in getting to the bottom of the overturned canoe, but had much difficulty in maintaining his position on account of the roughness of the water. His shouts attracted the attention of Norman Smith and Allen L. Grier, who were fishing half a mile away. They succeeded in getting him into their boat not much the worse except that he was severely chilled. He was taken to the hospital and is now recovering.

John McMurray has a number of teams engaged hauling saved lumber from his mill at Lake George to this station for shipment to the American market.

The Swan Company, of Tweedside, also have a considerable quantity of manufactured lumber to bring here for shipment. They have lately put a shingle machine into their mill.

Among the guests at Robertson's hotel are H. S. Hammond and John P. Keirvan, of St. John; also Messrs Kervan and Tapley, of St. John, who are enjoying a few days' fishing in the lakes here.

Fulton, Rev. Alfred Barre, Rev. Donald Stewart and F. M. Cochran. The children sang several patriotic selections. Miss Lily Miller presided at the piano. The hall was artistically decorated with flags.

from the lakes are securing fine catches. Walter Foster and Frank Fales enjoyed a day's outing on Henry Lake during the week.

St. Stephen, May 25 (Special)—The granite mill of the Calais Granite Company was destroyed by fire this forenoon, together with its owned machinery. The building was valued principally by C. W. Young. The works had been idle for some years. An old man had been in the habit of using the former office to sleep in and it is thought that the fire caught from his pipe, as it was discovered soon after he was seen to leave and was extinguished. The loss is estimated at $20,000, on which there was insurance of $10,000. Some lumber owned by H. P. Kotton & Sons, and piled near the building, was also consumed. Other property was in danger for a while but was saved by the firemen.

Salisbury, N. B., May 25—Last Wednesday evening the North Silver Methodist church was the scene of an interesting wedding, the contracting parties being Herbert Cochran and Sarah Eagles. The church was prettily trimmed for the occasion and filled with friends of the bride and groom to spend the 24th and Sunday with friends.
