

Boston and Vicinity.

Old State House (1714), head of State Street, a museum of historic relics. Open daily, 9:30 to 5.

Old North Church (1723), Salem Street, oldest church building in Boston. From its tower the signal was sent to Paul Revere.

Old South Church (1729), corner Washington and Milk Streets. Boston Tea Party organized here.

Faneuil Hall (1741), Merchants' Row. "Cradle of Liberty." Fine historic portraits. Open 9 to 4.

King's Chapel, Tremont Street. Interior like that of old city churches in London.

Bunker Hill Monument, Charlestown. Corner-stone laid by Lafayette in 1825; dedicated by Webster, 1843. The top, 221 feet high, is reached by a staircase of 294 steps.

John Harvard's Grave, Charlestown.

Lexington Common and historic spots in the neighborhood marked by tablets.

Concord Bridge. (See Bicycle Routes, XII.)

Many spots of interest in Cambridge and surrounding towns are marked by suitable stone tablets.

Radcliffe College.

Radcliffe College has come to be in such close relationship with Harvard, that it seems not out of place to give it brief mention in this handbook.

In 1894, by act of the General Court of Massachusetts, Radcliffe College, the successor of the "Society for the Collegiate Instruction of Women," was incorporated, and came into official relation with the University. By the act, she was authorized "to confer on women all honors and degrees as fully as any university or college in this commonwealth is now so empowered, . . . no degree, however, to be so conferred, except with the approval of the President and Fellows of Harvard College, on evidence of such qualification as is accepted for the same degree when conferred by Harvard University."

The President and Fellows of Harvard constitute the Board of Visitors of Radcliffe College, and the President countersigns the diplomas of Radcliffe graduates and affixes to them the seal of Harvard University.

The immediate government is vested in a Council and an Academic Board. The Associates of Radcliffe, twenty-two in number, constitute its Corporation.

The officers of the College are:
President.—Mrs. Elizabeth Cary Agassiz.

Dean.—Miss Agnes Irwin.

Treasurer.—Henry L. Higginson.

W. L. Mackenzie King Papers
Volume C 7

PUBLIC ARCHIVES PUBLIQUES
CANADA