

20. 450,000 have now enlisted under the British flag.

Can. expe. force on 31st of May 1917 (Sir Edward Kemp, Hansard, July the 6th, 1917)	418,102
Enlistment June 1st to 15th	3,392
Enlistment June 15th to 30th	2,358
Enlistment July 1st to 15th	2,166
(Official statements given to the papers).
Active militia on duty	9,052
Permanent military corps	2,470
Canadian naval service	3,310
British naval service	1,600
British mechanical transport	1,200
British munitions works	3,000
British reservists	3,750
	<hr/>
	450,390

(Declaration of the Hon. R. Borden, on the 22nd of January, 1917, Hansard of same date).

To these might have been added, if the foreign born population had been taken into consideration, the following:

French reservists	5,000
Russian reservists	7,500
Italian reservists	5,000

Total allied armies reservists 17,500
(Borden, Hansard of the 22nd of January, 1917).

30. Twenty-five per cent failed to pass the physical examination.

Declaration made by the Hon. Sir Robert Borden to the House of Commons on June the 18th, 1917. (Hansard of same date).

40. 550,000 have volunteered.
Canadian expeditionary force to July the 15th . 426,000