GROWING-GROWING-GROWING

Things Don't Just Happen!

- q You know there must be some fundamental principle at the base of a continuous success.
- q Great things have happened during recent years. But, so far as the farmers of the West are concerned, by far the most important of these is the fact that four and a half years ago, The Guide landed in the West, and a matter much, for a time, seemed to think we didn't have a power to be reckoned with.
- q The Big Interests, for a time, seemed to think we didn't care much. But first impressions are not always accurate. Within twelve months they realized that the rules of jounalistic success. We have not travelled the broad highway lined with sign boards. We have turned our backs on threats and golden chances. We are merely recording the discovery, however, that independence— even in journalism—is not an obstacle to success. We are imbued with honest conviction, and we will go on lighting the good fight for Equality and a Square Deal.
- q During the past six weeks, subscriptions have been pouring into the office in exceedingly large numbers; but it all our readers whose subscriptions are due to expire into the past six weeks, subscriptions have been pour-
- q At the base of a crest of the wave of prosperity. The crest of jounalistic success. We have not travelled the broad highway lined with sign boards. We have turned our backs on threats and golden chances. We are merely recording the discovery, however, that independence— even in journalism—is not an obstacle to success. We are imbued with honest conviction, and we will go on lighting the good fight for Equality and a Square Deal.
- q If called upon to explain our rapid growth and prosperity, Kings who rule the country to put us out of business. Return in the ranks of the Plutocrats and every effort at the Citadel of Privilege are causing great consterna-
- q There's no dodging the fact that our efforts are meeting their just reward. We find, in short, that our shots at the Big Interests, for a time, seemed to think we didn't have a power to be reckoned with.
- q The Guide has taken especial care to ignore the usual rules of jounalistic success. We have not travelled the broad highway lined with sign boards. We have turned our backs on threats and golden chances. We are merely recording the discovery, however, that independence— even in journalism—is not an obstacle to success. We are imbued with honest conviction, and we will go on lighting the good fight for Equality and a Square Deal.

greatly reduced rates:

- q In June, 1908, the first number of The Guide was printed. Since that time our progress has been phenomenal. The Guide has passed the experimental stage, and now occupies the proud position of Canada's Leading Democratic Weekly.
- q It is all very well to know how to grow grain and to raise stock—hence The Guide.
- q The producing end of the farming business is being looked after by a number of excellent journals, but what about a square deal when marketing our produce and live stock to advantage, but we have to see that we get the distributing end?
- q The product of the farming business is being looked after by a number of excellent journals, but what about doing this work now and well?"
- q It is still our best possession.
- q And never since has winter less stopped.
- q Your slanting support its infant steps that propped The vital force by which it lives and grows.
- q Dear Western farmers to whom The Guide owes
