MILK FLOW DURING SUMMER PLANNING TO KEEP UP THE AND FALL

(Experimental Farms Note)
Once more we are entering upon the season of the year when the dairy farmer expects the greatest yield from his cows and his pastures, and if the season is right the land will be fairly "sowing with milk and honey." Unfortunately, however, the season is not always just as right as it might be. Invariably in one section or another there is a drought with its consequent shortage of pasture and decrease in milk flow.

It is important at this time that some sort of supplementary feed be supplied, for if the milk flow is once allowed to decline, it is almost impossible to get it up to the previous high mark again. A little extra feed at this time will produce more milk than will three times the amount fed after the decline has taken place. Many will have profited by past experiences and have made preparation for the shortage of pasture by sowing a piece of annual pasture or soiling crop. Others again may have some of the previous year's crop of silage to fall back on. In any, and particularly the last of the above methods, we have a very efficient means of supplementing the pastures. For those who have not yet made any provision it is not too late to sow an extra acre of corn, some fall turnips, or even a piece of rape. The turnips may be pulled as needed and fed tops and all, while the rape may be pastured off in the late summer and fall. Where previous preparation has not been made, cuttings of the regular crop, such as green oats and peas, second cut clover and green corn will have to be made to fill the bill.

To speak of grain feeding on pasture at present prices seems absurd, and it will be found to be somewhat of an extravagance except with very high producing cows. Where the graze are obtainable a mixture of two parts bran and one each of ground oats and cottonseed meal is excellent.

Apart from the feeding of the cows there is the question of water and shade supply. Both are very necessary. When sufficient protection from the flies, in the form of shade or underbrush, is not to be found, it would be advisable to keep the animals in the stable during the hotter part of the day, allowing them out in the evening. Where supplementary feed has to be cut and hauled to the cows less waste will be occasioned when fed while inside. Where the cows of necessity have to be out all day they should have protection from the flies by spraying with some good fly repellent.

G. W. Muir,
Animal Husbandman.
