GIRLS ARE FRIGHTENED

Peeping Tom Creates A Scare Among City's Fair Sex

Loiters Around Windows
at Night and Startles Inmates

It is becoming quite evident that a Jack-the-Peeper is carrying on his low and debasing pastime in this city. It would also appear, from the number of ladies who have been annoyed and frightened in this way, that there are more than one of his unsavory kind at work.

Recently two young ladies, living in the vicinity of Park street, were badly frightened by this scoundrel. In both of these cases, the young ladies discovered that the shutters on their room windows had been opened. One of them remembered closing the shutters earlier in the evening, and suspecting something wrong, she passed out of the room without taking the light with her, and on looking from the window of a darkened room, she could distinctly see a man standing a short distance from her room window, and staring in. The male members of the household were awakened, but before they could get outside the Peeping Tom had taken flight. The other young lady discovered the Peeper when she opened the window to close the shutters. He made off in a hurry, but on the following night he was seen loitering in the neighborhood again.

A few nights ago, a lady living on King street was retiring when she heard a strange noise near her window. It sounded as though the shutters were being opened. She thought possibly that they had not been securely fastened, and that perhaps the wind was blowing them open. She opened the window and found that one side of the shutters had been opened, but she could see no one. She thought that she could hear a sound as though something were moving on the ground beneath the window. Just as she leaned out of the window to look, a man arose from beneath the ledge where he had been crouching, and stood facing her, then bolted and ran. The great fright she received may be imagined. She was unable to sleep that night and for several nights afterwards from nervousness resulting from the shock.

There is little need of dilating on the meanness and cowardice of the animal resembling a man who would resort to this insane and obnoxious practice. He should take due warning, however, as if he visits a certain window again he will meet with a reception which he will not be quick to forget.

ALL SHOULD ATTEND

It is to be earnestly hoped that there will be a large turnout of members of the Board of Trade at the meeting to be held in the Council Chambers in Harrison Hall this evening, when Hon. Adam Beck will be present and deliver an address on hydro-electric power.

This is a matter in which all manufacturers and business men of the city should be greatly interested, as the Niagara power question is at present a live question. Chatham should not be behind the times in considering it.

Hon. Mr. Beck will be the guest of President Robert Gray of the Board of Trade while in the city.

IT IS A NUISANCE

H. S. Clements Thinks Young Men
Should Take United Action
re the Poll Tax

The presence of the poll-tax collector on the streets is causing great interest, and in many cases, anxiety on the part of the young men of the city. There is a general complaint on the part of those who are, according to the statute, forced to pay the tax. Mr. H. S. Clements, M. P., who is interested in anything which affects the young men, in conversation with The Planet, threw out a few hints which should be of value to the young men who are called upon to contribute towards this tax.

"We must have taxes," said he, "but it seems to me to be unreasonable to hold up young men and force them to pay a paltry dollar. It is not always the amount of the tax which is offensive, but the way it is collected. It is not the nicest thing in the world for a young man to have a policeman chasing him around on the streets looking for his money. These young men spend almost 90 per cent. of what they earn and the tax is not necessary.

SHE TALKED TOO MUCH

Mrs. John Dungey Upsets
The Court With Her
Prattle

Papa Dungey Relates A Pathetic Tale of Woe

With a voice full of tears and two semi-rings under his eyes, several shades darker than his skin, John Dungey, a colored resident of the East End, wailed the touching tale of his domestic troubles in Judge Houston's Court this morning. The fearful voice was the result of half an hour's pent-up emotion, which he had kept in check while his partner in life recited her side of the story. The dark rings under his sad eyes were put there by his son, who proved too much for the old man in a recent scrap.

Mrs. Dungey had Dungey up for calling her several impolite names, which were hardly proper on the lips of a fond husband. According to Mrs. Dungey, they were so much so that they are unprintable. She said that he also rapped her over the fingers with a stick, when her son interfered. Result, the black eyes and Papa Dungey's hasty exit through the back door on the toe of Dungey Junior's boot. According to Dungey, everybody didn't work but father, and "the poor old man" had to make ends meet on nine plunks per. Mrs. Dungey says that they all worked, and that the scrap arose over paying the rent. She wanted to move into a new house, and Dungey did not want to move till the rent was paid in full.

"She called me an old fool," sobbed Dungey, "and she was always throwing up a girl, named Lizzie Wright, to me. She's a good deal like other women, Judge, she talks too much."

"Judge, yer honor—" began Mrs. Dungey for about the seventh time. "Woman!" thundered the Court, "I think that possibly you talk so much that Dungey gets sick. I am sick now."

A CLEVER PREACHER

Large Congregations Attend Park St. Church
Every Sunday

Dr. Daniels Gave Eloquent
Sermon Yesterday—Fine
Choir Music

Large crowds are flocking to the Park Street Methodist Church every Sunday to hear Rev. Dr. Daniel, who has recently assumed the pastorate of that prosperous church. Dr. Daniel is fast winning for himself a place in the hearts of the Chatham people as a preacher of more than ordinary ability. Dr. Daniel is one of the cleverest and most interesting pastors that the Park Street Church has had in years. His sermons appeal to everyone, probably on account of the simplicity of the truths expounded, and the forceful and eloquent manner in which they are put to his audience. There is a vein of human interest running through his sermons, which shows that he is a deep and careful student of human nature. He has a way of putting the many pretty and sympathetic truths of the Bible, which brings home to his hearers the message for which they are hungering, and which is at the same time elevating and encouraging.

His text yesterday morning was, "God careth for you." In the course of his remarks he showed three things—Why He careth. How He manifests His regard, and the What purpose He careth.

The music of the choir was in keeping with the excellence of the sermons. A fine anthem was rendered, and Miss Parker sang a solo. One special feature of the services was the excellent congregational singing.

WAS ARRESTED

Anson Fraefick, the father of the two girls who were arrested last week for being inmates of a disorderly house, was arrested this morning, charged with keeping the house. He is now in the county jail awaiting trial.

PRAISE FOR CHATHAM

Hugh F. Jones of Guelph is an Enthusiastic Admirer

One of the Veteran Printers of Ontario Visits
Maple City

Superintendent Hugh F. Jones of the Guelph Herald, who is at present in Chatham visiting his son, B. Roy Jones, buyer for Wm. Gray & Sons Carriage Works, is a veteran newspaperman, and is one of the Old Guard of the Art Preservative in Canada. Superintendent Jones made his acquaintance with printers' ink in his early youth, and though his hair has been whitened by the snows of many winters given over to his chosen calling, he is still as vigorous and as enthusiastic as many younger men. He can still take off his coat, stand up to the case, and "set up a stick" in the record time of which they used to boast before the advent of the typograph and the linotype type-setting machines.

The Guelph Herald, where Mr. Jones works, like The Planet, is one of the pioneer newspapers of this country, established away back in the early forties. Like The Planet also, the Herald can boast of its veteran employees, of whom Mr. Jones has been with the paper the longest, having spent very nearly a quarter of a century as Mechanical Superintendent for Proprietor Gummer. Before coming to Guelph, he was associated with newspapers in Kingston and Toronto. He served his apprenticeship in Milton, when the weekly paper there was printed on an old Washington hand press, one page at a time. While in this city, he called around to see his old friend A. C. McKay, of Taylor & McKay's liquor store, whom he had not seen since they worked together in Toronto over twenty-five years ago.

Mr. Jones is an enthusiastic admirer of Chatham. "You certainly have a beautiful city here," he told The Planet during the course of an interview. "Such fine, clean-looking paved streets. There is certainly a wonderful change in the place since I visited here some ten years ago."

"The beautiful lawns and boulevards in the residential sections are swayed ahead of anything I have ever seen in a city of Chatham's size, and they prove that the citizens here must have considerable civic pride, and that they must devote a great deal of time to beautifying their premises."

"It seemed to me when travelling about Chatham to-day, that every street in the city is paved. I was not aware of this and it was quite a surprise to me. I was particularly struck with the bitulithic pavement, which I noticed on Queen street. It appears to be almost noiseless, and must be a great comfort and convenience to traffic."

"Chatham is just such a beautiful place that it makes one feel that they would like to live here."

Mr. Jones returned to Guelph this afternoon.

FINE LECTURES

A course of military lectures will be delivered at the Armories—once each Friday night of each week—during the Provisional School Drill, which is being held for the benefit of the thirty-five students who are qualifying for offices in the Twenty-fourth Regiment. These lectures will be delivered by Adjutant Snider, of London, and the first of them—a very interesting discourse—was delivered in able style by that gentleman Friday night.

Sergeant Webster, of London, is master of the drills. Quite a large number attended on Friday night to see the drills and hear the lecture.

GOT TWO YEARS

Andrew McDonald, an Indian, who was recently committed for trial by Justice of the Peace W. C. Ingall, of Thamesville, on two charges of forgery, was tried in the County Court House this morning before Judge Dowlin, Crown Attorney Smith prosecuting.

McDonald was accused of forging two notes with the name of Archie Gillespie, a farmer living near Thamesville. He afterwards passed these forged notes at Hardie and McGuffey's store in Thamesville. The notes were made out for $35 and $25 respectively. McDonald received money and goods for these notes. The forgery was afterwards discovered and he was arrested.

On looking up the prisoner's record, it was found that he had already served a term in Central Prison for a similar offence some time ago.

He was found guilty, and was sentenced to two years in Kingston.
