lous by hauling down the British ensign at Chicago were Irishmen. How they expect to benefit the motherland or her cause by such conduct it is difficult to divine. The flag floated there in honor of Lord Aberdeen, and no one but an ignoramus would offer such an affront to so broadminded a man, and one who has done so much for the people of Ireland. Perhaps the flag incident of Ireland's Day at the Fair may have prompted such a line of action, but then it was a very poor requital. We and it difficult to persuade our in the such a line of action, but then it was a very poor requital.
