your past record, you have discharged its duties with singular ability. Your indefatigable industry, your unwearied activity, your ready apprehension of the real needs of varied localities and situations, your unquestioned integrity in all public transactions, may well constitute an honorable and enduring certificate of character. More especially do we recognize your invaluable services in dealing with the hopes and prospects of our people. We earnestly trust that, as the years pass by, the practical accomplishment of the policy you have adopted may succeed beyond the most sanguine expectations, and give a mighty impetus to the agriculture, the manufactures, the trade and commerce of the Dominion.

And now, honorable sir, we are glad you are with us. We hope, though a French-Canadian, among so many thousands of other races, you will feel entirely at home, and thoroughly enjoy your visit. On our part we shall be delighted to have you here, and like us as a community, and so like the evidences of our skill and industry, here displayed, as to carry away pleasant memories of the day and its events, and repeat your visit on some future occasion.

Signed on behalf of the West Middlesex Union Fair,
JOHN P. GRIGG, President,
DAVID EVANS, Secretary.
Dated at Strathroy, the 25th day of September, 1922.

HON. MR. TARTE SPEAKS

Makes a Plea for a Canada Which Shall Be All for Canadians.

As the popular member for West Middlesex concluded reading the address, the crowd loudly applauded, and renewed their plaudits as Mr. Tarte rose to reply. Mr. Tarte thanked them for what he termed their all too flattering remarks, and assured them of the pleasure which he felt in being with them. He expressed his regret at being late, and said that as the crowd knew that he was not the one at fault, he knew that he would be forgiven for not being punctual. Referring again to the remarks in the address, he mentioned particularly the expression of the hope that, though a French-Canadian among so many thousands of other races, he would feel entirely at home, and thoroughly enjoy his visit. That, he said, was what he intended to do, and what he should do for every Canadian had the right to feel it.

home in Canada, whether he were a French-Canadian or a Scotch-Canadian. Canada was a free country, a splendid, free country, where any man could feel at home. He believed it to be the freest country in the world—all who traveled much acknowledged it to be. (Applause.) It was a pleasure for him to be there, he said, for more than one reason. When at the Strathroy fair he was in the center of one of the finest agricultural districts in the country, in the company of some of the best farmers in Canada. Mr. Tarte said that in his early days he himself was a farmer. He farmed on a big scale. He could say that he made a pile of money.

THE STRENUOUS LIFE

A Great Strain.

No one disputes the fact that we are living in a "strange" age. It is rush, rush, rush, from morning until night, and competition is so fierce that the struggle does not cease until the machine is worn out. Women, too, even when surrounded by every comfort, become infected by the common spirit, and what with their clubs and many social duties, have no time to give thought to their physical well-being, until they are suddenly brought to a sharp realization of the fact that nothing in their lives is so important as attention to correct or rational living. It may surprise the readers to learn that women are more prone to piles than men, and in most cases, because it is difficult to impress upon them the importance of regular movements of the bowels; irregularity means straining at stool, and straining means piles, with the certainty (under the usual method of treatment) that the sufferer will "have them always with her," by "usual methods" is meant the application of ointments and lotions, or, as a last resort, a surgical operation. If there is a complaint which entails more distress and suffering upon those afflicted than piles or hemorrhoids, it is not known to the writer; fortunately, however, these are learning that there is a remedy that effectually cures all forms of piles. It is known as the Pyramid Pile Cure; it is in suppository form, is applied directly to the parts, and does its work quickly and painlessly. It is sold by druggists for 50 cents a package, will be mailed my the makers to any address, upon receipt of price. Mrs. John H. Castana, 2842 Arch Street, Chicago, says: "I must write the Pyramid Pile Cure. I was cured of a very aggravating case of itching and bleeding piles by the use of the great remedy Pyramid Pile Cure. Even after several physicians had claimed there was no cure except by an operation. I am well now, and owe all to this valuable remedy. I cannot say enough for it." Write the Pyramid Pile Cure Company, Marshall, Mich., for their little book on the cause and cure of piles.

while he was at it, but he could say and preach too—that in 1871 he exhibited at Quebec and captured nearly all the prizes there. (Laughter and applause.) "So you see," he added, "I could become a farmer even now, and live decently by it, but as it is, I am simply the Minister of Public Works." (Renewed laughter.)

THE TRANSPORTATION QUESTION.

Mr. Tarte went on to say that farming was intimately associated with transportation, a matter in which he and his department were very closely interested, and in which his hearers and all other farmers in Canada should be interested. It was a question which concerned all classes in Canada, manufacturers, farmers and all classes. Why should they grow crops if it was impossible to market them properly? Why should manufacturers try to increase their output if it was impossible to get their products to a place where they might be sold? It was an important question, this question of transportation. Its proper solution meant great things for Canada. When he went into his present department, he thought that he knew something about it, but he had found that he does not know it all. He believed in traveling and learning. Some people, he said, believe that he travels too much, even as some say that he talks too much. He said that he believed in knowing the country, and in speaking out as he thought. "I am always so," he said. "This is a big country, and one may speak freely. I am not infallible, and I am ready to admit that others are not infallible, either."

Mr. W. S. Calvert, M. P., chief Liberal whip in the Dominion House, who was largely instrumental in the success of the fair.

A CANADIAN CANADA.

Mr. Tarte made no reference during the course of his speech to any criticism of himself, but he did make an appeal for a more thoroughly Canadian Canada, and promulgated the idea that Canadians should know their country and each other better than they do. He, for one, he said, is prepared to help the great Canadian exhibition at Toronto, because it helps Canadians to know their country. Canadians do not know Canada, he said. Yet it was necessary that they should know it, and they should know each other better. (Applause.) British-Canadians should know the French-Canadians better than they do. "And when you do know them," he said, "you will know that they are a good, decent lot of loyal citizens just as you are." (Applause.) British-Canadians had an idea that the men in Quebec were a rather low people. He assured them that the French habitant is not a fool. "He knows a good man when he sees one," said Mr. Tarte, "and also a fair lady." (Laughter.) Mr. Tarte said that governments could do a great deal for all classes. For the farming class the local government could do much. The present Government in Ontario, he said, had done a great deal for the farmers, as well as every other class of people. (Applause.) He was glad of the chance to congratulate the farmers, and he mainly stand he had taken upon the question of the export of wood. (Applause.) He had been glad to see it.

THE CALLER

"Let us be Canadians, all the time," he said, "we have a right to be proud of our country. It is a land of magnificent possibilities. Let us work them out ourselves." (Applause.) Mr. Tarte spoke of the splendid prosperity of the country, and of the progress which had been made in all the provinces, not only in agriculture, but in all the industries. He said that we have the privilege and honor of having one of the best agricultural schools in America. They in Quebec envied the people in Ontario this possession. It was but one of the methods taken by the Ontario Government to assist the farmers of Ontario to raise better crops, to get better results, and to increase the wealth and prosperity of the country.

QUESTIONS OF TARIFF.

Mr. Tarte said that two very important questions now confronting Canada were the question of transportation, and of the tariff. He said that on behalf of his colleagues in the Government he could assure them that the Government is now doing its best, with a view to the advancement and future greatness of Canada. (Applause.)

plause.) "We may have made mistakes," Mr. Tarte said, "but we hope that we shall not make too many." (Laughter.) He said that the country is progressing, and should in ten years show marvelous things. We have a big and prosperous neighbor, he said, in the country to the south of us, but while America is big, he was afraid that it is suffering somewhat from swelled head. (Laughter.) It was making a mistake, he thought, when it believed that it could choke Canada. It could not do it, we as Canadians are true to ourselves. (Applause.)

Mr. Tarte again thanked them for their invitation to visit and open the fair. "I like to travel in an English province," he said. "So much has been said of me that I'm afraid people think that I'm not exactly a—good boy." (Laughter.) But I am a true Canadian," he continued earnestly, "a solid and firm Britisher." (Continued applause.) And what I was saying, he added, "I can say for all my fellow French Canadians. (Applause.) They are as true, loyal men as I know in this country—loyal through and through to the British Empire and the noble King who presides over our destinies." (Renewed applause.) "I had the honor to speak before the King and Queen when I was in Europe some years ago. It was at the grandest banquet I ever attended. Some of the most distinguished men in the empire were there and among them the King, who was then Prince of Wales. It was shortly after the Brussels incident, when an attempt was made to assassinate him, and at this banquet the Prince thanked God for having saved his life. It was a noble example for all Britons when he said, 'I am a Sovereign Being, acknowledging him as king of the whole universe. As long as we in turn yield loyalty to him, we are on a solid ground.' Continued applause.)

THE PREMIER OF ONTARIO

Splendid Canadian Sentiment Pervades Hon. G. W. Ross' Speech.

Premier Ross was next called upon and as he arose to speak he was given a rousing reception by his friends in his old constituency. He remarked, on beginning his speech, on the enjoyment which he always experienced while visiting the Strathroy fair. He said that he had not intended making a speech. He had been there on previous occasions, when it was his official duty as well as his pleasure to address them. Yet for two reasons he felt that he should be with them again yesterday. In the first place he felt that it was his duty even as it was his pleasure, to welcome the honorable Minister of Public Works to his own constituency. In the second place he knew that he would meet there his old friends and whenever it was possible he liked to do this. It was gratifying to him to note the prosperity of this western part of Ontario. In many ways, he said, it was one of the best parts of the province. (Applause.)

AN ADMIRER OF MR. TARTE.

Mr. Ross, in welcoming the Minister of Public Works, said that he had admired him for his insight into the necessities of his department, for his energy and for his force of character. (Applause.) He was a man of enormous energy and Mr. Ross said that it behooved all Canadians to apply themselves with proper energy to what ever came before them, if they wished to make the most of their great country. (Applause.) We were slow to believe in our country, he said, yet we had come to here what the statesmen of Britain had not done. We had reconciled two antagonistic races. He had said in England while there recently that he had not seen a more patriotic Government had never seen a more patriotic people to recognize Ireland, yet we in Canada had settled our troubles of exactly the same kind upon a very constitutional grounds. (Applause.) We were all out of gear, he added, unless we took a proper pride in our country. "We are all Canadians," he said, "and very glad to think so—ever a Scotchman." He added, amidst laughter, to make the most of their great country. (Applause.) We were slow to believe in our country, he said, yet we had come to here what the statesmen of Britain had not done. We had reconciled two antagonistic races. He had said in England while there recently that he had not seen a more patriotic Government had never seen a more patriotic people to recognize Ireland, yet we in Canada had settled our troubles of exactly the same kind upon a very constitutional grounds. (Applause.) We were all out of gear, he added, unless we took a proper pride in our country. "We are all Canadians," he said, "and very glad to think so—ever a Scotchman." He added, amidst laughter,

CANADA'S MAGNIFICENT FUTURE.

Mr. Ross went on to speak of the magnificent future which is promised Canada. He declared that we are just on the fringe of Canadian development. He spoke of only 2,000,000 acres of land, and said that we were producing something like 80,000,000 bushels of grain, and said that before five or ten years more are gone Canada will be producing all the wheat and all the flour which England will use. (Applause.) Like the honorable Minister of Public Works, the Premier declared that the question of transportation was one of the most important now facing the Dominion. In the last year the Canadian exports of cattle alone had increased from $2,900,000 to $3,900,000, and it was the same with all other products. He illustrated the necessity of an improvement in the transporting facilities of the country by recounting an instance shown him recently by a friend in Toronto. This gentleman told him that it cost him $1.40 per barrel to ship apples to Windsor, and only 60 cents per barrel to ship them to Liverpool. When this was possible, something was wrong, Mr. Ross said. It was the duty of the Government to see that excessive profits should not go to transportation companies, more especially when it is necessary to ship goods by an unsatisfactory route and to a doubtful market. (Applause.) What we as Canadians wanted was to look over our field—the whole world was our field, he said—and to consider how we might get it for our products. (Applause.) There had been enormous expansion in the last few years in the manufacture as well as agricultural products, and we should adopt means to give our own people employment, so as to increase our population and strengthen our country and increase the manufactures and wealth of our Dominion. (Continued applause.)

A SUITABLE TARIFF.

"To this end there must be a tariff suitable to Canada," and added Mr. Ross, "I trust to the statesmanship which is now guiding the country to make a readjustment of the tariff if a readjustment is necessary. We may need it higher on one article and lower on another. It will not then be a finality, but it must be made to suit the Canadian people." (Applause.) Mr. Ross spoke of the campaigns which had been fought out upon the free trade issue in his own constituency. He said that he acknowledged that if we could have free trade, all the better, the nearer we are to free trade the better, he said, "just as the nearer we are to Heaven the better; but free trade in its entirety is impracticable. What I want is a tariff to suit ourselves—one which will give the highest prosperity for ourselves. (Applause.) That is what you want. That is what the manufacturers want. That is what we all want. It does not matter about anyone else. It does not matter about the Americans. All we want is to keep them where they are, on their side of the line, and we have shown that we can do it. We must protect ourselves against the competition. If your neighbor's cattle comes into your yard and you build a fence to keep them out, that is not retaliation. But if you take his fence down and procure cattle from his yard, that is a different thing altogether. (Laughter and applause.) Let us manufacture our own materials, develop our resources, and keep our population here. When we have done that, we have done all that we as good Canadians can do." (Continued applause.)

A MONTREAL VISITOR.

The Premier was followed by Mr. Miles, ex-president of the Montreal Board of Trade, who was a visitor to the fair, who said that he rejoiced in the good strong Canadian sentiment which he had just heard from the lips of the Minister of Public Works and the Premier of Ontario. He added his testimony, as a resident of Montreal, to that of Mr. Tarte in saying that there is no better place in the world for a British subject than the French Canadian. He said, too, that the people of Montreal were heartily with all westerners in their wishes for a greater market for Canadian goods.

VOTES OF THANKS.

A vote of thanks was unanimously presented to the honorable gentlemen who had made the addresses of the day. It was moved by Mr. Gough and seconded by Mr. Alfred Brock. The crowd thereupon dispersed to amuse themselves as they chose. The entertainment committee had gone to unusual expense to provide first-class features, but it was impossible to hold races scheduled because of the condition of the track.
