Mr. Moresby—Was not that because you were chewing her fingers?
Witness—No, because her husband ordered her to pull my tongue out.
Mr. Moresby—Were you chewing her-fingers?

Witness-I chewed one. I did it to save my tongue.

Mr. Moresby—You didn't get off Webster? Witness-No I didn't get off. I wantd my man for the police.

Mr. Moresby—What charge were you going to lay?
Witness—Assault on my own property.
Mr. Moresby—That's why you dragged him there?
Witness—I didn't drag him there,

as might be expected.

The races were all well filled. The jumping competition (eight entries) was won by Brown's Dolly; Young's Ladysmith second.

The 2.40 was won by Archie Kirk.

For provincial breds, King's Tod Sloan was first; Bottger's Reciprocity, second; N. Wilson's Hazel, third.

Mr. Moresby cross-examined witness at great length, and much time was lost by his manner of fencing each question. To Mr. Moresby witness said he had lived on Elizabeth street for sworn in to keep the streets clear. "The evidence is straight enough to suit me this time," witness said.

In answer to a question from Mr. Curran, having known him for eight years and having always been friendly with him.
