DOWN BY THE SEA.

Last Sunday week, Mr. John Kelly, formerly of Travellers' Rest, and recently of Summerside, died. He was a member of Branch 215, C.W.B.A., Summerside, and is the first member of the Branch to have died by death.

On the occasion of the 200th anniversary of the death of Venerable Mere Bourgeois, foundress of the Congregation de Notre Dame, the new Convent School under the care of that Order, was opened at Spring Mine. The new Convent has the honor of being presided over for the present by the Rev. Mother St. Mary, Superior-Provincial of the Congregation in the Maritime Provinces, and with her are Sister St. Camillus, late of Mount St. Bernard's, and Sister St. Francis, teacher of the senior department of the Convent at Miramichi for the past seven years.

On the 11th of next month, in the Cathedral of St. John, the consecration of the co-adjutor Bishop of St. John and Chatham will take place. Right Rev. T. Casey for the former diocese, and Right Rev. F. Barry for the latter will become associated respectively with Bishops Sweeney and Rodgers. Bishop Sweeney was consecrated on the 15th April, 1860, and Bishop Rodgers on the 15th August of the same year. The ceremony of the double consecration will be performed by His Grace, Archbishop O'Brien, of Halifax, and a number of prelates and clergymen of the Maritime Provinces and not a few from abroad will attend on that solemn occasion.

About ten days ago, at his home in Dunsmuir, Pictou County, Rev. Andrew Macgillivray, departed this life. Father Macgillivray was in his seventy-second year when death came to him. His parents were Hugh Macgillivray and Catherine MacDonald. After a number of years spent as pupil and teacher successively in the schools of his native county, he entered St. Francis Xavier's College, when it was first opened at Arichat, in 1853. In the following year, when the College was removed to Antigonish, he was one of the first names to be enrolled on its registers. Here he made his studies in philosophy and theology, and was ordained to the priesthood at Arichat on the 24th February, 1858. From that day till his retirement from active ministry, in September, 1897, he labored successively and successfully in Guysboro, Georgeville and Lismore. A writer in the "Antigonish Casket" says:

"Father Andrew, as he was familiarly and lovingly known, will be missed and mourned by many, not only in the diocese but beyond it. He was a typical Highlander, in love with the language and the folk-lore of the Gael, and with a very tender spot in his heart for the land of his fathers beyond the sea. He possessed an exhaustless fund of anecdote, and was a most entertaining companion. And he was the soul of hospitality. His door was wide open to the stranger, nor were the needy ever turned away empty handed."

Above all, he was a true priest, gifted with an earnest simple faith, and filled with love for Mother Church. "In death he lies side by side with the two who gave him life and first taught him to know and worship his Maker. The hills he trod in boyhood stand sentinel over his grave; he sleeps beneath their shadow. And the waters of the neighboring Gulf, which crooned their lullaby over his cradle now chant his requiem while he sleeps his last sleep, till he awakes again in the morning of the resurrection. May his soul rest in peace!"

At the residence of her son-in-law, Donald McIntyre, Rear Doctor's Brook, Antigonish County, on Saturday, the 13th inst., consoling by the last rites of Holy Church, three passed away the oldest inhabitant of the settlement, Marcella, widow of the late Donald McDougall, in her hundredth year. The deceased was the daughter of the late Angus McDonald (McLaughlin), of Ardrara, Pictou County, — the last of a family of twelve, whose ages at their death averaged over ninety years. She and her husband were the first settlers in the neighborhood where she lived and died.

On the 17th inst., at the ripe old age of 93, Donald McIsaac, senior, died. His death took place at South River Road. Four of his sons died in the prime of life and are buried in the United States. There survive him John, the eldest son, in Montana; Dan, a lumberman in Michigan; John C., of Chattanooga, Tenn., merchant; and the two daughters above-mentioned. The deceased married, about 65 years ago, Jane, sister of Bishop Cameron. Vigorous in mind and body he was a true Highlander and withal a sincere, humble and practical Christian.

People look round at a nice head of hair on the street, so rare has that beautiful ornament become at the present day. Why is this? It certainly is not the fault of LUBY'S Parisian Hair Renewer, which is an almost infallible remedy against premature grey hair. Only 50 cents a bottle.

The Quebec Daily Telegraph's Special Number.

As we look closely into the pages of the publication called the "Twenty-fourth Century number of the 'Daily Telegraph,'" we discover its merits, both as regards the artistic excellence of its illustrations and its interesting and instructive reading matter. We consider it a valuable production in all its features, and a work which reflects credit upon Mr. Frank Carroll, its enterprising publisher. We like the tone of its opening chapter formed "Ancient and Modern Quebec," which deals widely with the historic features of the ancient city, and does us justice to the zeal of the early French Missionary Fathers, the founder, Champlain, and the hardy French race of colonizers. The modern and progressive status of Quebec is well depicted and foreshadows better commercial activity in the future. We see a tone of chagrin in the remarks that refer to Montreal's absorption of much of the Ancient Capital's shipping trade, and we also perceive a strong desire to retain the big ships of the future at the port of Quebec, instead of letting them enter our harbor; yet the remarks are friendly, in view, and in them we see an acknowledgment of the commercial supremacy of Montreal's mercantile interests and progress. We judge the whole number as a credit to the fearless enterprise of the publisher, and we are sure that its popularity will result in a substantial financial return to our confrere in the sister city. We feel pleased to observe that the bulk of the letter-press has been compiled by our own occasional correspondent, Mr. William Ellison, whose contributions are well-known to readers of the "True Witness."

ROMAN NOTES OF INTEREST.

WORKINGMEN'S TRIBUTE. — It is only meet that the great Pope who has done so much for the cause of labor and in behalf of the workingman should be duly recognized by those whom he blessed and whose interests he held dear. Although somewhat lengthy we cannot omit a full report of the interesting event, which took place a couple of weeks ago, in the Vatican. It was the presentation of a gold chalice, as the workmen's jubilee gift to the Pope. The report says that:

"About forty members of the society, headed by the acting and honorary presidents — Professor, Meneghini and Count Caterini — as well as the President of the Federated Catholic Societies, and many other prominent members of Catholic associations and committees were present. It was a representative gathering of workmen of Rome who knelt at the feet of the Vicar of Christ, to offer their jubilee homage to the workmen's Pope. The audience was held in the Throne Room of the Vatican at mid-day, and the proceedings began with the offering to His Holiness of the presentation chalice by the President, four workmen carrying the gift on a velvet cushion. Then the workmen's address was read to His Holiness by Count Caterini. In it they begged a special blessing on their gift, which represented, 'not the imposing offerings of a few, but the modest ones of many.' The concluding words of the address ended by the petition for the Holy Father's blessing on the Catholic workmen, their families, and their club, which bears His Holiness's name."

"That this desired blessing might be for the workmen all over the world the celestial voice which called the Shepherds around the crib of the Divine Saviour, so that the consolation may soon be given to you, to follow your teachings in the labor question, and pay tribute to your most renowned attribute that of 'Father of the Workman.'"

"His Holiness listened attentively to every word of the address, then caused one of his chamberlains, Mr. Misicelli, to read his reply, an address so touching in its apostolic fatherliness and interest in the workmen all over the world that one feels one cannot do better than reproduce it in full. With grateful heart we accept the gift of the gold chalice you offer us in the name of the Italian Catholic workmen, and we congratulate you on the success of the noble and generous proposal of the Workmen's Society of St. Joachim. The condition of the working classes has always excited in us the greatest solicitude, increased even with the publication of Our Encyclical, 'Rerum Novarum.' It is almost for ten years now that each year we have had the consolation of addressing Our words to bands of workmen pilgrims who came to pay Us homage, and we feel a lively satisfaction each time it is given Us to note the sentiments of the affection to the Roman Pontiff, and their adherence to the teachings promulgated by him. Of this affection and adherence a touching proof is given Us, through your means, by the Italian Catholic workmen at the beginning of the Holy Year, and we draw from it the most happy auspices. Oh, if they will hold it dear to jealously adhere to the rules laid down by Us, which are those of the Gospel; if, never lending an ear to the attractive fallacies of ruinous principles, they maintain sound the character of Catholic workmen, then, indeed, will they convert 'iron into gold,' because the modest laborer, in their hands, sustained in a Christian manner, and blessed by God, will be the true source of riches for their families, a vital element of interest and public order, and a spiritual treasure of merit for the salvation of souls. And now it is indeed just that your desires should be gratified, and to-morrow, Feast of the Epiphany of Our Lord, We will celebrate, God willing, the Holy Mass with your chalice. Offering in it the Host of peace and love, We will pray for all the working classes. For the Catholics we will implore holy perseverance for the others a return to the salutary principles of religion and upright work. As an auspice meanwhile of these elect favors and in proof of Our paternal affection, receive the Apostolic benediction which from this heart we impart to you here present, to all the Catholic workmen and to their families."

"Then after rising and giving the Benediction, His Holiness made an impromptu speech with all his usual vigor of expression and gesture, expressing his pleasure at the gift which he characterized as a most touching demonstration of the affection working Italy bears to the Holy See and his satisfaction at the prospect of seeing many workingmen's pilgrimages gathered around him in the Jubilee Year. The Pope also personally inspected and admired the exquisite chalice warmly congratulating Signor Tanfani, in whose laboratory it was executed. In conclusion all the workmen were presented to His Holiness in turn; and he spoke with fatherly benevolence to each one, inquiring with interest into their work, condition, families, etc. This familiar and paternal gathering was eminently satisfactory to all the members of the association, who cannot cease to congratulate themselves, on the favor accorded them, and the Holy Father's benignant reception of their jubilee gift."

A NEW INSTITUTION. — A new institution called the "Senola Cattedra," has just been founded in Rome for the instruction of children of the poorest classes to counteract the ever-increasing harm done by Protestants who by every means in their power strive to pervert the poor by offering them money, food, education, etc. Father de Mandate, S. J., who is most zealous in the work of protecting the faith, directs the institute, while Mgr. Adami, titular Archbishop of Cesarea del Ponto is the president. The other institutions already inaugurated under these auspices, such as the night schools where languages are taught free, the creches, the work laboratories for girls, and the schools for young women directed by the religious community of the English Ladies, who have done much to counteract Protestant influence; but even more effort is needed, for as Catholics awake to the danger and combat it, the Methodists (well provided with funds) redouble their good works.
