

THE WHITE PLAGUE

Then from pensive thoughts returning,
 (For 'tis joy alone must reign),
Fill a bumper to the old times,
 Let the songs break forth again;
Let each golden hour passing
 Fragrant be with mirth and joy;
Be in thought, in heart and temper
 Just a merry old-time Boy.