SUCCESSORS to

Geo. R. Gordon, the pioneer clothing merchant of Vancouver, established as early as 1885, this company has maintained since its organization the high reputation enjoyed by its predecessor. The stock is one of the largest and most complete in the city, and includes the very latest selections of ready-made clothing, men's furnishings, hats, caps, etc. In Klondike supplies they also possess a most complete assortment.

Rod. Campbell & Son.

THIS retail establishment is unquestionably one of the largest of its kind in British Columbia.

As to this city the very finest class of boots and shoes to be had are sold here and at reasonable prices. This is explained by the principle of the firm in buying and selling for cash, thus giving their customers the advantage of all discounts. It is the only house in the Province where customers' boots are polished free. The firm was established 10 years ago.

Mortimore Bros.

RECENTLY removed to enlarged premises, next door to their old address on Hastings Street, this firm has been able to add considerably to the large stock they carry to meet the demands of their constantly increasing business. Established in 1888, this is one of the oldest and best known houses in the city. They import direct from London, and always keep in stock the very latest styles and patterns in English and Scotch goods, and their clothes are noted for their perfect finish.

James Rae.

LOWER Cordova Street is one of the best business centres for the retail trade. Among the newer shops lately opened is that of James Rae. He does a general business in boots and shoes, and his stock embraces every conceivable line. He also carries a complete line of rubbers and rubber goods, and through an intimate knowledge of the business is enabled to quote the lowest prices. A specialty is made of men's hand-made goods, which are made on the premises by first-class workmen.

Walter Boulton.

THE adjoining cut is an interior view of the well-known music store of Walter Boulton, who is sole agent for the Gerhard-Heintzman piano (classified by musicians as quite the leading instrument made in the Dominion), and also for the celebrated Bell organs and pianos. He is also sole agent for the English manufacturers of world-wide fame, John Broadwood & Sons, John Brinsmead & Sons and Collard & Collard. A complete stock of the smaller instruments and other musical merchandise is carried.

Vancouver Dress and Mantle Emporium.

THE steady growth of this business which was established three years ago is ample proof of the success it has attained. Recognized as the leading dress and mantle making establishment of Vancouver, its large patronage is continually increasing, and the twelve dressmakers employed under Mrs. Ross' personal supervision are kept busy to keep up with their constantly increasing orders.
