Lent Money to Finance Wedding

But Instead of Marriage Bells for Prince It's Durand Ville for Promoters.

PARIS, June 28.—(Can. Press.)—The Correctional Court to-day sentenced the "Countess Clare" to one year imprisonment and to a fine of $200, and Count Ladislas Zoltynski to two years imprisonment and to a fine of $400 for obtaining money under false pretenses from Miss Wilhelmina Kemper in connection with a scheme to arrange a marriage between Victor of Thurn and Taxis and an American heiress. The case came on for appeal in the correctional court in the previous trial in April, 1910, the court acquitted the two defendants on the ground that the "Countess Clare" was not responsible for the loan of $70,000 which Miss Kemper is alleged to have made to the count, and that the latter borrowed in good faith to help the prince find a wife. The defendants are now ordered to return this money to Miss Kemper.

The Nursery

Good Ideas.

Here is a way to save time when warming the baby's bottle of milk. Cut in the cover of an empty lard pail a hole just large enough to permit of putting the bottle into the pail easily. When the time comes for heating the milk, pour into the pail enough hot water to surround the bottle without overflowing, place the cover on, and put the bottle in the hole. Of course, a cover with a hole in it could be placed over the other vessel, but in every household there is usually a spare lard pail that can be used.

A good birthday party for a child was arranged by one mother in this way: She did not want the little guests to bring gifts or to be dressed in their best clothes, so she engaged a kindergarten partner for the afternoon, to entertain the little folk; then she asked the other mothers if their children could come and play with their little child on a certain day. Every body had a jolly time, as the teacher knew just how to keep them interested and happy.

Rainy day games for children. Children may play even if it rains, so when ever I empty a tin can, I pound down the edges so no one can hurt himself and put it away. The boxes that seed raisins come in are also added to the collection of cans. In fact, any kind of box or package that the groceries come in is put away as fast as it is emptied, and when a rainy day comes a large staff of workmen will be kept busy with our collection. We have a full-fledged grocery store. This will keep them busy for hours.

Appropos of this last suggestion, I may say that the efficiency of the waterworks of the town, the Ontario Ladies' College, the splendid educational institution which is Whitby's chief pride, would have been destroyed by fire early this morning.

Shortly before midnight flames were discovered by maid servants bursting thru the rooms from the chuke which passed from the upper storey of that wing of the building down to the laundry in the basement. An alarm was quickly given. The hose in the building held the fire in check until the Whitby fire brigade arrived, when two large hoses working from the hydrant, fronting the building, eventually drowned out the fire. One thousand dollars worth of workmen will be kept busy with the repairs.

Preparations were underway for opening the missionary conference or summer school on Tuesday. However, a large staff of workmen will be kept busy with the repairs.

SOCIETY PLAY AT THE ROYAL

Miss Haswell Will Present "My Friend From India" With Special Matinee To-day

Commencing with a special matinee this afternoon, and for the remainder of the week, Miss Haswell will present at the Alexandra Theatre, that most amusing of all farces, "My Friend From India." Miss Haswell has the faculty of selecting plays and comedies that are especially suited to the capabilities of her company. The author has taken his characters from among the newly rich who wish to get into society. The satirical manner in which he shows them up is sufficient to keep the audience in roars of laughter from start to finish.

One of the biggest comedy hits seen in this city for many seasons was the one written by Mary Robert Rhinehart and Avery Hopwood entitled "Seven Days," and produced under the management of Wagenhals & Kemper. The Phillips-Shaw Stock Company have made arrangements with the authors to present the comedy at the Grand this week, opening with a matinee this afternoon, and it will be produced with elaborate stage setting as that given by the original company when it was seen here at high prices. One of these is a thief who has entered the house while the dinner is in progress, and who is unable to depart owing to the close police surveillance. Another amusing situation is presented when it is discovered that the divorced wife of the occupant is also in the house, having arrived previously to the quarantine, thinking that her husband is ill and fearing that the authorities are about to take him to the hospital, having noticed the ambulance at the door as she was passing the house. The party that is quarantined prepares for the siege and draws up a set of regulations for the conduct of the establishment, and the help has all departed. One of the rules provided that each had to do a certain portion of the house work, and that which they would get nothing to eat. The assignment of the work gives rise to much merriment, and the manner in which it is performed is ludicrous in the extreme. It is seven days of
