

Bible Society, having been informed of our organization by Mr. Lunn of this City and anticipating our wants, have very kindly sent no less than 1000 copies of Bibles and Testaments, valued at £230, including freight. These were addressed to the care of that gentleman, and are now in our Depository, 200 of the Bibles, and 300 of the Testaments are of Mr. De Sacy's version; the rest of the books consist of 100 French Bibles of the protestant version, 100 German Bibles, and 300 German Testaments; so that the Germans of this country who are destitute of the word of God, by applying to your Committee, may be supplied with the scriptures in their own language.

The Foreign Assistant Secretary, who communicates this pleasing intelligence, observes to his correspondent "for the encouragement of our Catholic Brethren (in Canada,) your committee may inform them, that 50,000 Copies of the New Testament of De Sacy are actually in circulation among their brethren in France; that the distribution of this version takes place, chiefly by the hands of enlightened and pious Priests of their own communion; that the demand for more copies and for the whole Bible is very great, so that printers and binders, can hardly keep pace with them. The Bible has but just left the press."

We shall next inform the Society of our proceedings, relative to the disposal of the books committed to our care.

Mr. Try, at the request of the Committee, agreed to keep the Depository for the Bibles and Testaments of the Society. Such methods of distribution, as seemed to be the most effectual, the most promising of success, were resorted to by the Committee. An address was early published in the Newspapers of Montreal, that those who were in
