POETRY.

From the London New Monthly Magaz THE SECOND MARRIAGE.

THE SECOND MARKIAGE.

Oh! think not I can calmly see
Thy second nuptial morn.
Thou know'st with what delightful glee
I halided its former dawn;
How proud, how joyous did I feel
The loved one to attend.
And with a bride maid's eager zeal
Adora my gentle friend.

The problem of the strong of costly pearls,
Thy gift in courtships to a re,
The gift in courtships to a re,
The wreath of orange flowers;
Oer her sweet face, I fining the veil,
Yet drew it half aside.
The beauty of my bride!

The beauty of my bride!

And when I knew her in the sphere
Of calm, domestic life,
How did I honor and revere
The virtues of the wife;
She turned from flattery's syren voice,
And pleasure's splendid dome,
To bless the hasban of her choice.

New, weep not thus! new duties bind
Thy thoughts to this low span,
Thou ever, while she lived, wert kind—
Thine is the faith of man!
Mine is more firm—my woman's heart
Loves on, though hepe be fled—
This day cannot but grief impart
To one whom wourns the dead!

BLACKING.

THOMAS SIME has commenced manufacturing, and offers for sale, a superior quality of LIQUID BLACKING, which, upon trial, will be found equal to any imported from the Mother Country. From the nature of the ingredients of which it is composed, it possesses an inherent quality of prescribing and softening the leather, and from the fine shining lastre it with produce, must be considered as a great desideration to all who admire a highly polished Boot or Shoe. As this article is of domestic manufacture, and will be sold at a reduced price to that imported, although the quality, as certificates in his possession willsatisfactority prove; T. S. flatters himself that he will receive a liberal share of public patronage.—The Blacking is contained in stone jurs, similar to those of 2 do. 12 do. 20 do.
