FISHERMAN AND HIS STRING.
A morning's catch from Grenadier Pond and the man who made it.

Must Have More Heat.
Curtis Clendenin, author of the popular society novels which gave such close insight into the ways of the ultra set, was sitting at his writing desk, says Judge. He had just finished a paragraph:

"Exquisite taste showed in the room. Delicate tones of rose blushed a deep shade in the carpet. Fine, slender festoons of bronze fell from the frieze, a garland of the same metal; the full-colored mahogany furniture struck deep tones of polish brown; masses of carnations in tall, slender bronze vases,

A Complete Combination.
William T. Stead, the editor of The English Review of Reviews, tells the story of an Irishman who applied to one of his friends for a position as coachman.

"Well, I tried to do it diplomatically. I asked her when she was born."

stood on the hearth and contrasted with the pink cipoline marble of the graceful mantelpiece. A single Boucher, old, rich and dim, showed in the chimney breast."

"That's getting the spirit of the thing!" he exclaimed to himself. Then he stepped to the hall door and raised his voice to the landlady: "Say, there, Mrs. Murphy, I've got to have some more heat! Do you think I and on his master grumbling at him for his delay, he said: 'Sure, they're all here, sorr.'

"All here," said the master. "What do you mean?"

"Didn't you tell me to do things by combination?"

"What's that got to do with it?" said the master.

"Well," said Pat, "I've got the doctor, the parson and the undertaker."
