LUMBERMEN ASK SMALL DUTY ON ROUGH LUMBER.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—(Special).—A large delegation of lumbermen waited on the government today to get a duty of $2 a thousand on rough lumber. The delegation was organized by the British Columbia Lumbermen who they say have been hard hit by competition from the United States mills. Among the delegation there was J. H. Booth and Dennis Murphy of Ottawa, W. D. Miller of the Party Sound Lumber Co., W. D. Thomas of the Sarnia Lumber Co., W. B. Tindall of Toronto, James Playfair of Midland, W. P. Bull of Toronto of the Kipling Lumber Co., D. L. White, Midland, and Boyd Turner.

The delegation met Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Senator Templeman in the railway committee room of the Senate.

The first speaker was Mr. Paterson of Vancouver. He said that British Columbia mills had to shut down for three months in the year because of competition from United States. A duty on rough lumber was necessary. He cited the difficulties that the government had in arranging a tariff to suit the varied needs of the country. British Columbia should be given an equal chance with the manufacturers of the other provinces. Duty was so far refused because of the Northwest farmer, but in this opinion the Manitoba and Northwest farmer had reached that stage of prosperity which would permit of their paying for this duty. Individually they were better off than the people of British Columbia.

MILL ST. BARRACKS IS TOUGH QUARTER.

Salvation Army Officers Tell Their Troubles in the Police Court This Morning.

William McCann, who was arrested last night on a charge of loitering on Mill street, and obstructing pedestrians by standing across the sidewalk was in court this morning.

Sergeant Kilpatrick testified that McCann had been loitering on the stairs of the Salvation Army barracks on Mill street, he told him to get out, and behave himself. The prisoner then went out on the street and refused to do what he was told, and caused annoyance by obstructing pedestrians and he was obliged to arrest him. He stated also that McCann had been drinking.

Two officers connected with the Mill street Salvation Army barracks were examined and their offences showed that McCann had caused them considerable annoyance. This he denied and stated that he had been in the barracks for some time. On one occasion he had entered the hall carrying a club with him and caused them a good deal of trouble. The officer in command had been obliged to lay hands on McCann and admitted having slapped his mouth.

McCann asked the witness why he had not experienced trouble with him on other occasions. The officer told him that it was a means to compel him to go out and might have been obliged to beat him. He informed McCann that he was liable to a fine of $50, or a term of imprisonment.

His honor asked the officers if they had not experienced trouble with him on other occasions. The officer told him that it was a means to compel him to go out and might have been obliged to beat him. He informed McCann that he was liable to a fine of $50, or a term of imprisonment.

His honor stated that this must not be and measures must be taken to put a stop to it. The committal order was made at a late hour at night, were certainly not there for religious purposes, and had no right there. This, he said was also true of men who were turned out of bar rooms after ten o'clock. But the army must look to their part in preventing such trouble or else close up their hall. They would be liable to a fine if it continued, and they refused to act. Sergeant Kilpatrick assured them that the police would assist them in any way possible. McCann was remanded.

WALSH WAS NOT SORRY.

Charged With Assault He Refused to Apologize.

The case of assault preferred by Mrs. James E. Cox against James Walsh was heard at the police court this morning.

Mrs. Cox stated that she occupied the ground floor of the house at No. 308 Brussels street, the second floor of which is occupied by Mr. Walsh. She was informed by one of Mr. Walsh's children on Saturday that there was smoke up stairs, and upon going up found that the house was on fire, and went out and gave the alarm. She went up again yesterday to see what damage was done, and stated that Walsh told her to get out, that if she was a woman and taking care for her children she would not stay in the house. She remarked to two young men who were sitting on the stairs that he had always thought Walsh a perfect gentleman, and could not understand his meaning when she heard him say that. She was talking to a lady down the street, and he was talking to her down there.

Walsh admitted having taken her by the arm, but emphatically denied having either pushed her towards the stairs or used bad language. He stated further that he had lived in the house with Mrs. Cox for some time, but had very little to do with her. He did not want her to tell her son, who he had a perfect right to do this as he was in his own house. He had a perfect right to tell Mrs. Cox she was not wanted in the house, but that she had not refused to go when he told her. According to law he was charged with assault for having laid his hand on her, and was liable to a fine of $20 or a term of imprisonment.

His honor said that he was very much surprised. Walsh refused a second time to apologize and said he was "not thankful" "not one particle."

"Well," said his honor, "the best thing you can do is to strike a fine of $20 against you." It is understood that Walsh will seek counsel and proceed further.

KILLAM IN THE CHAIR.

New Head of Railway Commission Took His Place at this Morning's Session.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—(Special).—When the railway commission met today Justice Killam took his seat as chairman of the London switching case was up for consideration. Before proceeding with this case, M. The new Chief Commissioner thanked Mr. Cowan and Mr. Drinkwater for their remarks. He was glad to hear that his work on the bench met with general approval and he intended to apply himself with the same industry and assiduity to his new duties. The powers of the railway commission were extensively wide and should therefore be cautiously and judiciously exercised. He would also add that where the jurisdiction was clear the board's authority would also be firmly and fearlessly enforced. He asked for the indulgence of the bar and the public for a time.

The switching case between the Grand Trunk and the C. P. R., at London was then proceeded with.
