The Fighting Race

"Road out the names" and Burke sat back.
And Kelly dropped his head.
While Shea—they call him Scholier Jack—Went down the list of dead.
Officers, seamen, gunners, marines,
The crew of the gig and yawl, The bearded man and the lad in his teens, Carpenters, coal-passers—all.
Then, knocking the ashes from out his pipe, Said Burke in an offhand way:
"We're all in that dead man's list, by Cripes!
Kelly and Burke and Shea."
"Wherever's there's Kelly's there's trouble," said Burke.

"Wherever fighting's the game, Or a spice of danger in grown man's work," Said Kelly, "you'll find my name."
"And do we fall short, said Burke, getting mad,
"When it's touch and go for life!"
Said Shea, "It's thirty odd years, behold,
Since I charged to drum, and file Up Maye's Heights, and my old canteen Stopped a rebel ball on it's way. sprigs of green—
Kelly and Burke and Shea—
And the dead don't beg." "Well, here's to the flag!"
Said Kelly and Burke and Shea.
"I wish 'twas in Ireland, for there's the place."

Said Burke, "that we'd die by right, In the cradle of our soldier race, After one good stand-up fight, My grandfather fell on Vinegar Hill, And fighting was not his trade; But his rusty pike's in the cabin still,
With Hessian blood on the blade."
"Aye, aye," said Kelly, "the pike's were great.

When the word was 'clear the way?'
We were thick on the roll in Ninety-eight—
Kelly and Burke and Shea."

"Well, here's to the pike and the sword and the like!"
Said Kelly and Burke and Shea,
And Shea, the scholar, with rising joy, Said, "We were at Ramillies, We left our bones at Fontenoy And up in the Pyrenees.
Before Dunkirk, on Landen's plain, Crenons, Lille, and Ghent, We're all over Austria, France and Spain,
Wherever they pitched a tent.
We've died for England, from Waterloo To Egypt and Dargai; And still there's enough for a corpse or a crew,
Kelly and Burke and Shea."

"Well, here's to good honest and fighting blood!"
Said Kelly and Burke and Shea.
"Oh, the fighting race don't die out, If they seldom die in bed.
For love is first in their hearts, no doubt."
Said Burke; then Kelly said:
"When Michael, the Irish Archangel, stands,
The angel with the sword,
And the battle-dead from a hundred lands
Are ranged in one big horde, Our line, that for Gabriel's trumpet wails,
Will stretch three deep that day,
From Jehoshaphat to the Golden Gates
Kelly and Burke and Shea."

"Well, here's thank God for the race and the soil!"
Said Kelly and Burke and Shea.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even-numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, containing 320, 640, or reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situated. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at any Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

DUTIES.—(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.
(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land, owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. He may also do so by living with father or mother, on certain conditions. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

W. W. CORV,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

Fish Forest and Game

Protection

Kelly Evans addressed a meeting in St. John Tuesday Eve, on the advantage of organizing for the better protection of the forests, fish and game.

He gave a description of the original condition in New Brunswick when every river abounded with salmon and every stream and lake was filled with trout, and when dense forests of magnificent timber covered the land.
He reminded his hearers that forests were the growth of centuries, and that it took generations to reap the benefits of scientific forestry, but that the results of fish culture and the adequate protection of fish and game were seen almost immediately.

Referring to the history of the state of Maine, he showed that in 1867, owing to the greed, rapacity and ignorance of the settlers, a condition had been arrived at that was almost appalling.
A commission appointed by the legislature reported that the fish in the inland waters were practically valueless; that very few deer existed, and that there were evidences of only a few individual moose in the whole district.
Today, through wise laws energetically enforced, there were 1,000 lakes and ponds abounding with landlocked salmon; deer and moose were found in large numbers and the state supported eight hatcheries, and a complete organization of guardians out of the moneys received from licenses purchased by non-residents. There were 2,000 registered guides employed who would average earnings of $3000 for the six months of each game season.

He reminded any of his hearers who might be prejudicial against the influx of foreign sportsmen to this province that today in Maine, there was fishing and shooting incomparably superior to that existing before the government and people had recognized the importance commercially to the state of using fish and game to attract the outsider. It was proved, he said, by indisputable facts and statistics that the indirect revenue enjoyed by the state amounted to the vast sum of $15,000,000 annually.

He invited his hearers to consider the peculiar advantages New Brunswick possessed for equaling, if not surpassing the state of Maine as an attraction to visiting sportsmen. First, New Brunswick possessed moose, the monarch of the North American forest, in quantities not equalled by Maine or any other state or province.

The climate of New Brunswick and the environment and the food supply was not only peculiarly favorable to keeping up the present quantity of these lordly animals, but to increasing their number largely with the aid of wide legislation.

The Hon. L. T. Carleton, commissioner of game and fisheries in the state of Maine, estimated the value of a moose running large in the state at $300.
When it would consider that the number of moose slaughtered legally and illegally last year in this province reached 3,000, some idea of the immense possible value of the provincial resources could be obtained.

As business men, why, he asked, should they not recognize the necessity of a proper system of game guardianship The republic to the south was steadily increasing in wealth and population, and the value of the moose especially to the sportsman would increase in corresponding ratio.

The town council and the school board met on Monday evening and talked over the school house annex. At the next regular meeting of the council, it is expected that some definite action will be taken. The board estimate that two thousand dollars will be required to carry out proposed plans.

It is said that some opposition will be offered at the council meeting, and use of the town hall advocated for the present, or until debt on present school building is paid.
