The visiting fleet comprised four aeroplanes, both Taubes and Aviatiks, which flew several times across the city dropping hombs on each last of the results of Coudekeque and of Furnes. The Germans, according to the city dropping hombs on each last of the Russian statement, moved for the Russian statement, moved for the city dropping hombs on each last of the results of the city dropping hombs on each last of the city dropping hombs on each last of the city dropping hombs of the tiks, which flew several times across the city, dropping bombs on each journey.

Soldiers in the streets replied with vigorous rifle fire, but the aeroplanes sailed calmly on. One seemed to have been hit, for he turned on his head and descended several hundred feet before righting himself, but all got safely away. The bombs fell first on one side and then on another. No sooner did one aeroplane seem to be departing than another arrived. The whole city cracked with rifle shots and bombs, which threw up dense clouds of black smoke. Buildings and windows were smashed in all directions and tramway lines at

FORMIDABLE SUNK IN CHANNEL

British Battleship Either Hit Mine or Was Torpedoed

A despatch from London says:
The British battleship Formidable, was sunk in the English Channel on Friday morning with the loss, it is believed, of about 600 officers and men. So far as is definitely known, there are 150 survivors of the disraster. The vessel's normal complete ment was 781 officers and men. The Daily Chronicle states that survivors of the battleship Formidable to report that the vessel was torpedoed both fore and aft early Friday morning and sank almost immediately, giving the crew hardly time to escape. The place of the disaster was not given in the official announcement, nor had the cause of the vessel's loss been determined. The brief and rather meagre official attatement issued was as follows.

British Public Cease Criticism-There Is No Need to Fear An Invasion

A despatch from London says:
Criticism of the Government's war preparations which was rampant during the early stages of the war, has largely ceased.

The War Office has now enlisted the services of business men with experience in carrying out big enterprises to take part in the work of supplying the army, and the labor unions have volunteered to watch the execution of Government contracts, not only to see that proper equipment and rations are supplied to the soldiers, but to prevent sweating.

A despatch from London says: The Daily Chronicle's correspondent at Basel quotes reports from Geneva of serious internal troubles in Austria and Hungary. A crowd made a demonstration in Vienna, according to these reports, in favor of peace and denouncing the war with which the War Office and the Admirally have co-operated for the business of preventing a German raid or invasion. An equal heroism inspires all ranks of the French army, from pri-vate to general. In the mathema-tical nature of things, of course, tical nature of things, of course, more privates than generals show themselves heroes. All the more reason then to remark the following act of heroism on the part of a general brigade. This general had received orders from the highest quarters to advance his men along a certain road which was swept by the enemy's fire. Obedience to these orders would mean the practical annihilation of his brigade, and the general knew it.
