

The BIRTH of CANADA'S NAVY

AMID the hustle and hurry of twentieth century life, there are events to-day which were only the dream of yesterday. In the life of the individual, in commercial, social, and industrial life, this fact is in evidence, and in the task of nation-building its truth is also strongly impressed upon us. National ideals soon take the form of national attainments, and the world moves rapidly forward to greater and richer achievements. History is ever repeating itself.

CANADA

The land we love is fast pressing forward in the grand march of nations. As the little winged creature, under the care and protection of the mother bird, daily grows in strength, confidence, and the power of self control, so is our Dominion rapidly developing and advancing. The old colonial clothes have now become ill-fitting, and in the councils of the nations, Canada occupies
