Everything in Proportion

For many weeks the irritable merchant had been riveted to his bed by typhoid fever. Now he was convalescing. He clamored for something to eat, declaring that he was starving, slowly, surely, and in the most painful manner.

"To-morrow you may have something to eat," promised the doctor. The merchant realized that there would be a restraint to his appetite, yet he saw, in a complete payment of $7.50. FRIEGHT TO BE PAID BY PURCHASER.

"Here is your dinner," said the nurse next day, as she gave the glowering patient a spoonful of tapioca pudding, "and the doctor emphasizes that everything else you do must be in the same proportion."

Two hours later the nurse heard a frantic call from the bedchamber and hastened to her patient in alarm.

"Nurse," breathed the man heavily, "I want to do some reading; bring me a postage stamp."

The Boy and His Father

Emil Steffens, sr., the lithographer, made the following translation of a paragraph in the Staats-Zeitung, entitled it, "What a Boy Thinks About His Father." Numerous copies have been made by Mr. Steffens' house and circulated.

"At ten he thinks his father knows a great deal. When he is fifteen he thinks, 'Well, I know just about as much.' At twenty he thinks he knows again as much. When he comes to be thirty years old he thinks that he ought to ask his father's advice sometimes. At forty he thinks that his father does know a little more. At fifty he looks for his father's advice. At sixty, and his father is dead, he comes to the conclusion that there was not a smarter man on earth than his father was."—New York Press.
