Extract from the Plunkville Gazette: "We recently heard the town band render the Marseillaise for the first time. It is a stirring air. We predict it will become popular."—Exchange.

So far the Australian bushranger who christened his daughters Eczema and Neuralgia certainly takes the prize in the way of strange names. It is only fair to him to add that he had not the slightest notion what the words meant. He had seen them in a newspaper, and was pleased with the sound.—London Daily News.

Pat (in Boston Transcript)—This is the first time in my of these corporations hev done innnything to binnefit the workingman. Mike—How is that, Pat? Pat—It is this siven-cint fare. I hev bin walkin' to and from me work and savin' tin cints, and now I kin save fourteen cints.

When King George was making a tour of the Picardy front recently he paid a visit to the American troops holding a section of the line there. The King asked an American soldier where he came from and was greatly amused when he received this reply: "From the village of Chicago."—Buffalo Commercial.

They were looking at the kangaroo at the zoo, when an Irishman said: "Beg pardon, sor, phwat kind of a creature is that?"

"Oh," said the gentleman, "that is a native of Australia."

"Good hivins!" exclaimed Pat, "an' me sister married wan o' thim."

"We are using artificial pies in all our comedies now," said the motion picture producer.

"That's a patriotic thing to do."

"Yes, and we get better results with imitations than we used to get with the real article. Our property man has invented a pie that smears magnificently."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The head of the household wore a worried, dark look when he beheld the numerous bills that confronted him.

"Your extravagance is becoming unbearable," he growled. "When I die you'll probably have to beg."

"Well, I should be better off than some poor woman who never had any practise," replied his wife. — New York Times.

A well-to-do, Scottish lady one day said to her gardener:

"Mon Tammas, I wonder you don't get married. You've got a nice house, and all you want to complete it is a wife. You know the first gardener that ever lived had a wife."

"Quite right, missus, quite right," said Tammas, "but he didna keep his job lang after he got the wife."—Tit-Bits.

A British soldier captured a German officer. As he was proudly escorting his capture to the rear they stopped to let a truck go by. The German, with that fine Prussian courtesy which so distinguishes them from the rest of the world, snarled out: "You English fight for money." Tommy's pay is so small that he might have denied the statement, but instead, he pleasantly asked, "What do you fight for?" "I fight for honor," was the reply. "That's just it," said Tommy, "we both fight for something we haven't got."
