If you will, you can be a successful farmer

in the San Joaquin Valley, California

Here forty thousand families have established homes and turned raw land, which cost them $100 an acre or less, into blossoming orchards, blooming alfalfa and stock farms, for some of which, men, who know conditions, are glad to pay $500 an acre and upward.

But there still is ample room and abundant op-portunity for one hundred thousand families to make a home and a substantial fortune—from a modest beginning—supplying the ever-increasing demand for the products of California soil.

I want to get into correspondence with every man that reads this advertisement, who has a desire to own a farm on the Pacific coast. I would ap-preciate it if you will tell me in your first letter just what kind of a place you desire—whether a fruit ranch, a vineyard, an intensively cultivated garden, an alfalia and stock ranch, a dairy or a poultry farm.

We are in possession of a large amount of infor-mation that will be of the utmost value to you in deciding where to locate. We can tell you some-thing of land values, terms, markst conditions, taxes, cost of cultivation, cost of water and the hundreds of other things which you must know, and which would take you weeks and months to get for yourself.

After you have found the spot, we will send to you one of our expert agriculturists, a man who knows local conditions and can intelligently advise you how to lay our your place and how to avoid the pitfails the stranger in a new country is likely to encounter. All this service is free. It is the Santa Fe way of insuring the home-maker as far as possible against failure.

The railroad has no land to sell. Its only chance of profit is in the continued success and prosperity of the people it serves.

What the San Joaquin Valley is, and what others are doing here, is told in two books, which are free and are yours for the saking. Then, if you are inter-ested, we want you to ask further questions—we are eager to answer them.
