IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Charles Clarence, youngest son of Charles and Mary Wright who fell asleep in Jesus, June 3rd, 1911, aged 7 years, 9 mos and nine days.

The King walked into his garden. Pure and sweet were the flowers there. And sought for a flower pure enough To bloom in his palace fair.

The gardener looked at his Master. Then slowly walked around. To where, of all the flowers in the garden. The fairest to him was found.

"The King glanced round for a moment. His eye beheld the pure wax bud; I have chosen that white bud, you see. To bloom in my palace above."

The gardener trembled with horror; "Not that one, O Master take all the rest. Of all the flowers in the garden I love that bud the best."

The Master showed his pained hands. And then his bleeding side. "Remember my poor stricken one," He said.

"Twas for that fair bud I died. And though your hearts be sad and weary. Remember the lesson He has made."

And so assured when Clarence died "Twas not in vain."

And so on a bright June morning. When the birds and the opening flowers. And the beautiful summer sunshine. Seemed to mock this grief of ours.

Our darling Clarence left us. And we know by the smile on his face. He had found on his Father's bosom. A last long resting place.

Sleep on our darling, take your rest. Though long to us the years may seem. We will meet you again with joy. When we've passed o'er Jordan's stream.

LORD CREWE WILL WAIT

He Will Not Present Home Rule Bill To Lords Until June 22.

LONDON, May 27.—Political writers yesterday on both sides anticipated little towards peace in the promised amending bill, and the minds of the members of Parliament are rather turned towards their constituencies.

Lord Crewe has announced he will not put down the second reading of the Home Rule bill in the Lords before June 22, so there will certainly be a breathing space of a few weeks, except for what may happen outside of Westminster.

The Standard (Conservative) claims to have reliable information that the Liberal party agents having gone over the ground with a view to the possibility of an early election, predict 35 Liberal gains and 28 Liberal losses, provided the Liberals came to an arrangement with the Labour party to avoid a triangular contest, and also commence an aggressive campaign concerning "the army plot to thwart the aspirations of the democracy."

FOUR PERSONS WERE DROWNED

Entire Family Wiped Out In Holiday Tragedy Near North Bay.

NORTH BAY, May 27.—North Bay's Victoria Day was marred by one of the worst drowning accidents which has ever occurred in Lake Nipissing, a whole family, including father and mother and two children, being wiped out.

Early yesterday morning a young collic dog came whining to a Government road-making camp near the shore of the lake, a few miles from North Bay, and by his peculiar actions attracted attention to the lake front.

Straight to a beach the dog led, and there, lying on the sand, were the bodies of the children clasped in the rigid death grip of their mother.

The bodies were identified as those of Mrs. Arthur Mansbridge, a young woman of 21 years of age,
