PROGRESS OF THE WAR

[October 19 to October 25] DURING the week under review the fortunes of war fluctuated greatly and the net result, all fronts considered was apparently in favor of the Centra

Powers.

In the Western campaign both the British and the French made further substa tial advances in Picardy, the one towards Bapaume and the other towards Péronne The event of the week, however, was the great success of the French north of Verdun, where they advanced beyond the Thiaumont work and captured Douaum village and fort. The ground taken was strongly held in spite of fierce German nterattacks; and the French took ove 5,000 prisoners and much military stores and munitions. No notable change was effected at any other part of the Western front, though at many points much activ-

ty prevailed. In the Eastern campaign the Russians do not seem to have scored any notable success at any point, though fierce fighting took place west of Lutsk in Volhynia and northeast and southeast of Lemberg in Galicia, the vicinity of Halicz being the scene of the most desperate struggle Further south, in Bukowina and Transyl vania, where the Russians and Rumanians have joined forces, they had to retire a several points. Along the Transylvanian Alps the Rumanians barely held their own. Altogether, while the week on this front did not bring much success to the Russians and Rumanians, it did not bring them any serious disaster.

No important event was reported in the Caucasian campaign, though the Russians

Nothing was reported concerning the campaign in Mesopotamia; and in the Egyptian campaign the British made a successful raid on a Turkish outpost some distance to the east of Ismailia on the Suez Canal, and another on-hostile tribes in the west, on the border of the Sahara Desert. No news was received of the campaign in East Africa.

The Balkan campaign yielded further successes for the Entente Allies in Serbia and Macedonia; but in the Dobrudja province of Rumania the Russisns and Rumanians had to retite before superior forces of Teutons, Turks, and Bulgars Von Mackensen who occupied t Black Sea port of Constanza and the rail way running from it to the Danube. The manians, with whom are now many Russians, had a hard week of it all round; but the reports state that they are no downhearted, and they are certainly no defeated. Hampered by unfavorable weather conditions the Italian campaign did not make much progress, but the Italians were able to score some successes in Trentino and in the Carso.

The week was marked by innumerable air raids, the most notable of which was one by the Entente Allies on Metz, where tons of bombs were dropped on German military works. A raid by a German seaplane on Margate, in Kent, resulted in some injury to a few people, and some ial damage of no great consequence nacmarine activity was perhaps great in any preceeding week of the s is shown in "News of the Sea," where are recorded all the disasters caused by submarines reported during the week in the Canadian daily press. As the Presidential election is now in full swing in the United States the Germans feel quite sure that the American Government will not take any action to compel Germany to keep her paction with America in regard to the conduct of submarine warfare, which Germany has so flagrantly ignored for several weeks past, After the election, whichever party wins, it is pretty certain that America will take a stand that will not be at all to the liking of Germany.

THE BUREAUCRACY

WE commend to our readers a careful perusal of the article, "The in this issue, from the London Spectator; 2.50, S. S. Dines 2.00, H. O. Chubb, George after me perplexedly as I climbed the steep granite that made St. George famous, in Petty Official" which we print elsewhere and as the subject treated of therein is one that will receive much of our attention "after the war," we ask those interested in the matter to preserve the article for future reference. The article is timely and authoritative. It was inspired by a trial in London of a petty official of the Government clothing factory at Pimlico, London. The presiding Judge, Mr. Justice Low, imposed a ence of imprisonment and the cost of the trial on the official concerned, who had accepted bribes for passing a large quantity of military trousers not up to specifications, made by outside contract ors; and in passing sentence the Judge made some scathing remarks on th nefficiency of the Government's system of accounting, as well as on the conduct of accounting, as well as on the conduct of the unscrupulous contractors, who ought to have been on trial but were not. The Spectator embraces the opportunity to discuss the larger question of the growth of the bureaucracy in Great Britain, which has become "a monster of such frightful mien" that it will have to be dealt with seriously after the war.

Of all the Departments of State which must come in for after-the-war criticism, that of Foreign Affairs is likely to receive most attention; and when this is in order the Beacon may be relied upon to give some first-hand information that will place the administration of that Department in an altogether unfavorable light.

And it must be borne in mind by all careful students of the political affairs of Drake is fighting for England again, careful students of the political affairs of our own great Dominion that the Bureaucracy in Canada has grown to such an extent as to "give us pause." All countries are suffering from the same cause, and in all countries the problem of how to deal with it is of such stupendous proportions that it has not been grappled with, and the menace, in been grappled with, and the menace, in consequence, steadily increases. But dealt with it must be, sooner or later, in If payment is made strictly in advances a Canada as in Great Britain; and political leaders who have the courage to attempt
